$1.1B RESERVES SPENT

Dollar Nearing Depression Low

Canadian Press

The Canadian dollar continued to drop against its U.S. counterpart on money markets today following news that the government spent a staggering $1.14 billion U.S. in official reserves in September to support the sagging currency.

It was the largest sum of money ever spent by the central bank to support the value of the dollar.

The government also announced its spending deficit for the first five months of the 1978-79 fiscal year was $6.049 billion, up 57 per cent from the shortfall in the same period of 1977-78.

The dollar, which opened below Monday's closing price of 83.89 U.S. cents, was trading at 83.66 U.S. cents by mid-morning and in New York at noon was at 83.82 cents U.S.

The currency is now only about a cent away from its second all-time low of 82.47 U.S. cents registered in April, 1933. The record low was set in December, 1931, when the dollar was worth 80.08 U.S. cents.

On Monday, traders had blamed pessimism about the reserve figures for the dollar's drop that day of more than half a cent against its U.S. counterpart. It was the biggest one-session decline since February, 1977.

The dollar's continued weakness today comes after the finance department revealed that the Bank of Canada spent $1.14 billion during the month of September to buy unwanted Canadian dollars on world currency markets.

In August, the bank used up more than $700 million of its U.S. reserves to prop up the dollar.

Despite the intervention, the dollar has dropped more than four cents against the U.S. dollar since the beginning of August.

The dollar hovered around the 85-cent mark last week but suffered a blow Friday as a result of figures revealing a lower-then-expected trade surplus in August.

Guessing about the reserve figures led to a renewed sell-

Record Price Set for Gold

LONDON (Reuter) — The price of gold rose to a record $221.40 U.S. an ounce today amid continued turmoil in world currencies in spite of Switzerland's latest attempt to stabilize the situation.

The battered U.S. dollar weakened further against major currencies today and this sent the value of gold shooting up.

Province Payroll Up: 11,000 Jobs in City

The number of provincial civil service jobs in Greater Victoria totalled 10,987 in May of this year, Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf said Monday.

This is an increase of 426 over the 17 months leading up to May, he said.

The Canada Employment Centre estimates the Victoria labor force at just over 100,000, so the provincial civil service accounts for about 10 per cent of Victoria's employment.

Bawlf said he is tired of the needless hysteria created by those who believe there is a steady loss of government jobs in Victoria.

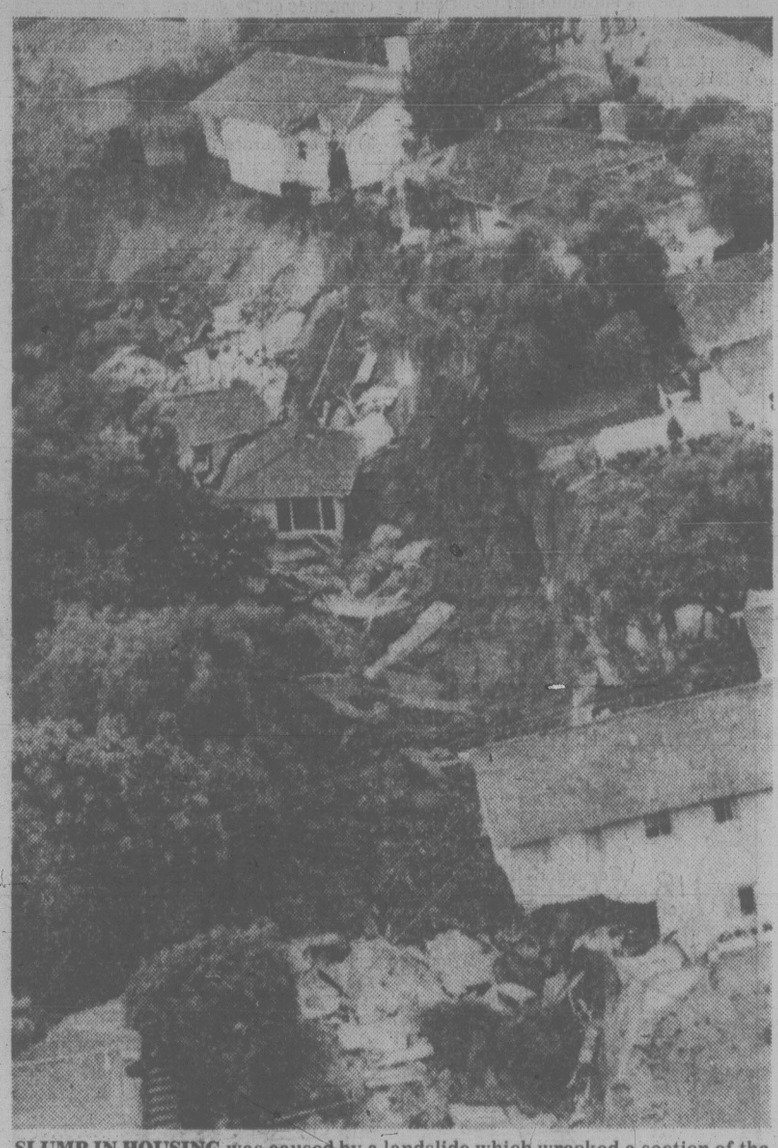
At Bawlf's request, Public Service Commission head A. G. Richardson tallied the number of jobs in the area provided by the provincial government and its Crown corporations.

Bawlf said he simply wants to set the record straight.

"There has been too much hysteria regarding the so-called loss of government jobs in Victoria. It just isn't true."

Another proof that the city isn't losing jobs is the fact that four Crown corporations are or will be located in Victoria — B.C. Buildings, B.C. Ferries, B.C. Systems and the new Urban Transit Authority.

The minister said every new government job creates two more in the service industry.



SLUMP IN HOUSING was caused by a landslide which wrecked a section of the fashionable resort community of Laguna Beach Monday. In all, 49 homes worth up to $300,000 were destroyed or damaged as the ground crumbled into a cleft which opened in the hillside. Several people were hurt and a number forced to flee in their night clothes, but their were no major injuries as the slide moved very slowly, according to authorities.

Rockets Again Pounding Beirut

BEIRUT (UPI) — Heavy shelling and rocket duels erupted in Beirut today between Syrian and Christian rightist forces. The right-wing Phalangist radio said some Lebanese army units were joining the Christian militias in the battle against the Syrians.

The fierce fighting escalated despite an appeal by President Elias Sarkis Monday night for self-restraint on both sides and a promise that he would form a government of national unity within 10 days in a bid to halt the warfare.

The Phalangist radio broadcast a communique from what it said was the "Revolutionary Command of the Lebanese Army" pledging to "carry arms, struggling forever for the sake of Lebanon."

"We soldiers and officers refuse to see our homeland and nation being torn apart and burning," the communique said.

It was not clear how extensive the alleged move by Lebanese army units to join the militias was.

The action came as heavy bombardments rocked Beirut and its suburbs and as the Syrians and Christians struggled for control of a key bridge controlling the northeast approaches to the city.

The renewed violence shattered an overnight lull and appeared to have been sparked by a battle for the

2nd DEFECTOR MYSTERY DEATH

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard is investigating the second death of a Bulgarian defector in three weeks.

One of the defectors died shortly after reporting that he had been stabbed with a poisoned umbrella and the second after apparently falling down stairs at his home.

A third Bulgarian defector survived a poison-dart attack in Paris in August, and Scotland Yard is evaluating the case of a fourth man claiming to be Bulgarian who flagged down a police car in London Monday and said he was being threatened.

The defectors all had made anti-Communist broadcasts to their homeland. The two who died in London, Georgio Markov and Vladimir Simeonov, were close friends and worked for the Bulgarian language service of the BBC.

Simeonov's pajama-clad body was found in his south London home by another BBC employee sent to check on him after he failed to turn up for work Monday.

Scotland Yard described the death as suspicious and said after an autopsy that 30-year-old Simeonov died from asphyxia caused by inhaling blood from a fractured nose.

Further laboratory and scientific tests will be carried out to try to determine why Mr. Simeonov fell down the stairs," said a police spokesman.

The BBC said that Simeonov was a naturalized British citizen who was a student before he fled from Bulgaria in 1971. His parents still live there.

Markov, a 49-year-old playwright who defected to Britain in 1970, died Sept. 11 from septicemia, a form of blood poisoning, four days after he reported he was stabbed in the thigh with a lethally-tipped umbrella by a man in the street.

Another prominent Bulgarian defector and leading political expert, Vladimir Kostov, alleged that unidentified men fired poison darts at him in Paris in August. Kostov, who has lived in Paris since he defected last year, survived the alleged attack.

Airport Insurance On Way

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal ministry of transport hopes to have a multi-million-dollar insurance package covering 37 municipally-operated airports across the country, including seven in B.C., in place no later than Nov. 1, and perhaps as soon as next week, a ministry spokesman said Monday.

Spokesman Steve Rybak said tenders on the air crash liability package submitted by seven major Canadian insurance companies will be opened in Ottawa today.

The ministry moved to beef up insurance coverage at airports it owns that are managed by municipalities after the Feb. 11 crash of a Pacific Western Airlines jetliner at the Cranbrook airport.

Castlegar city council will now take a second look next week at its decision to cancel its airport lease with the ministry because of a lack of proper safety equipment and inadequate insurance coverage, said Mayor Audrey Moore.

In addition to Cranbrook and Castlegar, municipally-operated ministry airports in B.C. include those at Kelowna, Campbell River, Quesnel, Grand Forks and a seaplane base at Prince Rupert.

Shattering Price

LONDON (Reuter) — A 16th-century English goblet fetched $155,000 at a Christie's auction today — a world record for glass.

Brewery Lays Off 30%

VANCOUVER (CP) — Production is down at British Columbia breweries and some employees have been laid off as the provincial government's liquor distribution branch attempts to clear liquor store shelves of United States beer before increasing orders for domestic suds.

Alan Branston, production manager at Carling-O'Keefe's brewery in Vancouver, said production is about one quarter of normal and about 30 per cent of the bottling and delivery staff has been laid off.

There are still about one million dozen bottles and cans of various U.S. beers, the last of almost nine million dozen imported during the labor dispute at four B.C. breweries.

As a result, the branch ordered only 350,000 dozen bottles of Canadian beer in September, compared to the 3.3 million dozen it ordered a year ago.

At Molson's in Vancouver, production has been shut down for three weeks.

"The liquor board orders weekly and each week we've been selling less than one day's normal production," said brewmaster Walter Hogg.

Only about 10 of a normal complement of 185 workers have been laid off. Others are taking early vacations, using up accumulated time off or doing routine maintenance work, he said.

Both liquor distribution branch and brewery officials estimated that it will be at least three weeks before production is once again back to normal.

Four Die In Blast

DENVER (AP) — A series of explosions ripped through a Continental Oil Co. refinery today, killing at least four persons and injuring at least 11 others, police said.

Billowing fireballs rose over the storage tanks of the refinery and bulk storage plant just northeast of Denver in Commerce City.

Several of the injured were admitted to hospital in serious or critical condition, and a Continental spokesman said damage may run to between $5 million and $10 million.

Robert Alexander, Continental's manager at the refinery and storage plant, said the initial explosion — heard throughout the Denver metropolitan area — was touched off by leaking flammable fumes.

The Denver bomb squad was sent into the refinery area after the Adams County sheriff's department received a call from a man who said he was a Conoco employee and had placed a bomb near a storage tank.

However, police said no bomb was found.

Posties Voting for Pact But CUPW Threatening

MONTREAL (CP) — Members of the Montreal local of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada voted overwhelmingly Monday night to accept the federal government's final contract offer.

And letter carriers in Windsor, Ont., ended the one-day walkout that had disrupted postal service in that area.

But the good news was overshadowed by continued threats from the union which represents the nation's inside postal workers.

As soon as the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) gives union bargainers a strike mandate the post office will be shut down, union president Jean Claude Parrott said Monday in Halifax.

Parrott, claiming his union has 52,000 unresolved grievances against the post office, said CUPW members are ready to dig in their heels and take "a much harder stand."

Although results of the Montreal vote were not released, a spokesman for the 3,000-member union said about 75 per cent of those who voted were in favor of acceptance of the agreement-in-principle reached last week.

The government's offer for an 18-month contract would raise salaries 10.3 percent and would also provide cost-of-living increases.

The result of votes by all locals representing the 19,000 letter carriers across Canada will be released Oct. 10.

In Windsor, many letter carriers said they were still angry about the tentative contract but voted to end their protest aimed at showing dissatisfaction with the union's national executive.

"They felt that they are losing enough money, that it is such a bad contract they can't afford to lose any more," said John David, president of Local 16, Letter Carriers' Union of Canada.

Howie Hits Hub City

Al Howie, the lean Scottish-born marathon man who left Victoria Monday morning in a bid to get to Port Hardy within a week to raise funds for the United Way, got to Duncan around lunchtime and received a steak lunch, courtesy of Mr. Mike's.

He arrived in Nanaimo around 6.30 p.m. and was given a free night's lodging at the Diplomat Hotel, courtesy of the owners who think his 575-kilometer run is a great idea.

UIC Computer's Nailing Islanders

Four people have been jailed and hundreds have been fined this year as the Unemployment Insurance Commission crackdown becomes tougher on Vancouver Island.

"We have developed a fool-proof system for detecting people who cheat by working while collecting benefits," Vancouver Island UIC support centre manager George Milne said today.

"Our computer system catches them all."

Milne said while policing of unemployment insurance payments is an ongoing program, the increased use of computers is making control much easier.

Control officers up to Sept.30 had investigated 11,714 cases of suspected UIC cheating on Vancouver Island this year.

The result:

— Four Vancouver Islanders have gone to jail.

— Sixteen others were fined in court.

— Another 1,432 were fined a total of $171,040 under the Unemployment Insurance Act.

— Of the 11,714 suspects, 6,431 were found to have violated the program in some way.

In some cases it was by mistake. But 5,240 of them were found to have received a total of $993,077 too much in UIC benefits. This money must be paid back, including fines where applicable.

Milne said he is releasing the numbers now because there is a tendency for people to fudge on their unemployment insurance benefits at this time of year.

"You would be surprised at the number of people who try to cheat near Christmas or just after Christmas when they need money.

"In many cases they decide to accept benefit cheques for a few extra weeks after they start working in the Christmas season because they feel the money will come in handy.

"These people will be caught."

The method is the record of employment. Employers send a full record to the UIC computer in Ottawa and this is matched to the payout tape. The computer coughs up any overlap and the local UIC office is notified of the violation.

But control officers are not content just to sit back and wait for notification of violators.

"We have set up a pilot program at Nanaimo where employers notify us as soon as they hire anyone. The employers tell the workers they are doing this and we find there are almost no abuses of the insurance program."

In charge of the Nanaimo experiment is E.G. Pescod, UIC investigation and control adviser for the Island.

He said 300 Nanaimo companies are co-operating in the program and from among hundreds of workers only six UI violations have been detected this year.

Fewer Men Than Women Jobless After 25: StatsCan

OTTAWA (CP) — Men and women share the burden of unemployment almost equally between the ages of 20 and 24, but beyond this age group, women are hit much harder.

This is one of the findings of a labor force study released Monday by Statistics Canada.

Basing its figures on the 1976 census, the study showed men and women between the ages of 20 and 24 faced unemployment rates of 11.5 per cent and 11.6 per cent respectively. At that time the national unemployment rate was 6.8 per cent.

However, once they reached the 25-34 age group, unemployment among men had dropped well below the national average to 5.1 per cent, while the jobless rate for women remained at 7.4 per cent.

In the 35-44 age group, unemployment for males stood at 3.5 per cent and for females at 5.5 per cent.

Another striking difference between men and women in the study was that men reached their peak participation in the labor force between the ages of 35 and 44. Within this age group, 91.1 per cent were either working or actively seeking jobs.

Women, by contrast, were most likely to be members of the labor force between the ages of 20 and 24. In this age classification, 67.6 per cent classified themselves as labor force participants but by the age of 35 the percentage had dropped to 53.7 per cent.

By marital status, it showed that 56.3 per cent of single women were in the labor force, 43.7 per cent of married women, 55.4 per cent of separated women and 63.8 per cent of divorced women.

The national average for all groups was a participation rate of 45 per cent for women.

For men the national average was 75.5 per cent, with a marked difference between single men, who had a participation rate of 64.9 per cent and married men with a rate of 82.5 per cent.

Labor force participation also varied widely by geographical area. A survey of the 20 largest cities showed highest male participation was in Kitchener at 80.4 per cent, followed by Calgary 79.8 per cent, Edmonton 79.4 per cent and Toronto 79.0 per cent. The city with the lowest rate — 70.7 per cent — was Victoria.

For women, the highest participation rate was in St. John's Newfoundland, with 55.7 per cent in the labor force. The next highest was Toronto with 52.0 per cent and Edmonton with 51.9 per cent.

The lowest female participation in the labor force was in Sudbury, where only 39.9 per cent of women were either working or looking for jobs. Other low-ranking cities were: Saint John N.B., 40.1 per cent; Windsor, 41.2 per cent; and Victoria 43.2 per cent.

UVic Missing 20 Artworks

Segger and his museum staff confirmed some pieces had disappeared during an examination of the entire collection this summer, as reported in an article in Ring, he university newspaper.

Some of the art objects may have been lost during many moves that have taken place since the art collection was started in 1952 and Segger is reluctant to say they have been stolen, the Ring story said.

Segger said all the missing works are important to the university, but would not disclose their market value.

Members of the university may have traded pieces without telling the school's art committee or the gallery.

Some of the missing paintings and sculptures may be decorating offices on campus, Segger said.

Three pieces have already been returned to the gallery after Segger circulated a memo on campus and he is hoping the other 20 will be returned the same way.

Local Firm Wins Rio Nod

A Victoria marine engineering firm has been chosen to study rapid water transit in Rio de Janiero in what could lead to development of a $100 million system like B.C.'s Seabus in the Brazilian city.

Case Existological Laboratories Ltd. announced today it has been commissioned by Transportes da Companhia do Metropolitano (Metro) of Rio de Janiero to make an initial feasibility study on integrating water travel with rapid transit, including bus and subway systems.

Case vice-president Marvin Fallis said the cost of the Seabus project in Rio could be as high as $100 million over two or three years.

He could not estimate the value of the work to Case Labs, but a substantial share of the total will come to the Victoria firm if it is gets a design contract.

The Seabus project on Burrard Inlet in Vancouver cost $35 million in a development program that lasted just over two years.

The feasibility study could propose a variation on the Seabus theme, either in ship design or operating requirements.

Case will send a team of engineers, led by company president John Case to spend eight weeks in Rio evaluating routes and traffic patterns.

Saanich Fire Investigated

Saanich fire officials today are investigating a fire that caused between $10,000 to $15,000 damage to a house at 3166 Albina Monday night.

The fire, reported by a neighbor at 8:53 p.m., gutted a bedroom and caused extensive smoke damage to the rest of the house.

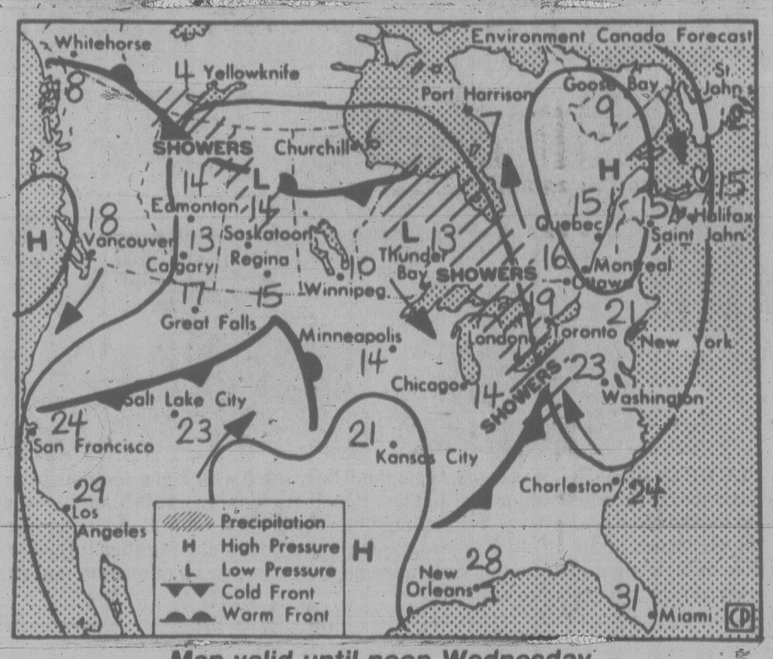

Map valid until noon Wednesday

Variable cloudiness prevailed over much of the province this morning with precipitation reported from localities on the north coast as well as at several places on Vancouver Island. Some precipitation is also reported at a few places in the interior. A weather disturbance lying across the south coast and extending over the central interior will reach Alberta by early evening. Steady improvement is forecast under the influence of a ridge of high pressure building in the wake of this weather system with further improvement expected on Wednesday.

City Staffer's Job On Line

Victoria city council was closeted in a special meeting at press time today discussing the future employment of city personnel director Terry FitzPatrick.

Vancouver management consultant Gordon Newhouse and Associates was hired earlier this year to undertake a study on the personnel department. The final report has not yet been received by council but it is understood Mayor Mike Young has been given an oral brief on the matter.

Sources say Newhouse has stated the personnel department should be reorganized without FitzPatrick at the top.

FitzPatrick, who now receives $30,000 a year, has been with the city 31 years and is not due to retire for five years.

EPIDEMIC OF TB

About 10 per cent of the local population of 180 persons has been diagnosed as tubercular, almost twice as many cases as in the entire Yukon population of 24,000, say federal health and welfare officials.

Brian Maracle, vice-president of United Native Nations, said that Lower Post residents suffer more from TB because they are more demoralized than other northern residents.

He said lack of a local structure and a feeling of isolation are the cause of greater hopelessness compared with other northern communities where jobs are scarce, housing and diets are poor and drinking heavy.

Trucker Got Boxed In. . .

COLBERT, Okla. (UPI) — Bryan County authorities wonder why someone hired a trucker to deliver a load of sealed cardboard boxes of trash from Dallas. The trucker is curious, too.

Truck driver Ken Stovall of Dallas said he will be out $300 and two days work unless someone comes forward to pay him.

Stovall told officers a man called him Thursday and contracted his truck to haul a van load of sealed cardboard boxes to a Bill Johnson in Colbert. Stovall said he did not know what was in the boxes.

Stovall arrived in Colbert Sunday and parked his truck near the bank overnight.

Johnson did not show up and City Marshal John Buck answered a call from someone who was suspicious about the truck's location near the bank.

"After talking to the trucker, we decided to see what was in the boxes since Johnson didn't show up on schedule," Buck said.

Officers obtained a search warrant Monday, opened the boxes and found garbage, including leaves, a tar bucket and half of a concrete block.

Stovall said the caller who placed the trucking order in Dallas told him to collect from Johnson.

"I am relieved and still a little scared, but I'm mad too," Stovall said. Someone just beat me out of $300 and two days of my time."

Sheriff O.W. Highfill said he would try to find a Bill Johnson who lives in the area and see if he knows anything about the shipment.

Callaghan Comes Back Swinging

Times News Services

BLACKPOOL — Prime Minister James Callaghan today bounced back from the humiliating defeat of his pay curb policies and said his government is determined not to let Britain be engulfed again by all-out inflation.

In a 45-minute key-note speech to the Labor Party's annual convention, Callaghan said, "If yesterday's decision (by the conference) has an influence on pay settlements and inflation shoots up again, the government will take the necessary measures in the fiscal and monetary field."

"It is the government's duty," he said, "and no one will deter us from it."

At the end of the speech, the convention — which Monday voted, 2 to 1, against a 12-month ceiling of 5 per cent on pay boosts that Callaghan was demanding — gave the prime minister a one-minute standing ovation.

Callaghan told the 1,000 conference delegates the government still believes a 5 per cent ceiling on pay in the next 12 months is necessary to prevent double-digit onflation. The present rate is about 8 per cent.

"It is the government's inescapable duty to keep down inflation — not against anybody, but in the interest of all the people of this country," he said.

In addition to the revolt in his own party, Callaghan will have to stave off defeat later this month in Parliament, where the government is in an overall minority.

Militant trade unions opposed to wage restraint masterminded the moves that resulted in the government losing two key conference votes over the anti-inflation policy.

Although the votes do not bind Callaghan to dropping the controversial measures, they seriously undermine his authority in handling unions pushing for big wage increases.

About 57,000 Ford auto workers are on strike, protesting the government's efforts to limit wage increases to five per cent. Other unions have threatened industrial disruption.

Two of the biggest unions, the coal miners and the transport workers, used their block votes to humiliate the government after a fiery, three-hour debate by deeply divided delegates.

A resolution totally rejecting wage restraint and odering the government to keep out of wage negotiations was passed by 4,017,000 votes to 1,924,000.

Police Cleared In Death

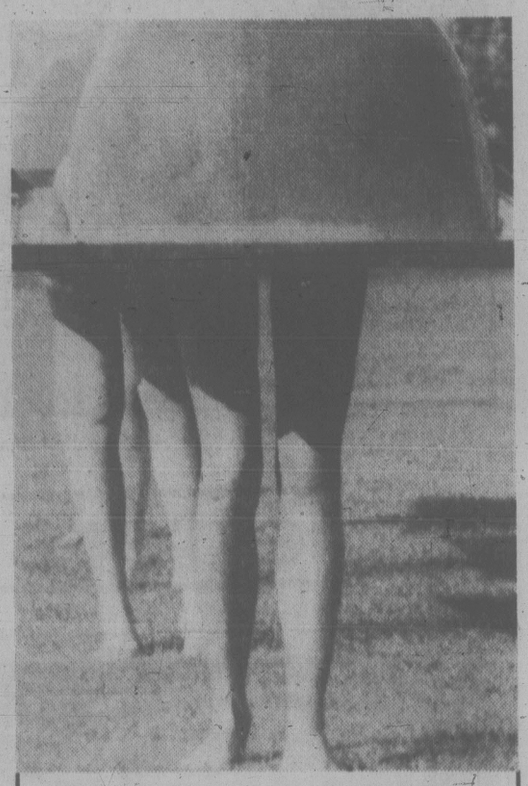
PORT ELIZABETH (Reuter) — A magistrate has cleared South African security police of blame for the death of a young black man who plunged from the fifth floor of their headquarters here.

Magistrate J. A. Coetzee, who presided over an inquest, ruled today that no act or omission amounting to a criminal offence was involved in the death last July of 20-year-old Lungile Tabalaza.

Tabalaza was the second black in two years to die in a fall from the building.

Magistrate Coetzee said today that lawyer Wilfred Cooper, who represented the Tabalaza family, had agreed with medical evidence that there were no signs of the dead man's having been assaulted before he died.

The cause of death was multiple injuries consistent with the fall, the magistrate said.



Rub-a-dub-dub it's birds in a tub. Occasion was the launching of a new lightweight plastic line at British bathtub manufacturers on Monday. The tubs come without the long-limbed accessories, however.

Match Postponed

The game was to have started this evening with challenger Viktor Korchnoi set to play white against Soviet world champion Anatoly Karpov.

Power failures have plagued the championship meet since it began July 17 as the town's central electrical system suffered repeated failures.

The Lonely Life Of The 'Own Thinger'

TORONTO (CP) — People who grew up in the 1960s and experienced the "do your own thing" approach to life are now becoming superficial, irresponsible and lonely adults, according to a Tronto behavioral psychologist.

Robert Potvin, 34, said "in the '60s it became fashionable to be cool and uncommitted."

The teen-agers of the '60s developed a false openness, he said.

Potvin said he thinks the proliferation of singles' bars and discos is evidence of the problem.

"Chronically, lonely people in this age group are self-centred. They don't give to others yet they expect enormous attention in return."

In his group therapy sessions, Potvin said he has found that such people tend to talk in monologues. They either misread or do not listen to other people's responses.

If they have not learned the tools of that trade as children or adolescents, it becomes difficult to improvise.

Potvin said the danger signs of obsessive loneliness, rather than normal loneliness are clear: Withdrawal, avoidance of social contacts, listlessness, brooding and over-sleeping.

The answer may lie in a change of location or a new set of acquaintances, he said. But often that's a psychological mirage.

"The real answer lies inside," said Potvin.

"A professional counsellor might help when a person finds his loneliness is affecting other aspects of his life. He will get a fix on his position from a counsellor, a person who isn't affected by his poor self-image.

"This generation has really had to go through a rough time," he said.

"But I'm optimistic, I really am."

Nine Red Brigades Terrorists Nabbed

MILAN (UPI) — Police have uncovered a terrorist communications centre and arrested nine reputed Red Brigades members in the biggest strike in five months against the urban guerrilla killers of former Premier Aldo Moro.

The co-ordinated raids and nine arrests comprised the biggest operation against the Brigades since Moro's death and the first major break since the arrest of the reputed mastermind of the kidnapping, Corrado Alunni, September.

"The operation in Milan, which follows by a few weeks the arrest of Alunni, is a striking blow against the Red Brigades terrorist organization," said Interior Minister Virginio Rognoni.

A total of 15 Brigades suspects are in custody.

Those arrested Sunday and Monday included two reputed terrrorists suspected of taking part in Moro's murder — Antonio Savino, 29, and Nadia Mantovani, 28 — officials said.

Investigators said the raids turned up an arsenal of Red Brigades weapons and explosives, police uniforms and credentials, gas masks, bullet-proof vests and, most importantly, electronics equipment used by the gang to monitor police communications.

Dithering on the Dollar

The Canadian dollar drops further, and further, and further. The bottom appears to have fallen out and nothing the government or the Bank of Canada does has much effect.

Four increases in the bank's prime lending rate, a $700 million rescue loan by Ottawa on American markets to prop up the dollar, various pep talks and rational analyses of the problems have all been undertaken this year — and the dollar dropped to just above 84 cents American.

It defies any logical explanations. So Finance Minister Jean Chretien tries blaming Conservative leader Joe Clark, which only succeeds in making the Liberal government look very weak indeed and in conferring new found power upon Clark's shoulders. His criticism of the government shakes world confidence in the dollar, eh? Clark must be starting to hit home then.

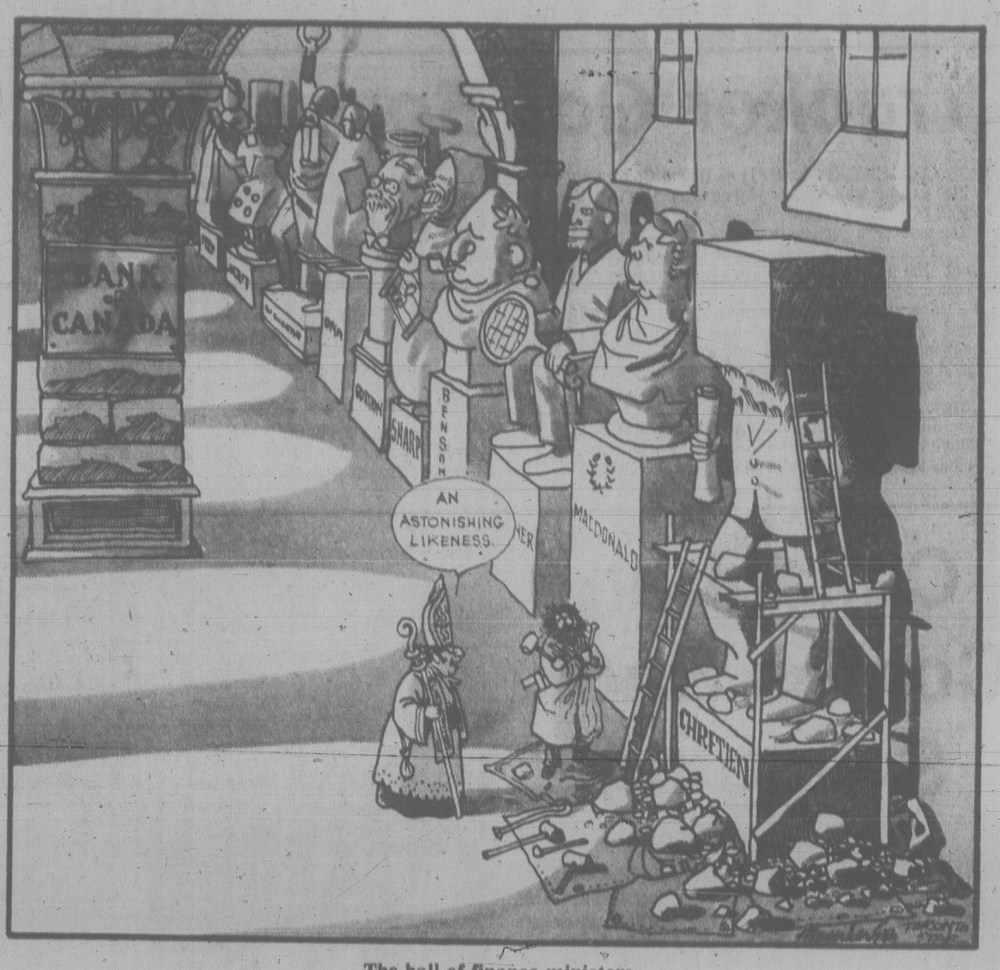
The argument along the lines of "don't criticize us because you might get a Tory government and, (a) Quebec will separate for sure; (b) the dollar will fall flat on its face; (c) other nasty things will happen" maybe worked once with the impressionable, when Clark was an unknown quantity. But now that the voters have had a chance to consider the alternatives the Conservatives are offering, more and more they like what they see and hear.

Chretien's assertion to the International Monetary Fund meeting in Washington last week that the Canadian dollar now is undervalued may have been perfectly true. He is probably right, but international money markets and the flow of capital between countries are rumor-ridden, often panic-stricken. If one looked at the matter coolly and rationally, the Canadian dollar is below what it should be bringing in international circles. Canadian industry is now actually more competitive than our major trading partner, the United States — partly because of the dollar's drop, partly because of our higher productivity and better record at dealing with inflation.

Costs in West Germany and Japan, two of the world's main manufacturing and trading nations, are rising rapidly towards the sky. They went up 14 per cent last year.

But our dollar reflects more than calm analysis of the state of the Canadian economy. It is a symbol of confidence, of future promise. And now, there isn't much of either commodity in Canadian affairs. Pressures in the next few months almost inevitably will drive the dollar down further. No right-thinking investor will make a decision today on a major expansion of his Canadian enterprise, or whether to buy Canadian investments when six months from now he could be faced with a brand new federal government with a very different philosophical attitude towards many policies and institutions now held sacred by the incumbent administration.

Prime Minister Trudeau has decided for reasons of his own not to call an election until the very last moment of his five-year term. By that act as much as anything else he has created opportunities for speculation and indecision to flourish. The winter of 1978 will be a confusing time before Canadians finally get a chance next spring to sort things out.



The hall of finance ministers.

Is It Motherhood?

The provision of at least a few small areas of open green space in every area of the city seems such a motherhood issue that it's hardly worth talking about. But the recent warning from city parks director Cliff Bate and parks committee chairman Ald. Robin Blencoe that the last bit of green — Arbutus Parkette, as it's quaintly known — in the Washington Street area could be gobbled up by developers brings the issue back into the public arena.

Apparently council a few years ago passed an ordinary resolution saying the 1.19-acre parcel of land should be used for park purposes, but never followed through with a bylaw to dedicate the land as a perpetual park or even to place it in the city's formal parkland reserve. This means that any future council can turn around any time it wants and by another simple resolution revoke the park status and sell the land for development.

What with talk from previous councils about the money to be made from selling the land for apartments or townhouses and a suggestion from city manager Jim Bramley that he is looking at alternative uses for the site, Blencoe and Bate perhaps have some grounds for fears that it might be lost.

If council is serious about maintaining this last corner as a neighborhood park for the residents of the highly-developed Washington Street area, there is no reason why it should not pass quickly a bylaw that would, at the least, put the land into the city's formal parkland reserves, making it much more difficult — though not impossible — for future councils to sell it or use it for any other purpose.

If council does not choose to do this, then perhaps the preservation of pockets of open space in each neighborhood is not such a universally-accepted "motherhood" principle after all.

The Post Office Fights Back

McLean is 37, a bulky and bespectacled maritimer. He's a product manager, responsible for figuring out how to get new kinds of mail moving faster, cheaper, more reliably.

When we talked, at a postal users' conference in Toronto this week, McLean was very, very weary. A two-hour panel he'd organized had just ended. It has been, like all of them at the conference, a rough one for the post office. Another panel, which McLean was due to chair, was coming up. Yet McLean talked about his job as if it were the best in the world.

"I left Bell telephone because we'd run out of interesting problems. I've been at the post office 2½ years and I haven't seen any solutions yet but I'm stubborn enough to refuse to believe that solutions don't exist."

Interesting Problems

Today, the post office's problem is that it is either on strike, or when not, it doesn't work. Lloyd Hodgkinson, publisher of Maclean's magazine, won himself a standing ovation at the conference when he thundered into the microphone: "I'm as mad as hell, and I'm not going to take it any more."

Tomorrow, the post office's problem is that it may disappear, or survive only as an antique, exorbitantly expensive, relic. Impossible? Think of transatlantic liners, of intercity passenger trains, of the telegraph service.

Let me admit to a personal interest. A decade ago, as executive assistant to then postmaster-general Eric Kierans, I watched Kierans commit the single, unforgiveable, political sin. To be ahead of his time. Ten years too soon, Kierans tried to drag the post office from the 19th to the 21st century. The attempt cost Kierans the portfolio.

Kierans recognized that the post office had to transform itself from a carrier of mail to a carrier by any means of information. He was appalled by the burden on the economy of the post office deficit, then $70 million. Kierans was persuaded, privately since he did not dare say this in public, that home delivery of letters was as obsolete as home delivery of milk or bread: five letters, say, brought to your door represent to the post office an economically absurd 70 cents worth of business.

Today, the post office is still in the 19th century. It's deficit has ballooned to $570 million, which, since taxpayers eventually foot the bill, makes the true cost of a first class letter about 30 cents.

Crown corporation status will help. So will improve labor relations, of which there is now a glimmer of a hope. Yet the post office is being battered into oblivion by the 21st century.

□ Facsimile. Today, 10 million pages are sent over telphone lines by facsimile. By 1955, the facsimile volume will soar to 380 million pages, at least one-third of it coming from conventional mail users.

POST OFFICE
. . . entering the 20th century

Next month, Facscan of Toronto will start Canada's first low cost, high-speed facsimile service. For 98 cents a page, users will be able to send their mail electronically, with two-hour, door-to-door delivery guaranteed, between Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa and Vancouver.

□ Electronic banking. "It's already here," says Bank of Montreal vice-president Al Bates. It's being used now, though you'd have no way of knowing it, for credit card purchases made by customers at one department store chain. By 1980, you'll be able to make electronic cash payments — zip, from your bank account to that of the store — at at least two department store chains.

By 1995, there will be two billion electronic financial transfers, or the equivalent of two in five conventional letters, and as many electronic messages of all kinds (eight billion, including facsimile and computers chattering to computers) as gummed down paper envelopes.

□ Couriers. In the U.S. private couriers have slashed the parcel volume of the U.S. post office by half in ten years (400 million pieces) and now themselves carry more than twice as much (905 million pieces).

The assault in Canada is just beginning. Air Canada this month expands Courierair, a door-to-door, overnight service to 20 cities. Only a post office intervention before the Ontario highway transport board, in violation of the government's policy of "privatization," has halted, temporarily, the expansion plans of the biggie of the business, United Parcel Services.

A Decade Late

"Electronic information transfer is coming," says McLean. "We can't fight it. We can't ignore it. What we have to do is be the catalyst for it."

How? Here's just one idea. The post office does its customers' mailing for them. Heavy users, like government, hydro companies, direct mailers, give the post office their computerized tape of customers. The post office uses its own computers to dispatch the list across country to post offices where the electronic information is printed out, stuffed mechanically into envelopes and these then hand delivered. As another wrinkle, letter carriers could pick up reply card-payment authorization slips from customers, and these could be sent backwards, electronically, to the government department or hydro company or direct mailer.

"I can't tell you more, because you'd tell it to our competitors," says McLean. That's the key — the chance that at last, if 10 years late, the post office might actually do something that would worry its competitors. If the post office doesn't do it, then Canadians had better start worrying about how much longer we'll be able to afford to have a post office at all.

Have space vistors been here already, in our midst?

They're Here Now

Your editorial Out There (Sept. 23) is a good example of the changing times in journalism. As little as 10 years ago newspapers rarely speculated on a question as far out as the possibility of other civilizations in space.

Encouraging though it is, however, serious discussion of this sort in the media is far behind what it should be. For instance, the views of astrophysicist Carl Sagan are largely cited in your editorial — in fact, they provide the point of it — and with good reason. Sagan is a comparatively young man of exceptional talent who as much as anyone in his profession is able to study the mystery of space with the excitement of a visionary. His career holds great promise, some of it already realized.

Yet with all his intellectual curiosity, and behind it the urgent motivation so essential to gaining any idea of what is happening out there, Sagan draws the line at wondering if this planet of ours has ever received visitors from space. Like most of those in his profession, he believes that any study of other worlds and their inhabitants must be conducted from enormous distances. While conceding that technologically, other civilizations may be in advance of ours by thousands of years, Sagan and his fellow scientists then do a mental turnabout by refusing to credit them with travel between stars. Communication, they contend, is feasible only by some means like radio which, to use a figure from your editorial, may mean a one-way span of 300 years.

Obviously it will not be easy to convince these scientists that aliens have made contact with Earth already, and in a way not humanly possible at this point, because that is not how they have planned things. Why set up an elaborate array of radiotelescopes when the intended receiver is only a few miles away? Yet sooner or later as we thrust into space it almost certainly will be realized that physically the problem is that small and its significance proportionately greater, if the other party is in a mood to converse as well as observe.

Surely too much is made of the distance barrier. If other civilizations are in advance of us by thousands of years, and have the urge to explore that we ourselves possess, they would have established space highways long ago enabling them to move from station to station between stars. Reaching out to inhabited areas of the universe, and perhaps taking several lifetimes to traverse even partially, this highway network would eventually enter our own solar system.

Having examined the enigma of unidentified flying objects, and interviewed hundreds of convinced but often publicity-shy witnesses, I believe it is here now. — John Magor, Editor, Canadian UFO Report, R.R. 5, Duncan.

A New TV Show

Now that we have a new season of entertainment and television game shows, the Socreds have decided to come up with a new game, or rather a rerun, of their own called Blame the NDP. If it wasn't so tragic for the people of British Columbia we would find it far more entertaining than any of the comedy, crime and mystery shows. Some of the Socreds from the premier down to Esquimalt MLA Kahl seem to be spending most of their time thinking up new plots to blame on the former government. If they run out of material we will be glad to provide them with more.

A most hilarious farce, produced by Premier Bill Bennett, was the one about investors being afraid to invest in British Columbia because of the strong possibility of a New Democratic Party government being elected the next time around. Government statisties show that bankruptcies were up from 107 in August, 1977 to 141 in August, 1978. That's why investors are afraid.

Another one, this produced by amateur Kahl, is about alleged unfair land freezes imposed because of the "scandalous" and "episode of injustice" land freeze act enacted by the NDP. This accusation in spite of the fact that most of the members of the agricultural land commission were replaced by the Socreds, and that they have been the government for almost three years.

Another of MLA Kahl's capers, early in the term of this government, was when he got up in the legislature brandishing a copy of NDP member's notes, purporting them to be notes intended for the NDP speaker of the House, when they were the government. The whole Socred motley crew could hardly hide their chagrin. That skit must have been funnier than anything the Two Ronnies have ever done.

There is lots more material for the Socreds if they want it. Here is another for them to work on. How can they have a surplus of $140.5 million when there has been massive over-spending in many departments of the government? If there is a surplus perhaps it is due to large increases in taxes and reduction in services which they can blame on the NDP.

The Socred popularity rating for producing slapstick comedy and tragedy is at the top of the poll. As a government, well, I guess the people will give them their rating whenever the premier decides to ask them.

A note for Kahl! I suggest that he has not yet learned that we are only caretakers of this earth and its resources while we are here for a short time, and that we have a mandate to preserve it and its resources as we pass it on to those who are to follow. — W. Stott, 258 Portsmouth Drive.

Californian

It has been a pleasure to read your recent news. It is good to see so many Canadians active before they get their backs up against that hard proverbial wall.

Many of us in the States have watched with concern as a small power group seemingly has attempted to manoeuvre and realign your alliances, allegiances and directions. But it looks like the giant isn't asleep after all.

This seems to be an age where the complainers and vocal minorities get more than the doers, where attitude movers are more important than our products — and with it comes inflation. Unfortunately we, in our country, have often inflated ourselves too.

We here sometimes are a bit greedy (or lazy), letting the government do so much for us. But now and then we seem to catch it in time, and start doing our own jobs ourselves.

Just recently we've tweaked inflation's nose a little here in California (Proposition 13) by not asking the government for as many "gifts" — and we're giving them a little less too! It means we have to do a little more ourselves, but we'll get better and stronger because of it.

Your people and our people have always shared the same ideals and problems. You see we are colonists too — though we have called ourselves pioneers. But then, what's in a name?

We appreciate your great country because in its people we often see ourselves. The both of us are all from such a tough, fierce stock that has been able to endure great hardships to preserve our beliefs of freedom and independence. Unfortunately it is so easy to carelessly forget their price, yet we can't afford to fail at this — for this time there is no other place, so great, that we can go.

Neither of us ever will, of that I'm certain. Now it looks like we both are again getting down to business. So, whatever you do, and however you do it, we wish you well! May our friendship always endure. — Tom Stollenwerk, P.O. Box 1806, El Cajon, Calif.

Make It Legal

I believe it is about time that we stopped arresting our young people for smoking marijuana. I am almost 41 years old, have been a smoker for several years and I think that it is not harmful. Making criminals out of us is harmful. Our courts are full and we are wasting valuable lives, time and money by keeping marijuana illegal. I also believe that we could provide jobs and help ourselves and our environment by growing marijuana here in Canada, harvesting it for medicinal use as well as industry — hemp rope, cloth, paper, seeds and oil too. This would help save our trees and our economy. It's well worth the try.

I tried to grow it in my garden with other herbs and it was stolen. If my corn was stolen, I could report it to the RCMP. It is expensive to buy and one shouldn't have to! I don't like paying my hard-earned taxes to fly helicopters overhead to arrest growers. — Joan Wachtin, Shawnigan Lake.

PEOPLE OF THE LAKE

Human Society: A New Perspective

By RICHARD E. LEAKEY and ROGER LEWIN

Insights into our evolution from ape to human offer important clues to the origins of human society. How did our ancient ancestors survive with each other millions of years ago and what did modern society inherit from the ancient but formative periods in human social relations? Anthropologist Richard Leakey (author of the bestselling Origins) provides answers in the third of a seven-part series from his new book People of the Lake: Mankind and Its Beginnings, co-authored with Roger Lewin.

Skull believed to be of Homo Habilis

The story of human prehistory is basically about the transformation of a small woodland ape-like creature (Ramapithecus) into Homo Habilis (able man), Homo erectus (erect man), and finally into a fully modern human, Homo sapiens (cultural man).

It is the story that spans the past 15 million years of the earth's history, just a tiny fraction of our planet's 4.5-thousand-million-year existence. As the only surviving descendant of that diminutive ape, our tenure here has been very short indeed: fully modern humans emerged a mere few tens of millennia ago.

The most dramatic thing to happen to Ramapithecus is that it learned how to walk upright. It learned how to carry things, to throw accurately, to manipulate small objects with undreamed-of precision, and perhaps even to invent a language of hand gestures.

Walking erect was therefore nothing special for Homo erectus to boast about — hominids had been doing it for eons. But what was special was that Homo erectus had elaborated culture to such a dagree that, for the first time, hominids could escape the climatic constraints of the tropics and live elsewhere as well: migration into cooler climes became possible.

In the tradition of "human" nature, anything that is possible is usually achieved: some time, in excess of one million years ago, bands of African-born Homo erectus made the journey into Asia and then on into Europe, being carried, in all these continents, toward Homo sapiens by a powerful evolutionary momentum.

This special form of primate, who had been conceived in the womb of opportunism, whose infancy was nurtured in a kaleidoscope of contrasting environments, and who, in rising maturity, invented a hunting-and-gathering economy, set out to hunt and gather elsewhere. Not to abandon its native Africa, but to colonize the rest of the world.

If we wish to understand the nature of human nature, we would be foolish to ignore the lessons that contemporary technologically simple societies can teach us. Not that present-day hunters and gatherers — of which there are now just a few hundred thousand in a world population of more than four thousand million — are "fossilized" societies entombed in a primitiveness of time long past. They are modern human beings pursuing a life-style that has its roots deep in the origins of humanity. Such a simple society is the Yanomamo Indian tribe, discovered little more than 10 years ago.

The Yanomamo Indians, whose homes straddle the densely forested border between southern Venezuela and northern Brazil, make their living by a mixture of hunting and gathering and cultivation: they hunt a wide range of animals, from lizards to monkeys (usually with only modest success), and they collect wild mushrooms, roots, nuts, and fruits of the forest; but for the most part they depend on plantains and other vegetables they grow in the village "garden."

We want to know what factors influence the social organization of such a hunting-and-gathering community; what values these people espouse; what skills — intellectual and social — do they need to survive in the hunting-and-gathering economy, and what relationship do they have with the world around them?

The traditional view of hunter-gatherer societies is that they are organized around what anthropologists have been pleased to call "patrilocal bands." There are three basic ingredients in such bands: first, everyone must marry someone from outside the group; second, when women marry they move to their husband's band; and third: the band maintains a strictly marked-out, assiduously defended territory. The over-all impression is of a rigid honeycomb of male-dominated, socially stable bands, or hordes as they are sometimes called, each band surviving on the resources available in its allotted territory.

But, as with most "traditional" views, this idea pays greater service to elegance and to theoretical convenience than it does to the truth. Although some elements of the patrilocal band do apply to hunter-gatherer communities, the notion as stated is too rigid, too inflexible.

The vast majority of hunter-gatherers live in relatively open social groups, and neighboring bands share overlapping, changeable territories. The flexibility of the bands themselves and of the territory they exploit has important social and economic advantages: social tensions can readily be defused; and localized food shortages and surpluses can be coped with to the benefit of many bands sharing overlapping regions. In the jargon phrase of biologists, flexibility is socially and ecologically adaptive.

The network that holds the people together, both within bands and between them, is kinship. And the predominant behaviors that make the whole system run smoothly are sharing and co-operation.

If we try to look back to some unspecified time at a formative period in the early human career, we have to ask more specifically how sharing might have been an attractive prospect in biological terms.

For a start, evolutionary advancement rarely occurs in the midst of a population whose needs and wants are fully provided for. Natural selection has to have some kind of cutting edge, and that cutting edge is usually found slicing away at the fringes of a population where it is a little harder to make a living and where the dangers are a shade greater than in the biologically untroubled middle.

If, say, six million years ago our ancestors could sit back all day and gorge themselves sick on nuts and berries and succulent roots, then we would not be here today pondering on our origins. Some members of the human family may well have been sufficiently lavishly provided for them to lead such a primitive sybaritic life, but undoubtedly many were not. The have-nots were forced to hunt in order to survive; and it was the have-nots in whose interests it would have been to develop a new way of life.

Many explanations of humans' ability to walk upright have invoked hunting as a cause: it is easier to pursue potential prey and wield deadly weapons if you are upright, the argument suggests. But no one who is absolutely honest with himself can justify his voice in support of any one particular theory or the origins of our somewhat unusual way of getting about.

Starting with our heretical premise of early hominids having adopted upright walking for some unknown (and unknowable?) reason, we can set them off in search of hitherto unexploited rich packages of food: meat. But we are not talking about newly feathered fledglings or even a young antelope as potential meals; we're interested in occasional bonanzas — a hippo, perhaps, or a hefty water buffalo.

The prospect of a group of diminutive hominids — perhaps around four feet tall in their stocking feet — setting out to bring down one of these bulky and dangerous animals with their bare hands is perhaps not very convincing. But, with a little luck they would not have had to; enough of these creatures expire naturally or are dispatched by carnivores to provide a relatively rich opportunity for scavenging.

By including substantial amounts of meat in their diet, in addition to fruits, shoots, nuts, berries, etc., our ancestors put themselves in a new league. They were not carnivores in the way of the lions and leopards they stole from; nor were they basic omnivores in the style of chimpanzees and baboons; they were superomnivores, capable of making a good living in what might otherwise have been a demanding environment.

But the really important thing about our ancestral hominids was not what they ate, but how they collected it.

Our ancestors invented an economy in which some individuals collected mainly one type of food while others collected mainly a different type; there was a division of labor, and the products of those various labors were pooled and shared out.

If a division of labor was so important, how was it organized? Again we are guessing, but it is not unreasonable to suggest that, as with all non-agricultural peoples, the meat was the business of the men while the insurance policy was in the hands of the women. Why the division should be so clear-cut is a little puzzling; women with small infants to care for may have been hampered on hunting forays. Perhaps the females' commitment to child care would have prohibited them taking off on hunting excursions. The females were undoubtedly the focus of social life in these hominids, and they usually had a string of offspring of increasing age somewhere close to them.

Pooling the products of separate food quests inevitably implies what anthropologists term "postponed consumption": instead of eating your meal straight off the tree or out of the ground, you gather up a bunch of roots, berries and grubs and take them back to a camp where you meet with other individuals to share and eat the food. Hominids collected food and carried it back to their camp.

Skull of Australopithecus found by Leakey in Kenya

One social consequence of the greater efficiency of the gathering-and-hunting economy in exploiting available energy resources was, almost certainly, more leisure. Meat is an energy-rich source of food, so much so that successful carnivores such as lions and wild dogs spend 20 hours a day simply resting. As our ancestors became more able to satisfy their food requirements easily, through their dual-approach economy that included meat, they too would have had to devote less of their waking hours to an unrelenting food quest. Perhaps two or three million years ago early Homo wasn't as efficient as the modern Yanomamo gatherer-hunters, but it would be surprising if they hadn't enjoyed a good deal of spare time. So the first mixed economy brought with it leisure and the first affluent and altruistic (giving-and-sharing) society.

As social and economic life steadily advanced through the millions upon millions of years, so the network of beneficence and obligation would have become more and more tightly knotted. It was not just food that changed hands with the covert understanding that at some future date the current receiver would become the giver, and the giver the receiver. In the mutually dependent social groups, help would be given, and expected, in every sphere of activity, from babysitting for another's child, to sharing the burden of fashioning someone else's arrowheads.

By helping other people an individual helps himself. Keenly developed reciprocal altruism becomes a powerful force in the success of the species. A social group in which skills are pooled achieves so much more than a collection of individualists. And if a man is especially skilled in manufacturing fine stone tools, let him show others how it is done, or even make tools for others to use. Provided each individual abides by the rules of reciprocal altruism, then the species is set for evolutionary ascendancy.

We are human because our ancestors learned to share their food and their skills in an honored network of obligation. And, undoubtedly, one of the special human skills that was necessary for the greater sophistication of this network was an unusually efficient method of communication: language.

What is Going on Here?

By MICHAEL VALPY

TORONTO — In the neighboring political campaign offices of the lunchpail riding of Broadview, they call it Hollywood Apt.

In Broadview are these ordinary cloth-cap joes about the drudgie job of getting votes for the Oct. 16 election . . . no drama, whoops, hollers, no talk of anyone putsching his party leader or gliding into the cabinet if he gets elected. Color Broadview grey.

Glitter, glamor, sound, fury, money, lights, cameras, women dressed by Creed's, pushing-shoving attention of the national press, carloads of backroom boys, limousines of Ottawa luminaries. Razzmatazz. The Big Game. Hollywood. David Crombie, ex-Tiny Perfect Mayor of Toronto, up against John Evans, brilliant ex-president of the University of Toronto and freshest comrade of the upper Liberal councils.

Unfortunately.

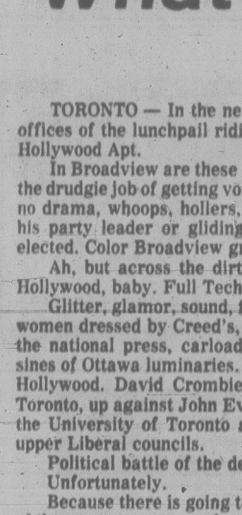
Because there is going to be a loser. That's the worst of the wastage system of our politics. The Parliament of Canada needs both these men; the Liberals and Conservatives need both of them; the voters would like them . . . and they're only going to get one. David Crombie.

A local columnist the other day was writing about John Evans being "loose-bowelled" with fear of losing.

Excessive and unfair. But Liberals can read polls as well as Conservatives. Interviewed about his party's hopes for the province's seven byelection campaigns, Senator Royce Frith, the Liberals' Ontario campaign chairman, did not even mention Rosedale.

(As for the over-all picture, no words could be better than the senator's own: "By all the indicators . . . we are not in trouble except to the extent that the opinion polls, when you level them out taking into account a Quebec discount, the chant of the thing is that these are not great times for us, that's all there is to it.")

It is autumn dusk in the apartment zone of midtown Toronto, the central part of Rosedale riding — the transition zone between the above-Bloor Street millionaires and tres confortable upper middle class of Rosedale and Moore Park neighborhoods in the riding's north end, and the poor, the transient and the losers of the public housing developments and slums of the south end.



EVANS

CROMBIE
. . . beneficiary

John Evans arrives to canvass at an apartment block that backs on to Maple Leaf Gardens. He has spent the afternoon in the riding's north end. He is candid.

"They are three-to-one against me up there. It is the hatred of Trudeau. You wouldn't believe it . . . this irrational hatred. They are calling him communist, homosexual, pervert. You see these wealthy homes, the Mercedes in the drive-ways, and this hate spewing out. It is so irrational."

Even after months of campaigning, the experience had disturbed Dr. Evans. Who wouldn't be disturbed by it?

Here is the cool academic, the pragmatic administrator, the scientist, the medical researcher — confronted by irrationality. "You ask them why," he says, "and they have no hard answers. They say, oh, he's running the country into the ground. Or, oh, he's driven all the men of political talent out of his cabinet . . . men like James Richardson . . ."

James Richardson? Two-sticks Jimmy?

So here is the sad spectacle of perhaps the most attractive political candidate any party could find, almost compelled to campaign for election by repudiating his party and his party leader.

He says it is mainly in the wealthy sections of the riding (with one-third of the riding's population) that he finds the Trudeau hatred. Here in the middle zones it exists, too, if more politely — when people tell him firmly, no they are not going to vote for him, they say it is because of Mr. Trudeau.

So Dr. Evans' approach to the voters goes like this:

"Now this is a byelection, so it's not going to change the government. But I'm the only candidate who can actually serve in the government, and have influence on the government. I'm going to go in there and be a fresh and independent voice, and here in my brochure are some of the things I want the goverment to do, and the changes I want to see . . ."

Campaigning with Dr. Evans is Margaret Campbell, a pro of political pros and Liberal member of the Ontario legislature for the provincial riding of St. George's which flops over this section of Rosedale. Mrs. Campbell goes merrily beyond Dr. Evans's approach. . . .

To another voter: "If you want to see about Mr. Trudeau this time, you've got to have a strong voice in there that he'll listen to. Now when it comes to a general election, that's another matter. . . ."

It's deception.

It's the same kind of deception going on in David Crombie's headquarters — he's not saying too much about Joe Clark.

Why do our politicians, in one of the most well-educated countries on earth, have to say these things to the voters? What is the basis for the hatred of the prime minister, for the contempt for the leader of the Opposition?

What is going on?

Curtis Advises Regions to Slow

Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis has issued a warning to the province's 28 regional districts not to undertake any expansion pending the current review of the regional government system.

In a memo to the chairman of all the regions, Curtis said it has come to his attention several regional districts are in the process of adding to their staffs, implying "significant administrative growth."

"I trust that you will respond to this letter by approaching any major prospective staffing or spending commitments with the utmost caution," he wrote.

The Region Review Committee studying all aspects of regional government is expected to hand its report to Curtis in a month or six weeks.

At the annual Union of B.C. Municipalities convention in Penticton last month, Curtis hinted major changes are needed in regional governments.

On the weekend, Delta Socred MLA Walter Davidson criticized the Greater Vancouver Regional District for going ahead with its plans to build a new $4 million headquarters.

Curtis' letter may be aimed at the same project.

Davidson, meanwhile, is going after Delta council to put an end to the project through a section of the Municipal Act which empowers a member council to appeal regional decisions to the inspector of municipalities.

Locally the Capital Region has recently purchased its own building and the adjacent building which had been gutted by fire.

Tenders to renovate the gutted building were returned to the CRD just last week.

Record Sales for U.S. Weapons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Preliminary figures show that U.S. military sales abroad in the fiscal year just ended hit an all-time high of $13.7 billion despite President Carter's pledge to restrain arms trade.

Although the total is about $500 million higher than the administration had estimated last January, the Pentagon figures show Carter will just meet his self-imposed "ceiling" to reduce to $8.55 billion sales of weapons in the Middle East and other regions where specific U.S. arms agreements do not apply.

Overall, when weapons and non-weapons transactions are included, the Middle East remains the biggest U.S. military customer.

Weapons sales under the "ceiling" were the only category that showed a reduction from 1977.

Defense officials acknowledged the administration carefully timed its last 1978 weapons sales and their acceptance by foreign nations to come as close to the limit as possible.

They said that will allow maximum manoeuvring room under whatever ceiling is established for 1979. Carter has promised another ceiling for the new fiscal year to further cut sales in this category, but there has been no indication whether he will attempt to match last year's reduction of 8 percent.

The $13.7 billion total — it is still subject to bookkeeping adjustments although fiscal year 1978 expired Sept. 30 — compares with $11.4 billion in total military sales last year.

Although the $8.55 billion ceiling for last year includes multi-billion dollar transactions in the Middle East, it does not reflect all U.S. military business in that region because "non-weapon" activities such as military construction were exempted from it by the administration.

The Pentagon's estimates showed that non-weapons activities actually more than doubled in the Middle East last year, to $2.8 billion from $1.2 billion the year before. Middle East weapons sales dropped from $7.3 billion to $6.9 billion.

Saudi Arabia was the year's largest customer in all categories, buying more than $4.1 billion worth of weapons, construction and training. Iran was second at $2.6 billion and Israel, which gets a 50 percent break on payments, received $1.5 billion worth.

The NATO allies, Japan, Australia and New Zealand, which are excluded from Carter's restrictions on weapons sales, came close to doubling their purchases in this category.

Platinum Coins

TORONTO (CP) — The 1980 Moscow Olympic coins will be made of platinum, marking the first time the precious metal has been used in the 2,500-year history of Olympic coins.

Seems to Trudeau He Just Can't Win

VANCOUVER (CP) — When he lets others make decisions, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau said Monday, he's accused of lacking leadership. When he takes forthright action, he's called autocratic.

Either way, the prime minister said during a taped television interview on British Columbia Television, he can't win.

Trudeau, interviewed by commentator Jack Webster, said the image of being arrogant is the price he pays for fulfilling a leader's role.

"So I say, 'Okay, let's hear what other people say on this particular hot potato' and then they say I'm not showing leadership," said Trudeau.

The Queen, he said, has visited Canada nine times in the 10 years he has been prime minister, yet he is accused of planning to abolish the monarchy.

"Phony prophets" in the media have been predicting an election announcement all year and when they were proven wrong, "you say I'm wishy-washy," Trudeau said.

Asked if he feels a little guilty about not providing strong leadership, Trudeau said when he announced his series of spending cuts without first consulting his cabinet ministers "people said I was showing too much leadership."

He said his Liberal government has created 2.3 million jobs in the past 10 years, more than double the job-creation rate in the United States and "faster than any (other) Western society."

The drop in value of the Canadian dollar "means the U.S. is able to buy our goods at bargain-basement prices and that means jobs for us."

Canada had a $500-million trade deficit when the Canadian dollar was worth more than the American dollar, Trudeau said, but last year Canada had a $2-billion trade surplus "and this year it's going to be $4 billion."

"The consequence (of the falling dollar) is that foreigners will be buying in Canada and Canadians will be buying in Canada."

Asked if Quebec's threat to separate from Canada is frightening away potential foreign investors, Trudeau said "any speculator worth his salt" can see that separatism will not take place.

Trustee Smith To Run Again

Greater Victoria school trustee Bud Smith announced Monday he will seek a second term in November.

Smith is the only trustee to date to declare candidacy for one of the five seats available on the board this fall.

Smith, in a report on September enrolment to the board, said the district has lost just over 1,000 pupils since last year, equivalent to the enrolment of five schools in the district.

Elementary enrolment is down by 4.2 per cent and secondary enrolment decreased by 3.8 per cent last year.

Kindergarten enrolment dropped 7.3 per cent, indicating the trend will continue for some time to come, Smith said.

Surrounding schools have absorbed the enrolment from Tolmie Elementary, closed due to declining enrolment, with little problem.

But Margaret Jenkins, scheduled to pick up the Bank Street program after that school was closed in June, has lost 23 students this year, the equivalent of one teacher.

Plea Issued For Tsitika

A resolution asking for a further extension of the Tsitika watershed logging moratorium has been unaninously endorsed by a committee fighting to save the wilderness valley.

The committee is supported by the Fishermen and Allied Workers Union and environmental and recreational organizations as well as the Mount Douglas High School Student Committee.

In a statement, the committee said it rejects the Tsitika Watershed Integration Resource plan which calls for large-scale clearcuts up to 600 acres in size.

The watershed has been described as the last unspoiled river valley on the east side of Vancouver Island.

Logging practices would degrade the fisheries resource and wildlife of the Tsitika, the committee said.

The committee also said it rejects the concept of integration of resource management as it has been developed for the watershed.

"This concept has accepted the viewpoint that the forest industry is the prime user of B.C. forest resources. Such a viewpoint means that fisheries, wildlife, environmental and recreational interests in the watershed are reduced to pleading for concessions from the logging companies in order to defend their respective jurisdictions."

"The committee maintains the position that integrated resource management or multiple use of the forests, can only mean participation as equals by forestry, fisheries, wildlife, environmental and recreational interests in resolving the main problems concerning the use of crown (public) forest lands," it added.

An excellent case can be made for completely preserving the watershed, the committee said.

"The Tsitika is a river valley which has remained practically unchanged and virtually unlogged since historic times," it said.

SACRIFICES REQUIRED: NIELSEN

CRANBROOK (CP) — Environment Minister Jim Nielsen said Monday that everyone must make some sacrifices for the good of the province.

Nielsen told members of the East Kootenay regional district that such a philosophy could mean that the region might someday have to sacrifice land to the Kootenay River diversion project.

The minister, however, added that the provincial government, which has the final say on whether the British Columbia Hydro proposal will go ahead, has not yet made a final decision on the project, which would see Kootenay waters diverted to increase water flow and power potential of the Columbia River.

Esquimalt Bid Turned Down

Esquimalt council Monday rejected an application by Gorge Vale Golf Course requesting that property along Colville Road be removed from the Agricultural Land Reserve for use as a townhouse development.

It also endorsed a recommendation that the municipally-owned property known as Highrock Park, as well as two municipally owned properties between Rockcrest Avenue and Highrock Avenue, be designated parkland under a bylaw.

In other business, council refused to endorse a parks and recreation commission request for a $18,000 lighting system for the parking lot at the rear of the Sports Centre.

But council agreed to make it a priority item in next year's budget after Ald. Ken Hill said inadequate parking-lot lighting and subsequent vandalism had been a problem for more than five years.

Lighting would curb incidences of vandalism, he said.

Council's main reason for rejecting the lighting proposal was because the municipality's contingency fund was almost depleted after Yarrows Industries recently won an assessment appeal forcing the municipality to repay $25,000.

BENNETT TAKES TO THE ROAD

Included in the outing will be two Cabinet meetings — one in Quesnel Wednesday, and the other in Fort Nelson Saturday.

Today the mission, which includes Bennett's wife Audrey, whistle-stops through Squamish and Pemberton, meets with children and town officials in Lillooet and attends a function in Williams Lake.

Wednesday the train hits Quesnel, Prince George and detours to Fort St. James for the night.

Thursday the group visits Mackenzie, Chetwynd and Fort St. John before embarking on the 12-hour northern jaunt to Fort Nelson Friday.

Trudeau Must Take Blame, Says Clark

TORONTO (CP) — The weakness of the Canadian dollar on world markets represents an international vote of non-confidence in the government of Prime Minister Trudeau, Opposition Leader Joe Clark said Monday.

Speaking to an appreciative audience of 1,350 at a Canadian Club luncheon, Clark said Trudeau's policies of intervention in the private sector and adoption of programs he once condemned, such as wage and price controls, have given the governing Liberals and consequently Canada a reputation of being unreliable.

The Progressive Conservative leader called on the federal cabinet to produce a budget this month, not some time before Christmas as Finance Minister Jean Chretien has promised.

He said the government's economic policies have been incoherent and aimed at redistributing wealth instead of generating new wealth.

"That is a prescription for new economic disaster," he said.

"The priority — for at least the next five years — must be to enlarge the economic pie, not slice it into thinner and thinner pieces."

Clark won applause when he reiterated his party's commitment to stimulate the private sector as the best way to encourage economic growth.

He said a Conservative government would cut federal personal income taxes by at least $2 billion, particularly among low- and middle-income families.

He also pledged a virtual freeze on hiring in public services for three years, 25-per-cent cuts in spending on government contracts and public relations and the sale of some Crown agencies to private business.

Clark said Trudeau owes Canadians a new cabinet before Parliament resumes next month.

"Mr. Trudeau's own back benchers describe it as the weakest cabinet in Canadian history," he said.

"The most dramatic symbol of the weakness is that Otto Lang has three portfolios, and Andre Ouellet two."

Clark promised, if elected, to strengthen the role of the House of Commons and the rights and resources of parliamentary committees, allowing them to undertake inquiries on their own initiative and not just by government order.

New laws on freedom of information would be vital to a move away from an elitist government, he said.

★ Dollar Nears Second Lowest Ever

ing binge Monday. It was also spurred by the Bank of Canada's failure to increase the interest rate on loans to chartered banks—a move which many had been expecting during the weekend.

A growing gap between Canadian and American money-lending rates has been inciting many investors to place their cash in the U.S. The result is a lower demand for Canadian dollars and the subsequent drop in the currency's value.

In announcing the huge deficit, which has also weakened the dollar, the finance department said that in the first five months of the year, the government spent $18.718 billion while collecting revenues of $12.669 billion. The fiscal year begins April 1.

Last year, there was a deficit of $3.857 billion in the first five months on revenues of $12.429 billion and budgetary spending of $16.286 billion.

Last year, the total deficit was $10.03 billion.

Finance Minister Jean Chretien has predicted a deficit of less than $12 billion this year. He accused Progressive Conservative leader Joe Clark last week of being "extremely irresponsible" for suggesting the deficit would climb to $18 billion. (Clark Monday continued his attack on the government's fiscal policies. See page 8).

The figures for the first five months show that while the federal revenues rose by only about $240 million, spending increased by nearly $2.5 billion.

In August, revenues totalled $2.663 billion while spending was $3.465 billion, for a deficit of $802 million.

The deficit in August, 1977, was $565 million, arising from revenues of $2.694 billion and spending of $3.259 billion.

Lower income tax collections in the first five mnnths of this year compared with those of 1977-78 bit heavily into the revenue collected by the federal government.

Total income tax collected this year in the first five months stood at $7.354 billion while last year it totalled $7.54 billion.

The income tax take was down on both the personal and corporation side.

strategic Karantina bridge to the east of the capital.

Sarkis had gone on nationwide radio almost exactly 24 hours earlier with a pledge to unveil an emergency "security plan" and name a coalition cabinet to restore calm in the middle easts most dangerous flashpoint.

But within two hours after the latest fighting Began, the weapons duels approached the intensity of early Monday — heavier even than during the 1975-76 Lebanese civil war.

The renewed battle triggered a number of fires in the Christian east of the capital. An oil storage installation near the mainly Armenian industrial suburb of Dora was ablaze.

Dora is near Karantina bridge, scene of off-and-on battles between Syrian and militia forces since Saturday.

The new bombardments began in mid-afternoon following a night of only sporadic shooting and shelling — a relatively calm aftermath to the fiercest fighting ever in the devastated capital Monday.

Witnesses said Syrian positions near the main Damascus highway in the hills just east of the city appeared to be shelling Christian right-wing areas.

The right-wing Phalangist radio said that in Monday's heavy fighting Syrian forces poured an estimated 9,000 shells in two hours on an area housing 80,000 people.

The rocket, artillery, mortar and machine-gun fire left at least 39 Lebanese dead and 220 wounded Monday. Syrian casualty figures were not released.

The radio said Syrian troops were attempting to "free 15 Syrian soldiers" trapped by Christian rightist forces in east Beirut Monday.

★ Pact Offer Accepted

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Egypt and Israel have accepted President Carter's invitation to send ministers to Washington next week to start talks on a peace treaty.

White House spokesman Jody Powell said Monday that Carter suggested a starting date of October 12 in the invitations addressed to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

The United States will be represented by State Secretary Cyrus Vance, he said.

Court Topples 2 Sask. Taxes

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada ruled today that Saskatchewan's potash pro-rationing is unconstitutional, but refused to award damages to a producer who challenged the process.

The high court, in a 7-to-0 decision, accepted the constitutional arguments of Central Canada Potash Co. Ltd. and overturned a Saskatchewan Court of Appeal ruling that pro-rationing legislation is valid.

It added, however, that Saskatchewan government officials were enforcing a law they thought was constitutional. Therefore, it dismissed Central Canada's claim for $1.5 million damages.

In a related decision — also 7-to-0 — the Supreme Court ruled that Saskatchewan must pay interest on millions of dollars collected under its illegal mineral income tax and crude oil surcharge. Legislation establishing those charges was ruled unconstitutional by the court in November last year.

The latter case was brought by Canadian Industrial Gas and Oil Ltd., now owned by Norcen Energy Resources Ltd. of Toronto. CIGOL had paid about $9 million in the extra charges.

)ther oil companies are affected by the precedent and it is estimated that they paid a total $500 million in illegal taxes. The interest on $500 million this year alone would be $50 million and would have to be paid on money collected since the tax and surcharge legislation was passed in 1974.

The pro-rationing legislation was passed by Saskatchewan in 1969 when overproduction and falling prices threatened the potash industry. The plan involved setting production quotas and a minimum price.

Central Canada Potash sued and won $1.5 million in damages and a declaration that the pro-rationing legislation was unconstitutional. The Saskatchewan appeal court then wiped that out.

The federal government intervened in the case to protect its constitutional powers. It and Central Canada potash argued that the pro-rationing affected interprovincial and international trade because almost all Saskatchewan potash is exported.

Ottawa has exclusive legislative authority over interprovincial and international trade.

FISHERMEN TURN UP

Two Sidney men reported overdue on a fishing trip to D'Arcy and James Islands Monday turned up unharmed today after spending the night adrift in Juan de Fuca Strait in a 20-foot fishing boat.

A spokesman for the Pacific Rescue Centre said a search for the two men was launched around midnight involving the Coast Guard cutter, Racer. An Armed Forces Buffalo plane joined the search at daybreak.

But the two men, whose names have not been released, managed to make it ashore off Gordon Head on their own shortly after 10 a.m.

The spokesman said the fishing boat's engine had malfunctioned late Monday.

TOWN TALK

Nothing complicated about the humble hot dog, right?

That's not what those attending a recent meeting of the Willows elementary school PTA - or Home-School Association as they are called these days - found out.

The PTA has been holding a Hotdog day once a month and using the revenue from the sales to defray costs.

But selling the "dogs" has met with some opposition from the more nutritious-conscious parents and the recent PTA meeting proved to be an occasion for them to do battle with those who don't really get that excited about it.

The results of a report into the hotdog were read out generally backing the PTA's point that although the hotdogs are not terribly nutritious they probably aren't that harmful.

But then those opposed spoke of the nasty nitrites in the hotdog and the whole thing became slightly comic when it appeared obvious that there were some heated opinions both pro and con, all over a seemingly inocuous thing like serving hotdogs at school once a month.

Was life simpler in the days when nobody cared?

The course of true love, 'tis said, rarely runs true.

But it's a bit much when a canine comes between a couple.

Vancouver veterinarian Dr. Alexander Sprachta says while he comes across only a handful of jealous-dog cases a year, he believes the problem is more widespread.

What happens is that dogs are starting to act like jealous lovers. Even to the extent of biting.

If the man pays too much attention to the dog, the pooch tends to behave in a jealous fashion when the man pays attention to his girlfriend or wife. Or vice-versa.

The revelation that canines are cutting in on couples came from a U.S. vet, one Dr. Michael Fox who says he gets dozens of letters seeking his advice.

What a difference a couple of weeks make.

Remember last month when Premier Bill Bennett was scurrying around hinting an election would be called because there was a lack of investor confidence?

Well, everyone can relax. The moneymen have now apparently regained trust in the future of this province.

Bennett, speaking in Kelowna, told the local chamber of commerce Monday that investor confidence in B.C. has returned. No explanation of why. It's just back.

There are those among us who might say it only came back because the Socreds determined that B.C. voters are too wise to fall for that old ploy about the disastrous effect of an NDP return to power.

Still, it's nice to know we're A-Okay again.

Saanich artist Ted Tilby has finished a portrait of John Diefenbaker and hopes the work will be presented to the former leader of the federal Conservative party towards the end of the month.

Tilby, of 716 Eastridge Pl., was commissioned by the Tories about a year ago to do the portrait and admits he should have had it done sooner.

But he has had other things on his mind as well, like getting production going on a system he invented for deriving lumber, alcohol and animal feed from sugar cane.

But that's another story.

As for the portrait, Tibly is hoping it will be presented to Diefenbaker within the next couple of weeks by current party leader Joe Clark.

Minnie Mtn. Conflict Probe

A bylaw approving a land-use contract for development of the Minnie Mountain property at Ten Mile Point by Broadmead Farms Ltd. was given three readings by Saanich council Monday night.

But the bylaw will remain in limbo until Saanich obtains an independent legal opinion on several questions concerning the validity of the land-use contract itself and of the council vote last week which gave it initial approval.

The municipality will ask the executive of the Law Society of B.C. to recommend a lawyer who will advise council whether, as Ald. John Mika suggests, there was a possible conflict of interest in last week's public hearing where aldermen approved the development proposal by a 5—4 vote.

The eight questions council wants answered all basically centre on two allegations by Mika:

—That the legal firm Pearlman and Lindholm which provides legal services on contract to Saanich and negotiated the land-use contract with Broadmead Farms has also acted for the developers and another company, R. & M. Development Co. Ltd., in which Broadmead general manager Gordon Rolston is a principal;

—That Ald. David Paterson, employed by a management company which provides administrative services to Pearlman and Lindholm, may have been in a conflict-of-interest situation which prejudiced his right to vote last week.

After two hours of debate which included at least two conflicting legal opinions and some procedural confusion, council accepted Mika's motion to seek an independent legal opinion.

But his suggestion that council approach former deputy attorney-general David Vickers was amended to read that the Law Society of B.C. be asked to recommend a solicitor.

Among the questions to be answered by the independent source will be whether Pearlman and Lindholm violated its trust to Saanich by negotiating the contract with a firm it represents; whether Paterson violated his fiduciary status as an alderman and/or his oath of office by voting last week after the question of propriety had been raised; and whether a yes answer to such questions nullifies the land-use contract and last week's favorable council decision.

Mika tabled copies of several Land Registry documents which, he said, show clearly that Pearlman and Lindholm has acted both for R. & M. Development and Broadmead Farms Ltd. in various land transactions.

In such a situation, he argued, the legal firm could be "punished" by Rolston, the Broadmead principal, if Pearlman and Lindholm were to displease him in the way it drafted a land-use contract with Saanich.

Conversely, he said, "They (Pearlman and Lindholm) are also in the position of being rewarded if Rolston is pleased with their efforts."

Mika quoted extracts from a work by Ian Rogers, an expert on Canadian municipal law, defining conflict of interest as extending beyond the mere question of direct or indirect financial gain.

One extract said in part: "It is not essential to find that a vote was affected by personal interest, but the mere possibility that it might be so affected is sufficient to disentitle the member from voting and to incur the penalties if he does so.

"The principle applies, therefore, not only where there is a pecuniary interest but also where there is a reasonable probability that the interested councillor is likely to be biased."

Lawyer and North Saanich Ald. Lawrence Fast, addressing council at the invitation of the Cadboro Bay Residents Association, said he believes there is a strong possibility of a conflict of interest on the two basic points raised by Mika.

If any elected official suspects he might be in a conflict-of-interest situation he should err on the side of caution and not take part in the matter concerned, Fast said.

But a conflicting written opinion was presented by associate municipal solicitor Christopher Nation, who said to have been disqualified from voting Paterson "would have to have some sort of direct or indirect financial interest in Broadmead Farms Ltd."

Paterson himself repeated his statement last week denying that he has any financial involvement with either the project, the developer or any company associated with Broadmead or any of its principals.

Paterson claimed a similarly tenuous line of reasoning could be followed to accuse virtually every member of council of conflict of interest.

He said the current controversy has already seriously affected his integrity as an alderman and even if the independent legal opinion subsequently refutes the charges, his reputation in the community will remain tainted to some degree.

"Win, lose or draw there will be a small black cloud hanging over my head forever," he added.

Under such circumstances he is forced to question whether he can continue in public office.

The bylaw approving the land-use contract must be approved by January, 1979, but council will request that the legal opinion be available well before that date — by Nov. 6, nearly two weeks before the Nov. 18 municipal election.

Layoff Fears Spark Fire Safety Concern

Oak Bay fire department's deputy chief and four assistant chiefs have expressed concern about the level of fire protection in the municipality if they lose four firemen.

The five — deputy chief C.A. Rivers and assistants R.B. Fisher, L.W. Dodd, R.H. Burley and E.D.Knapp — issued the following statement Monday:

"All the senior shift officers and the chief fire prevention officer in Oak Bay are deeply concerned about the loss of manpower in the ranks. We have in the Oak Bay Fire Dept. had the same number of firefighters since 1969.

"There is no way that we as officers can maintain the same level of fire protection that is now in effect if the crew is reduced by 12.9 per cent."

Oak Bay council decided last week to lay off three of the 30 firefighters Dec. 31 and not to fill a vacant position.

The firemen say if the cuts are carried out the initial response to fires will have to be by five-man crews rather than the normal six.

"They are my bosses," he said of the mayor and aldermen. "I do what they tell me."

However, he did say that no fire chief in his right mind would agree to having his staff cut.

Fire Chief Fred Leeke said today he does not want to get embroiled in the issue at this stage because of his position.

He said he hopes to meet with Mayor Brian Smith to discuss the planned layoffs.

VICTORIA POVERTY

It's Invisible But It's There

Unlike many large cities, Victoria has no glaring slums and poverty is virtually invisible to the average citizen.

"But there is poverty in Victoria, much more than meets the eye," says Linda Manthorpe, a social assistance worker with the St. Vincent de Paul Society. The society is one of more than 20 agencies helped by the United Way campaign.

"The problem is that most people, if they think at all about the poor and jobless, believe they are well looked after by government departments, such as the human resources ministry or unemployment insurance," she says.

Manthorpe said the opposite is true.

If Victorians could only look into the case loads of charitable institutions they would be shocked by the number of people who depend on charity for survival.

She cites as an example people who have quit their jobs or have been fired.

"Human resources won't help the former even though there may be perfectly good reasons why a person has quit his job, such as ill health," she said.

"The ministry ignores the human element.

United Way

The United Way is off to a fast and promising start in its second week of the month-long campaign. The drive to collect funds to help more than a score of agencies devoted to helping people has collected $157,000 of its $926,500 target and officials hope the 17 per cent brought in so far means the drive will go over the top.

★

"Then there are people who are fired. They have to wait six weeks before they are entitled to unemployment insurance. These people, like the former, are referred to us."

She said social assistance granted to single parents also is insufficent to look after their needs and many depend on the society for additional help.

"Do you think a mother with four children can live on $420 a month?" she asked.

"Then there are people who are entitled to social assistance from human resources but there is so much red tape and running around that it may take weeks before something comes through.

And although human resources regulations say the ministry will help people to get jobs to tide them over until they get paid, it does no such thing and usually refers them to the society.

Apart from providing emergency assistance to anyone in need at any time, Manthorpe said volunteers help in home visiting, a follow-up to people who come to the Social Concern office of the society.

They visit the William Head Prison, assist the local soup kitchen and give help to children of single-parent families who apply for assistance.

The society also provides clothing, food, home furnishings and milk to needy families.

"This is why we depend on United Way," she said. "We need public support to help the hundreds of people who come to us for assistance."

Marguerite Grievance Launched

The Canadian Merchant Service Guild has initiated a grievance over the 60-day suspension last week of William Frame, a relief captain on the Princess Marquerite.

Frame was suspended following an incident aboard the vessel the previous weekend which resulted in about 1,000 U.S. visitors to Victoria being temporarily stranded.

"We're going all the way on this one," union business agent Leo Gray said today. "We'll go to arbitration if necessary.

"We're confident we'll win."

Gray said the union is going to insist that Frame not only be reinstated but reimbursed for time lost as well.

Frame had been instrumental in resolving the dispute which centered around a firemen's refusal to fire a boiler.

$2,000 Tab For Vandalism

Victoria council's community relations committee today recommended an alarm system be installed at the Victoria West community centre to combat vandalism.

Ald. John Hayes told the committee about $2,000 damage has been done to the centre in recent months by neighborhood juveniles.

"We have had a disturbing amount of hooliganism around there," said Hayes.

The incidents include broken windows, vandalism of furniture, fixtures and equipment, theft of a small amount of money and theft of a public announcement system.

In order to discourage further acts of burglary and vandalism Hayes recommended the installation of a security alarm system. Installation of the system would cost about $600 with a rental of $45 per month.

The committee members agreed to the expenditure.

$31,500 GRANT MAY BE LAST

Economic Development Minister Don Phillips today approved a second $31,500 grant to the Greater Victoria Economic Development Commission but hinted it will be the last.

The commission, established in 1977 to promote the orderly economic development of the Greater Victoria region, received a similar grant last year to cover its first year of operation.

The other half of the $63,000 operating cost is borne by the four core municipalities.

"Although I approved this payment again this year I firmly believe that eventually full financial support must come from the region," Phillips said.

The grant should not be construed as an ongoing process, he said, adding that in such instances provincial support should be considered strictly seed money.

'NO B.C. ELECTION'

KELOWNA (CP) — Responding to speculation about a provincial election this fall, Premier Bill Bennett said Monday the only elections on the horizon are those for British Columbia municipalities.

Speaking to the chamber of commerce in this Okanagan city, Bennett also said that B.C.'s economy is improving and he slammed the federal government's "foolish and short-sighted" economic policy.

In his only other reference to elections, Bennett urged people to get out and vote for civic elections Nov. 18.

Commenting on the economy, Bennett said investor confidence in B.C. had returned, but added that British Columbians and other Canadians must continue to work hard.

The premier later travelled to Castlegar in southeastern B.C. to officially open the $14 million Castlegar-Salmo Highway with provincial Highways Minister Alex Fraser before a group of 500 residents.

VANCOUVER (CP) — An eight-week lockout of 300 nonteaching employees at six East Kootenay school districts will continue after a group of workers at one district rejected a proposed agreement Monday, said a spokesman for the districts' bargaining agent.

Employees at Fernie school district rejected the agreement in voting Monday, while their counterparts at districts of Fernie, Cranbrook, Windermere, Creston-Kaslo, Golden and Kimberly overwhelmingly approved it.

WILLIAMS LAKE (CP) — Placer Development Ltd. is ending Wednesday an 18-week lockout at its Gibraltar copper mine near this interior British Columbia community, but the dispute is far from over, union officials say.

The Canadian Association of Industrial, Mechanical and Allied Workers will start a strike the moment the lockout is lifted, union regional vice-president Peter Cameron said Monday.

The major stumbling block to an agreement is no longer the contractual issue but the voting procedure on the new company offer.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Most Vancouver area parents believe school boards should create smaller classes rather than lay off teachers while student enrolment declines, says a survey commissioned by the British Columbia Teachers' Federation.

RICHMOND (CP) — Five candidates are in the running for the Burnaby-Richmond-Delta riding in the Oct. 16 federal byelection after nominations closed Monday:

Tom Siddon, 37, a University of British Columbia professor, is looking to retain the seat for the Conservatives.

The Liberal candidate is Tony Schmand, 52, a Delta alderman and manager of a Native development company. Mercia Stickney, 45, will represent the NDP; Ernie Lecours, 67, the Social Credit party and Homer Stevens, a fisherman, the Communist Party.

Forest-Union Pact Aired Too Early?

VANCOUVER (CP) — The release of a peace treaty agreement between the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) and the Canadian Paperworkers Union (CPU) Monday may have sparked another dispute between the rival forest unions.

The nine-point agreement aimed at ending the raiding feud between B.C.'s two major forest unions — and at leading to their merger — was made public at the IWA regional convention.

Art Gruntman, CPU regional vice-president, said he was "surprised and disappointed that it was done this way" because the agreement had not been finalized by the IWA eastern region.

"The CPU has members, too, and I have very clearly held off making any announcement until the IWA finalizes it," Gruntman said.

"This is creating some real problems for me. I don't think that's the way to go about building a relationship where we should trust one another."

Representatives from the two unions met with Dennis McDermott, Canadian Labor Congress president, in July to discuss their deteriorating relationship.

Under the pact outlined in a report from IWA western regional officers, both unions agree not to raid each other, not to assist another union to raid each other and not to make derogatory remarks about each other. A working group is to formulate a program of co-ordinated bargaining.

In addition, "it is the mutually expressed desire of the parties ... that the aforementioned activities will lead to the eventual merger of the two organizations."

B.C. Tel Merger Okayed

OTTAWA (CP) — The British Columbia Telephone Co. will be permitted to merge with the independent Okanagan Telephone Co., despite the province deploring such a move, the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission said Monday.

"... the merger would remove a significant telephone operation from provincial regulation rather than extending the provincial regulatory role," said the government in a message to the commission Sept. 1.

A CRTC decision said B.C. Tel has been empowered to purchase all of Okanagan's property and that it will spend $24 million to expand the company's facilities and service. But the decision did not say how much the merger will cost.

"Nevertheless, the government wishes to make it quite clear that it seeks no special consideration by either the federal or provincial regulatory commission ... because of its stated intention to negotiate revised regulatory arrangements ..."

The decision did not say what those arrangements will be.

The CRTC had been asked by B.C. Tel for permission to merge with Okanagan April 26 and the decision said that because B.C. Tel owned all but 454 of the company's 473,966 shares the takeover will be in the public interest.

Dope Trial Looks Like a Long One

VANCOUVER (CP) — A complex cocaine smuggling conspiracy trial that could last as long as six months opened Monday in British Columbia Supreme Court after one of 15 defendants was granted a separate hearing.

All 14 accused entered not guilty pleas Monday to the charge that they conspired to traffic in cocaine in Vancouver and other parts of B.C. between Jan. 1, 1978, and April 12, 1978. The Crown also lists 21 "unindicted co-conspirators" who are not on trial.

A separate trial for George William Garthwaite was granted by Mr. Justice Thomas Berger after prosecutor Howard Rubin agreed with defence counsel Joe Wood that Garthwaite is involved in only a fraction of the evidence to be presented.

Rubin estimated that it would take only a day to 1½ days for Garthwaite's hearing, while the main trial is broadly forecast to take from four to six months.

Kidnap Charges Read

VANCOUVER (CP) — The trial of five persons charged with kidnapping a bank manager's wife began Monday in British Columbia Supreme Court.

Emil Joseph Mantha, Leslie Roger McKinney, Dino Franco Pitton and Leah Ann Slemmer are charged with kidnapping Mrs. Haley from her Delta home May 12 and holding her for $100,000 ransom.

Crown Counsel Roy Jaques said evidence in the trial — set for three weeks — will be that the bizarre episode began at 9:30 a.m. and ended about 1:30 p.m. the same day when Mrs. Haley was released physically unharmed in a Vancouver lane.

Doctor's Petition Dismissed

VANCOUVER (CP) — A petition by a Maple Ridge doctor to halt an inquiry committee's investigation of allegations against him has been dismissed in British Columbia Supreme Court.

Dr. Donald J. Gallagher had alleged that the conduct of Dr. P. O. Lehmann, the inquiry committee chairman, caused him to have real and serious apprehension about the impartiality of the hearing.

The inquiry is to review allegations that Dr. Gallagher over-serviced patients and billed for services not performed.

Glacier Swallows Popular Ice Cave

VANCOUVER (CP) — One of Canada's most-photographed ice caves has been swallowed up by the advancing Illecillewaet glacier in Glacier National Park, says John Woods, chief naturalist in the park.

Woods said Monday that a conspicuous blue cave developed in 1976 in the tip of the glacier's tongue, which commands the skyline seen by more than a million motorists each year as they descend the western side of Rogers Pass along the Trans Canada Highway.

This year, however, the cave is gone and a sprawling crevassed ice mass is lacking its distinctive point of color, he said.

"In 1976 the glacier poked its snout over a steep cliff in its downward path," said Woods. "Blocks of bluish ice the size of camper vans began crumbling from the glacier's base, leaving a gaping hole sheltered by a thin translucent roof of ice.

"For two years this glacier cave hovered on the brink of the ice front, but sometime between last autumn and this spring it disappeared.

"In its place a continuous stream of ice now pours over the cliff and into the gully below.

Woods said park naturalists have been keeping close watch on the Illecillewaet since 1972 and have recorded many changes in the glacier.

"The measurements tell a consistent story," added Woods. "During the past year the net measured advance of the snout was 10 metres (11 yards).

"During each of the past six years the snout has pushed ahead. Since 1972, the ice front in the centre of the glacier has crept 73 metres (80 yards)."

SAFETY MEASURES TAKEN

VANCOUVER (CP) — An emergency measures task force for the city will be expanded, Mayor Jack Volrich said Monday.

He said the present task force of police and fire chiefs, which has worked out an interim agreement with industry for the safe transportation of chemicals through Vancouver, will be given two months to recommend bylaws to city council regarding the movement of hazardous products.

The task force was formed after a chlorine drum fell off a truck and opened on Main Street last week.

Volrich said the interim agreement with industry, representing 95 per cent of the chemical manufacturers and carriers in the Vancouver area, now has been signed.

BONDS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were lower in moderate trading on the Canadian bond market Monday. The short end of the market was off five cents. Mid-, long-term, and provincial issues dropped one-eighth of a point. Corporate issues remained the same. Day-to-day money was available at 9¾ per cent.

Builders Wait For Demand

VANCOUVER (CP) — A decision by builders to wait out the glut of office space in Greater Vancouver before re-entering the field is starting to pay off, say real estate officials.

Surpluses of space are slowly being reduced and they are expected to continue dropping well into next year, they say.

The improvement is not due to greater demand but because building has been at a near standstill.

The vacancy rate in privately-owned downtown office towers dropped to 11.6 per cent last June from 12.2 per cent a year earlier, says the research division of Cumberland Realty Group Ltd.

In all, there currently is about 14.1 million square feet of office space downtown, almost two-thirds of the entire Greater Vancouver supply.

With government buildings included, the vacancy rate drops to less than 10 per cent, the Greater Vancouver real estate board's 1978 market analysis says.

If trends continue as they now are, realtors are predicting the surplus might be worked off by the middle of next year.

No private developer has plans to construct a downtown office building next year and the few aimed for this year are already finished.

The newest building in the downtown core, a 12-storey tower at the corner of Pender and Howe, opened last month.

"We don't expect leasing to be as difficult next year as it has been in the last two," John Gibson, president of Hammerson Group of Companies, said. He said that about 25 per cent of the building's 100,000 square feet is committed.

In today's soft market, it may take until the end of next year for the building to be fully leased, Gibson added.

"In a place like Calgary, where the market is booming, you can make some money in the first five years," he said, "but with the present Vancouver market, you probably have to wait until after five years, when leases are up for renewal."

Gibson said he expects a balanced supply of office space by the middle of next year.

Wayne Wellar, manager of Knowlton Realty's Vancouver office, said realtors now are getting business from smaller companies relocating or expanding. He interprets that as one sign that leasing will improve during the remainder of the year and into 1979 and 1980.

He said there could be a shortage of first-class office space downtown by late 1979.

Daon Development and Cadillac Fairview have reached the same conclusion and have announced plans to build major office towers. Other developers are moving toward new commitments as well.

"Nevertheless, due to the long development period required for office buildings, none of these new developments will be started before late 1980 or early 1981, leaving office tenants to contend with a shortage of office space in 1979 and 1980," Wellar said.

Meet Royals Tonight

Yankees in Dramatic Win over Sox

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City Royals and New York Yankees, who've traveled this road before, meet in the opening game of the best-of-five American League championship series tonight, marking the third consecutive year these teams have battled in the pennant playoff.

Dennis Leonard, a 21-game winner during the regular season, will start for Kansas City against New York's Jim Beattie, who began the season in the minors.

This series will have to go some to match the drama of New York's American League East playoff victory Monday, when the Yankees eliminated Boston 5-4, as reliever Rich Gossage retired Red Sox sluggers Jim Rice and Carl Yastrzemski for the final two outs, leaving the tying and winning runs on base.

In 1976, New York won the AL flag in the bottom of the ninth inning of the fifth game on a home run by Chris Chambliss. Last year, the Yankees rallied for three runs in the ninth inning of the fifth game to pull out the pennant again.

Leonard said he thought the club's maturity would pay off this time.

"Two years ago, I would have been pacing up and down and running around the house," he said. "But this is our third time around, and I'm two years older now."

The rookie pressure will be on Beattie, who pitched effectively down the stretch for New York, but would not have had the opening-game assignment except for the East Division playoff.

In Boston after the playoff victory, Reggie Jackson walked into the Red Sox' clubhouse, carrying a bat in one hand and a can of beer in the other.

The Yankees whooped it up in their clubhouse, happy at getting a chance to defeld their 1977 World Series championship. In the Boston clubhouse, the Red Sox quietly accepted defeat, satisfied with a stretch drive that dell short despite eight consecutive victories and 12 of 14 until the playoff.

The Red Sox were wishing each other a happy winter. Then, in walked Jackson, who had hit his 27th homer leading off the eighth inning—a shot into the centrefield bleachers which proved decisive.

"You guys could have done just what we did," Jackson told the Red Sox. "I didn't think my homer would end up being the winning run.

"But your guys came back, and how. You got two runs in the eighth inning and took us down to the final out with runners on first and third in the ninth. That's too much pressure, man. Kansas City? Let me relax this one."

"It's too bad that the two best teams in baseball had to play," Steinbrenner said while Zimmer choked back tears.

Earlier, Steinbrenner said in the Yankee clubhouse it was "a shame the teams with the winningest records in baseball had to be in the same division."

Asked about the ouster of manager Billy Martin and the hiring of Bob Lemon in late July, Steinbrenner said:

"We got well. We were a banged up, sick team. Don't take anything away from Billy Martin.

Lemon, the first AL manager to take over in midseason and go on to a championship, basked in glory. Fired by Chicago White Sox, he quickly won a job with the Yankees when Martin resigned after some critical remarks about Steinbrenner.

Lemon took command on July 25, seeking only to regain respectability for the Yankees, who trailed the Red Sox by a whopping 14 games on July 19.

"This is unbelievable, just unbelievable," Lemon said. "The Red Sox went into a tailspin and we kept winning. Then we beat them here four straight in early September. Then we beat them two in a row in New York and we were 3½ ahead. But they came back and forced us into a playoff. What more can anyone ask? It's just unbelievable."

The Red Sox did what they had to do down the stretch, catching the Yankees and forcing a tie-breaker with eight victories in a row.

Mike Torrez, who pitched the Yankees to the World Series championship last fall while playing out his option, looked like a $2.6 million loser. Torrez blanked his old team-mates on two hits for six innings. Then he surrendered a three-run homer to light-hitting Bucky Dent in a four-run seventh and it was all over.

Jackson put all his muscles into a pitch by Bob Stanley in the eighth for the homer and the Red Sox were unable to catch up, Ron Guidry, a runaway winner of the AL Cy Young award, increased his record to 25-3 with relief help from Gossage.

New York	000 000 410—	5 8 0
Boston	010 001 020—	4 11 0

Guidry 25-3 Gossage (7) and Munson. Torrez 16-13 Stanley (7) Hassler (8) Drago (9) and Fisk. HRs: NY—Dent (5) Jackson (27); Bos—Yastrzemski (17).

Shupe Feels Cougars Solved Own Problem

The weekend in review and coach Jack Shupe of Victoria Cougars, who was saying earlier this year that he might have a problem with his defence, apparently is satisfied for the time being at least that the players may have solved the problem themselves.

In a meet-the-players media session last week before the season opener against Calgary Wranglers on Saturday, he was explaining that things had come around, the outlook was much better than he had feared earlier and actually he was quite pleased with the way the players had developed on the Island pre-season tour against New Westminster.

"I think the defence should do well enough," he was saying. Shupe was also pleased with the travelling road show training camp that visited so may Island points, thought it would help junior hockey on the Island, and was particularly impressed with the complex at Powell River.

And actually, with so many Island players on the Cougar roster this year, as compared to previous seasons, it was a nice touch for the Cougars tm display their wares in the Island arenas. Besides, it may even help at the box office, and maybe already has as there has been an increase in season ticket sales this season.

And it was interesting too, getting the view of Jack Anderson, who has been with the Cougars the longest of any official, on one side of Shupe's personality.

Anderson, who in the past has worked with managers and coaches such as Eric Bishop and Pat Ginnell, each of whom had individual and sometimes peculiar idiosyncrasies, has nothing but praise for Shupe in his handling of the players. "The difference is like night and day," said Anderson. "He treats them like men, and gives them every chance," which is probably one reason why Shupe was a co-winner with Dave King of Billings as coach-of-the-year last season.

"And speaking of rough play, Anderson was telling of another difference in the present from the past. "You won't see Jack sending any player out to get somebody," said Anderson. "But if one of his players doesn't respond, he'll be asking him why he didn't answer the bell."

Which sounds fair enough; and, after all, the Cougars were right there under Shupe last year and apparently things look equally as promising this year. Coming up with a win in the home opener, although not that impressive, was a good start.

It was interesting to note, too, that New Westminster Bruins came out fighting in their first defence of the Memorial Cup. The first altercation took place in just 23 seconds, which makes the season official.

★ ★ ★

Otherwise, the B.C. Lions, believe it or not, aren't really dead. They are still breathing, and all because the Saskatchewan Roughriders took care of Calgary Stampeders on the weekend. As it stands now, both the Lions and the Riders have a chance at third place. But don't bet on it. Edmonton and Ottawa appear to be on a collision course to the Grey Cup, the Esks having more trouble in the West than they had Sunday against Montreal Alouettes. Of course, that was a bit of a grudge match, the Esks looking for revenge for the whipping they took in the Grey Cup last year, and rubbing it in while they took advantage of a weakened Alouette club. Still, the Winnipeg Blue Bombers could surprise. Certainly they can put points on the board in a hurry as they have demonstrated on more than one occasion and twice just lately against the Lions. All reports indicate that Ray Jauch has done a good job as coach and, with an explosive attack at his disposal, the Esks just might be looking over their shoulders, if not for the league championship, perhaps in the playoffs. There is one league game remaining between the two clubs, but the Eskimos still have the hammer. They have two games in hand to go with their four-point lead. And that should be ample.

In hockey, Montreal Canadiens appear to be on schedule as they move along the exhibition trail. Meanwhile, the new-look Vancouver Canucks may have a real new-look after all. Listening to the radio broadcast of the Canucks' two wins over New York Rangers, it becomes more evident with each game that rookies Stan Smyl and Curt Fraser are determined to win places on the first team rather than be asked to do any apprentice work in Dallas. Fraser was the game star the other night. However, it may all be academic as coach Harry Neale may favor experience at the start. This would depend, of course, on how the Canuck injury list looks to him by the season's beginning. Right now the Canucks have at least six players hurting and that may work in the youngsters' favor. It will be an interesting decision when it is made as Neale is strapped in a way. Veterans with two years experience or over can't just be shipped away to play themselves into shape. They have to go through waivers; and nobody's about to lose a Dennis Ververgaert or a Harold Snepsts, or whoever, for the $30,000 waiver tag. Not this early in the year, at any rate. So stay tuned.

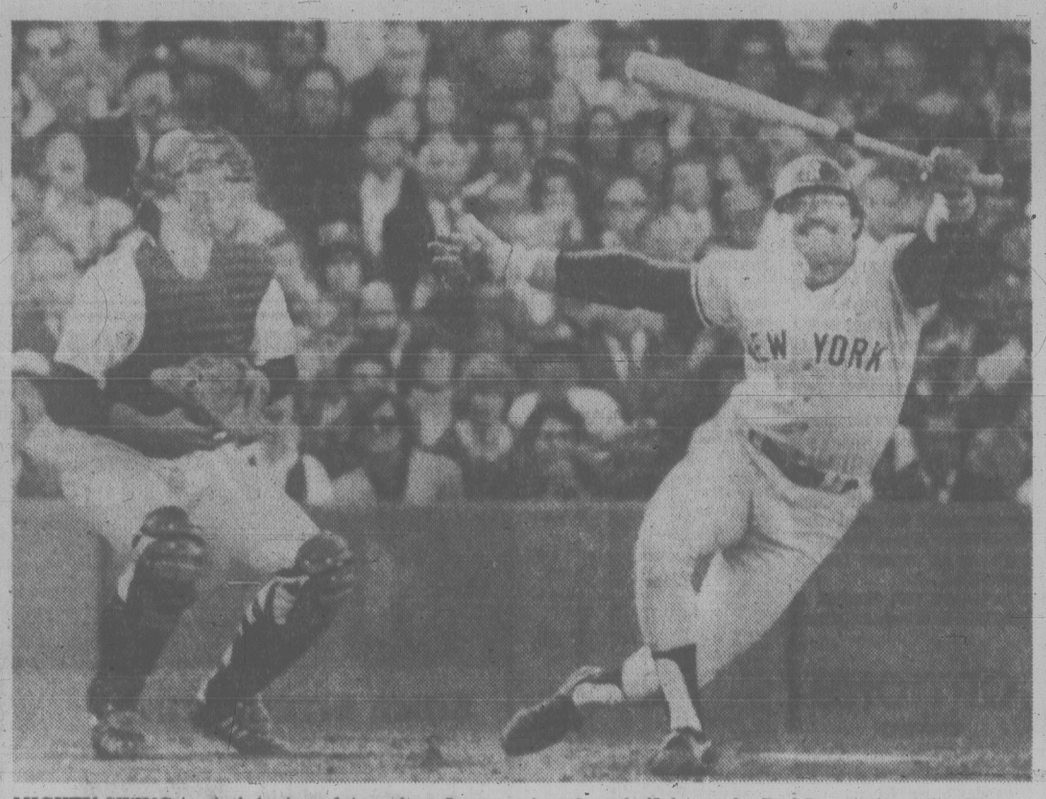
BORZOV EYES 1980 GAMES

HELSINKI (AP) — Sprinter Valery Borzov of the Soviet Union had both of his Achilles tendons operated on last week and, when he walked out of the Helsinki University hospital Monday, he said he accepted the operation as necessary to get him to the Moscow Olympics in 1980.

"My only hope and aim is to get to the Moscow Olympics," the 28-year-old sprinter said. Borzov said the tendons bothered him at the 1976 Games in Montreal.

He decided to come to Helsinki and to sports doctor Pekka Peltokallio, who last year succesfully repaired triple jumper Viktor Saneyev's Achilles tendons in a similar operation.

Borzov won gold medals in both the 100 and 200 metre events in the 1972 Olympics at Munich.



MIGHTY SWING in sixth inning of American League playoff game Monday in Boston produces nothing but near tumble for New York slugger Reggie Jackson as he misses ball thrown by Red Sox pitcher Mike Torrez. Reggie had better luck in eighth inning, hitting home run that helped Yankees post 5-4 victory.

Redskins Bump Off Cowboys

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was, according to Washington defensive captain Diron Talbert, a matter of shutting down the National Football League's No.1 offence, and especially the NFC's leading rusher, Tony Dorsett.

"We stopped them rushing, we stopped their passing," said Talbert after the Redskins' 9-5 victory over Dallas Cowboys Monday night.

Talbert remembered, when reminded, that the Cowboys were the top scoring team in the NFL. "But basically, we pursued Dorsett and we tackled him. We stopped his long runs."

The Washington defence stopped the Cowboys when it was necessary, including six plays from the seven-yard line and four from the two in the third quarter and also late in the fourth quarter on a controversial play.

"It was kind of sloppy," said Dallas coach Tom Landry. "We have no excuses. We just didn't put it in there."

The Redskins won their fifth straight game against no losses this season before a sellout crowd, taking a two-game lead in the NFC East on Mark Moseley's field goals of 52, 42 and 27 yards. Dallas, the defending Super Bowl champion, is now 3-2.

"Last year, I missed three field goals against Dallas here and it cost us a game," said Moseley. "As Texans, neither me nor my dad ever heard the end of it.

"I'm just now coming around," said Moseley, a native of Livingston, Tex. "I had a slow training camp and the leg is finally beginning to feel strong."

The Cowboys' only offensive score came on a 19-yard field goal by Rafael Septien after the Washington goal line stand in the third quarter. The got a safety when Redskin quarterback Joe Theismann voluntarily ran into the end zone on the final play of the game.

The Cowboys complained about an official's call on third-and-eight at the Washington 13 late in the fourth period.

Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach threw what the Cowboys thought was a completed pass to Drew Pearson near the goal line, but the official ruled it out of bounds.

PRESIDENT DENIES SALE OF METROS

TORONTO (CP) — The Star says it has learned that Toronto Metros-Croatia of the North American Soccer League have been sold to a Toronto group for $2 million.

The newspaper says the sale was negotiated Monday, but Metros-Croatia president John Solas denied any transactions had been completed.

"Sure, we've been talking to different people over the last couple of months, but there's nothing official," said Solas. "I don't know where these rumors get started."

He declined to name any of the prospective buyers, but the Star said the latest applicants were Global Television and Theme Investments Ltd., with the latter the successful bidder.

"It is now a matter of passing the league and Ontario Securities Commission," the Star quotes club director Dick Bezic as saying. Bezic refused to identify the principles involved with Theme Investments but it was a company formed by the soccer club.

Johannesburg Twins?

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn has been asked to investigate allegedly racist remarks made by Minnesota Twins' owner Calvin Griffith in Waseca, Minn., last week.

The 66-year-old Griffith triggered a storm of protest with his off-the-cuff comments on blacks, sex and salaries at a meeting ot the Waseca Lion's club.

The Minneapolis and St. Paul Urban League chapters Monday asked Kuhn to investigate the remarks. The chapters suggested that "maybe next season the Minnesota Twins play in an appropriate place where Calvin Griffith will be appreciated, which could be called the Johannesburg Twins. We would suggest that he and South Africa were made for each other."

In his talk at Waseca, Griffith said that Twins slugger Rod Carew was a "damn fool" for signing a contract for $170,000, that catcher Butch Wynegar's performance suffered because he got married, and that he moved the Twins from Washington, D.C. to Minnesota in 1971 when he found "you only have 15,000 blacks here."

After learning of the comments, which were published in the Minneapolis Tribune Sunday, Carew vowed never again to play for the Twins.

Griffith said he would try to explain his remarks to Carew and other players who were offended. He said his comments were misinterpreted and made in jest. Griffith added he is confident he can "get the people's minds straightened out" about the statements.

One of the two black members of the Minnesota Legislature, Rep. Ray Pleasant of Bloomington, has demanded that organized baseball reprimand Griffith and apologize to the area.

Assuming Griffith's quoted comments are true, Pleasant said, Griffith and his baseball organization "are no longer welcome in Minnesota."

"It goes without saying that we anticipate some kind of reprimand from the baseball industry," Pleasant wrote to Kuhn and MacPhail.

Pleasant also suggested that the people of the area "deserve a replacement franchise."

Blade Rally Catches Kings

EDMONTON (CP) — Saskatoon Blades struck for four third-period goals Monday to tie Edmonton Oil Kings 5-5 in a Western Hockey League game before 777 fans.

Franko Disciglio scored the tying goal on a power play with 1:31 left to play.

Saskatoon's other goals in the third period were scored by Ken Federko, Kelly Kuspira and Bill MacNaught. Federko had scored Saskatoon's other goal in the first period.

The Oil Kings, who outshot Saskatoon 36-30 and who led 2-1 and 4-1 by periods, received three goals from veteran Ray Neufeld, including two in a power play. Larry McGargar and Steve Blue, both on power plays, completed the Edmonton scoring.

The teams split 18 minor penalties and four majors with Edmonton taking the lone misconduct.

EDMONTON (5) — Neufeld 3, McCargar, Blue. SASKATOON (5) — Federko 2, Disciglio, Kuspira, MacNaught. Attendance 777.

Canada Gains Hoop Semis

MANILA (CP) — Canada struggled to its second victory at the world basketball championships today, beating an inferior Senegal team 60-42, and qualified for the semi-finals.

"We were just atrocious in the second half," said Canadian coach Jack Donohue.

"We were so bad that I said to the Mexican referee, 'This is the first time we've ever been worse than the refs."

Yugoslavia also clinched a place in the semi-final, beating South Korea, 121-85. Australia appeared likely to claim a semi-final berth after beating the Dominican Republic, 74-72.

The United States had already clinched a semi-final spot. The host Philippines and defending champion Soviet Union both had a bye into the semi-final round.

U.S. Shooters Pad Golds

SEOUL (AP) — United States shooters continued their harvest of gold by winning four more titles Tuesday in the sixth day of the 42nd world shooting championships.

Finland swept the men's centre fire pistol 25-metre competition by taking both the team and individual titles. Italian women took the trap team event, helping their nation move up to second place in the gold medal race, and Denmark won its first gold.

The United States was far ahead with 16 gold medals. Italy, with six, moved ahead of West Germany, Switzerland and Finland, each with five.

More than 1,000 shooters from 66 countries are competing in 21 events with 369 gold, silver and bronze medals at stake.

A three-member Danish women's squad won the standard pistol 25-metre team title with 1,726 points, just one shot better than Australia. The United States placed third with 1,724.

In men's trap, the United States won the gold medal with 580, followed by Japan's 576. Spain's third-place score also was 576.

Wanda Jewell of the United States won her second gold medal of the championships when she took the standard rifle 50-meter individual event with 580. Jewell earlier won the women's air rifle individual event.

Helped by Becky Braun who had 550, the three-member American women's team took the team title with 1,705. Kim Dyer accounted for the fourth American gold medal of the day by taking the small-bore pistol 25-metre individual title with a score of 590.

Among the Good Men On the Job for Juniors

Every now and then, and sometimes too rarely, a man comes along who is perfect for the job.

Ian Holroyd is such a man, and it would be a shame if the Victoria District Golf Committee allows him to get away.

Quiet and unassuming, but thorough and enthusiastic, Holroyd has been the district's junior chairman for the past two years. He's the one who ran the various tournaments and inter-club competitions, handled publicity and took care of 1,001 details.

I like his style because the information always was supplied promptly, and without demands of any sort.

Bob Peters, the guardian of finances, likes Holroyd's style because nobody — but nobody — submitted a more detailed list of expenses. And if Holroyd was entitled to a dinner, chances are he went for a burger at a drive-in rather than a steak sandwich at some expensive beanery because the difference meant more for junior golf.

Holroyd has hinted, rather positively, that he'll pass the job to someone else next year. It does take time, to do it as properly as he does it, and you can't blame Ian for wanting to cater to his family and his own game.

Too bad. If the District Committee can't get him to change his mind, they'll lose a good one.

The annual Island Cup matches for the Winspear Trophy is on. Vancouver Island's 10 top professionals and 10 best amateurs, selected on the basis of points accumulated in Island tournaments this summer, will play off at Glen Meadows Oct. 14-15.

Foursomes play is on the Saturday and the windup singles on Sunday.

★ ★ ★

Club championship play continues to wind down, but no one held a hotter hand at the weekend than Phil Scott. A former Saskatchewan junior champ, Phil rammed in six birdies and seven pars to defeat Reg Effa 6 and 5 in advancing to the final at Glen Meadows.

The other semi-final between Mike Foreman and Keith Swetnam was to be played today.

Medallist Grant Milliken and Dave Donaldson moved into the Gorge Vale final. Milliken scored a 6-and-5 win over George Carlow while Donaldson knocked off defending-champion Robin Stefanick, two up.

Kurt Lampert, Dan McLintock, George Barnes and Fred Worthington reached the semi-finals at Cedar Hill while Bruce Pelmore, Ron Howard, Jr., Jim Barlow and Gord Millin moved into the fours at Royal Colwood.

Rangers Would Vote for Jets

By The Canadian Press

New York Rangers may now be wishing that Winnipeg Jets were admitted into the the National Hockey League.

Monday night the Rangers played their second pre-season game against the World Hockey Association Jets and came away a 7-4 winner. The win was just the Rangers' second in seven exhibition games. Their only other victory came at the expense of the Jets, a 5-2 decison last Saturday.

As in the Saturday contest, ex-Jet Ulf Nilsson was the star of the game as he scored two goals for New York.

In the lone other NHL pre-season game, Boston Bruins skated to a 3-3 tie with Montreal Canadiens.

Supporting Nilsson with single goals were Greg Polis, Ron Dugay, Walt Tkaczuk, Steve Vickers and Phil Esposito.

John Gray, Peter Sullivan, Willie Lindstrom and Kent Nilsson replied for the Jets, who were outshot 38-22.

John Davidson and Doug Soetaert handled the net-minding for the Rangers. Joe Daley worked the first two periods for the Jets, allowing all seven goals. Markus Mattsson replaced Daley and stopped all 10 shots that came his way in the third period.

In Halifax, Terry O'Reilly scored at 14:10 of the third period to give Bruins a tie.

Boston was also limping with Jean Ratelle, Bob Schmautz and Wayne Cashman on the injured list.

Meanwhile, Vancouver Canucks have lost defencemen Harold Snepsts and Lars Lindgren until at least the beginning of the National Hockey League's regular-season schedule.

Both were injured Sunday in an exhibition game against New York Rangers, won 4-2 by Vancouver.

The Canucks are also missing right winger Rick Blight, a 25-goal man last season, and goaltenders Glen Hanlon and Curt Ridley. Blight has stretched knee ligaments, as does Ridley, while Hanlon has a badly-bruised finger.

Twelve players were assigned to Dallas of the Central Hockey League and Fort Wayne of the International Hockey League Monday.

Sent to Dallas were goaltender Normand Lapointe, defencemen Dave Morrow, Larry Goodenough and Sheldon Kannegiesser, and forwards Steve Hazlett, Rod Tudor, Stu Ostlund, Rob Flockhart, Brad Smith and Brad Gassoff. Forwards Gerry Minor and Dave Ross were sent to Fort Wayne.

Flockhart, Gassoff, Goodenough and Kannegiesser played extensively with the Canucks last season.

Neale has indicated he will keep a number of rookies this season. Some of the more impressive rookies in exhibition games have been goaltender Hanlon, Swedish defencemen Lindgren and Lars Zetterstrom, forwards Bill Derlago, Stan Smyl and Curt Fraser, and another Swede, centre Thomas Gradin.

The Canucks still have 26 players—including injured—in camp.

Double Winners In Prep Volleyball

Lambrick Park, Spectrum and Dunsmuir each captured victories in both divisions during play Monday in the Greater Victoria High School Volleyball League.

Lambrick boys collected an 18-16, 15-6 decision and the girls won 15-3, 15-9 in action against Belmont; Spectrum boys chalked up a 13-15, 15-5, 15-5 decision and the girls won 15-9, 11-15, 15-9 in tussles with Esquimalt; and Dunsmuir boys hammered out a 15-12, 15-11 win while the girls won 8-15, 15-12, 15-6 in action against Parkland.

In another girls' game, Victoria High defeated Mt. Douglas, 15-5, 12-15, 15-8.

Best of Expos

MONTREAL (CP) — Left-hander Ross Grimsley, the first pitcher in the 10-year history of Montreal Expos to record 20 victories in a season, has been voted the National League club's player-of-the-year by Montreal baseball writers.

City Rowers Score Victory

LONG BEACH, Calif. — Bruce Ford and Pat Walter of Victoria City Rowing Club came up with a time of six minutes, 41.8 seconds at the weekend to defeat the American doubles team that is going to the world championships in New Zealand later this month.

The United States duo turned in a time of 6:46.0.

Claremont Wins While Losing

Claremont extended its lead in both the boys' and girls' Greater Victoria High School Cross-Country League standings Monday without winning a race at Parkland.

Terry Bateman of Mt. Douglas won the boys' 5,500-metre event in 17 minutes, 33 seconds. But Tony Stark and Vince Harrison finished two-three to lead the Claremont squad to 37 points under the reverse-scoring system.

Mt. Doug was second with 88.

Bateman leads the individual standings with 75 points and is followed by Harrison (43) and Tony Theriault of Claremont (40).

In the girls' 3,200-metre event, Bonnie Hutton of Spectrum won in a time of 12:32. Claremont's Rhonda McKenna and Maeve Lydon finished second and third, respectively, to lead their team to 43 points.

Victoria High was second with 50 and Belmont third with 71.

Canada Trims Cuban Juniors

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada shut out Cuba 3-0 Monday in junior field hockey in the fourth start by the visitors of their nine-game series in Canada.

Gordon Plottel of Vancouver opened scoring at 20 minutes, pushing a shot past Cuban goalie Elfredo Lopez. Steve Richardson, also of Vancouver, added another at the 10-minute mark of the second half, followed by Steve Crooks of Ontario.

McEnroe Topples Stockton

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — John McEnroe overcame Dick Stockton's powerful serve to win a men's $175,000 tennis tournament Monday night 2-6, 7-6, 6-2.

McEnroe, eighth seeded and from Douglaston, N.Y., was badly beaten by Stockton in the first set but came back to put the second set into a tie-breaker, which he won 7-5.

By the third set, McEnroe was able to upset Stockton's net game by lobbing shots deep in the court, falling just inside the baseline.

McEnroe earned $24,000 in prize money, and Stockton received $12,000.

WHEN YOU CAN BUY A VOLVO FOR $7305* WHY SETTLE FOR ANYTHING MORE?

With many other car makers, here and abroad, the newest automotive trend is higher prices. Which means you could easily pay the price of a Volvo — or more — and get a lesser car.

At your Volvo dealer, the '78 Volvo 242M has remained at the same price since November '77, despite rising inflation everywhere. So, you can still buy one for only $7305. (But fair warning: today's price on this Volvo can't last forever.)

So whatever your driving needs, hurry in to a Volvo showroom before you buy. Now you can get the car with a reputation for durability at a price that may soon be history. VOLVO

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

One often hears it said: "If you defeat every contract you double, you are not doubling enough." This little cliche should be filed away under the letter I (for Incomplete) with: "Always cover an honor with an honor"; "third hand high"; second hand low"; and all the other half-truths which have crept into the language of bridge. My suggested addition is: if your double conveys information to declarer which may allow him to make a contract which you think you can beat — don't double. Today's deal illustrates this latter point.

East-West vulnerable.
East deals.

Opening lead: Four of ◇.

Dummy's jack of trumps was finessed successfully on the opening lead, after which the trump ace was cashed. Declarer was rather surprised to see East follow suit on the second trump lead, for he thought that West had four trumps headed by the king.

Declarer next cashed the ace and king of clubs, discarding thereon his two low spades. Had West not doubled the six diamond bid, declarer might well have played the ace, queen and king of hearts at this point, hoping for a 3-3 division of the six outstanding hearts. Or, perhaps, he might have finessed his queen of spades, which would have lost to West's king.

But with West's double, declarer was pretty sure that West had the spade king, and had figured that this card would win a trick, since South had bid spades and rated to have the ace. So South, after cashing the ace and king of clubs, led a third club, which he ruffed. Next came the ace and queen of hearts, after which a trump was led to West's king. West was now end played.

If he returned a spade, South's queen would become a winner. If, instead, he led the club queen, South would ruff; and on dummy's now-high jack of clubs, South would discard his spade queen. So West craftily led a low club, but to no avail. South put up dummy's jack, and on it discarded his queen of spades. Thus South's only loser was a trump trick to West's king.

SOLUTIONS WEDNESDAY

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Wednesday, October 4
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Get the facts and then do something — shake off tendency to be mystified, frozen, captivated by glamor, promises. Go after what you need. Leave intrigue for another time. Be frank, on the square — say what you mean — and follow through.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Yes, a change is necessary, but get papers in order. Get approval in writing. Put your ideas forth, present them in creative manner. Member of opposite sex figures prominently. You will be dealing with one who is very important to you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Don't neglect people who mean the most to you. Holding home, family together is more important than obtaining a "bargain." Message will become clear — you'll understand that adjustments, concessions are to be made without "loss of face." Taurus, Libra, Scorpio figure prominently.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Good Moon-Mars aspects point to impulse, intuition, speculation, variety, excitement, emotion, luck and love. Superior finds your concepts promising — you receive encouragement and promise of financial support. Young person, although rambunctious, will co-operate.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): What might have been settled — or status quo — is due for a shake-up: Know it and be ready — have material available and in working order. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure in scenario — and so does the number 8. An individual with experience — and money — seeks to aid you. Be receptive!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Avoid actions based on impulse. Overcome tendency to act first and think later. Associates could, with no harm intended, goad you into dangerous situation. Avoid traffic, if possible. Stay away from intemperate people.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Bright ideas pay off — you turn what appeared to be a loss into a profit. Highlight independence, originality, confidence enough to take a risk on your own style, capabilities. Display courage of convictions. Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Permit logic a chance to compete with headstrong actions. You will know what should be done — key will be to do it. Accent on initiative, personality, popularity, sound judgment, control of tendencey to be pugnacious.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Bad dreams are chased. You will have reason to celebrate. Popularity increases — you could make news as "reviews" praise your efforts. Emphasis on club, organization, special interest group. You win a "point of law."

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accent on "surviving" differences with friends, loved ones. Be temperate, calm, cool and collected — then you put point across without alienating those who disagree with you. Key now is to feint, bob, weave and display some fancy footwork. By so doing, you win without doing real harm to those who will continue to mean much to you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): One "in charge" might display temper tantrum. Don't compound error. Maintain emotional equilibrium. Emphasis on goals, priorities, understanding authority figures. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons could figure prominently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You reach more people — and financial status is upgraded. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons play major roles. Family member has positive suggestion. Heed it and you'll be happier as result. Eliminate safety hazard at home.

IF OCTOBER 4 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are creative, basically honest, determined, stubborn and you were "apart" from one or both parents at a comparatively early age. Aquarius, Taurus, Scorpio persons are likely to play important roles in your life. Major domestic adjustment indicated for you in December.

Finley Out Swinging In U.S. Supreme Court

The justices let stand lower court decisions frustrating Finley's challenge of a 1976 order by baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn that blocked the sale of Joe Rudi, Rollie Fingers and Vida Blue, then stars with the A's.

Finley's much-publicized feud with Kuhn and the baseball establishment began when, in the midst of the 1976 season, the A's announced the planned three-player sales.

All three had played pivotal roles in the A's three consecutive World Series victories, from 1972 through 1974.

Finley wanted to sell Rudi, an outfielder, and Fingers, then the sport's premier relief pitcher, to Boston Red Sox for $1 million each.

He wanted to sell Blue, a pitcher, to New York Yankees for $1.5 million.

Finley announced the sales only hours before the season's June 15 trading deadline. After that date, Oakland could not have sold or traded the players without first offering them to all other American League teams at a waiver price of $20,000.

If it claimed a player, the A's would have to sell the player at the waiver price or pull him off the waiver list.

As explained by Finley's lawyers, "Because of the star calibre of all three players, it was common knowledge in baseball that none of the players could pass waivers."

Kuhn took the then-unprecedented action of blocking the sales, finding them "not in the best interests of baseball."

Kuhn ruled that stripping the A's of three such stars would leave the team "with little chance to compete effectively" and would hurt public confidence in the professional sport.

As it turned out, Kuhn's ruling didn't help A's fans much. The next season, Rudi signed with California Angels and Fingers with San Diego Padres. Blue was traded to San Francisco Giants after playing the 1977 season in Oakland.

Finley, who saw his $2.5-million deal fall through, sued Kuhn along with the American and National leagues and the Major League Executive Council. He charged that Kuhn had breached his employment contract by acting arbitrarily, discriminatorily and unreasonably.

The suit also charged that Kuhn's action was part of an effort to drive Finley out of baseball, an effort that violated federal anti-trust laws.

U.S. District Judge Frank J. McGarr in Chicago ruled that Kuhn was authorized to block the sales, and that past Supreme Court rulings had exempted baseball from anti-trust laws.

The 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals last April upheld McGarr's ruling.

In his Supreme Court appeal, Finley charged that the lower courts were wrong in interpreting past rulings to mean that "the entire business of baseball is exempt from the federal anti-trust laws."

Lawyers for Finley argued that only baseball's "reserve system" had been exempted.

They argued also that McGarr's "refusal to receive or consider evidence of commissioner Kuhn's malice toward Mr. Finley constitutes . . . a denial of (Finley's) due process right to present evidence."

CALE CRUISING TO THIRD CROWN

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) - Cale Yarborough, already equalling his 1977 total of nine victories, is running away with the Grand National stock car championship.

With four races left this year, Yarborough is 438 points out front in a bid for his third straight title after making up three laps in the late stages to beat Darrell Waltrip in the Wilkes 400 at North Wilkesboro, N.C., Sunday.

Yarborough now has 4,232 points, followed by Benny Parsons with 3,794; Waltrip 3,778; Dave Marcis 3,766; Bobby Allison 3,672; Richard Petty 3,477; Lennie Pond 3,292; Dick Brooks 3,210; Buddy Arrington 3,194, and Richard Childress 3,091.

Pushing to beat his money-winning record of $447,498 last year, Yarborough has collected $384,655 in 26 races this season.

Hunter Fired In Texas Shift

ARLINTON, Tex. (AP) — Billy Hunter, who was given a vote of confidence by majority-owner Brad Corbett, was fired Sunday in Texas Rangers' sixth managerial change in two years, and third-base coach Pat Corrales was named his successor.

Corbett, reached by telephone, said: "The organization felt that a change was needed. I think Billy is an outstanding baseball man, but there are people in the organization besides me."

The Rangers, who have a $2.6 million payroll—one of the highest in baseball—were beset by internal strife most of the year as they fell behind American League West Division-champion Kansas City Royals. However, they won 18 of their last 22 games to finish in a second-place tie with California Angels.

"We had a bitter team," said Corbett. "Billy had excellent ability as an offensive manager. But he didn't seem to have the ability to move a pitcher at the right time or the ability to communicate with the players."

Corbett said: "Baseball has changed and sports have changed. I believe we now have a manager who can communicate."

Corbett did not inform Hunter himself of the change before the Rangers' last game of the year. The task was left to vice-president Eddie Robinson.

Corrales has spent 13 years in the major leagues but has never been a manager except in the winter leagues in Venezuela.

Robinson said: "The main reason Billy was fired was because of the performance of the team. We felt we should have won, and we didn't . . . we didn't come close. . . . We're very disappointed."

Hunter, 50, whose record was 86-75 going into Sunday's final game, joined the Rangers as manager in June, 1977.

Hunter did not have a contract for 1978. He said he didn't worry about contracts because "they can come and get me whenever they want me."

Heiler-Moore Top Medallists

Holly Heiler and Joan Moore of Cedar Hill eliminated clubmates Pat Leahy and Mary Fortune — who won medal honors last Friday — during the first round of match play Monday in the Victoria and District women's two-ball foursomes at Glen Meadows.

Heiler and Moore scored a 3 and 2 victory to become the lone Cedar Hill pair out of five to make the eights.

Gorge Vale, Glen Meadows and Victoria are each represented by two pairs and Ardmore has one duo in contention.

Quarter-finals were scheduled earlier today at Uplands, the semi-finals are set for Thursday at Victoria and the final is Friday at Royal Colwood.

Championship results:

Budgets, who recently collected their third straight Canadian championship, received official confirmation of their league title Monday — a month and a half after the end of the season.

Budgets tied Woodinville of Seattle for the first half of the season and finished atop the second half.

Rose Rejects 'Largest' Offer

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pete Rose turned down what Cincinnati Reds called "the largest salary in Cincinnati Reds history" Monday because his agent said it was not the largest.

Both sides said they believed negotiations could be settled and another meeting was set for Oct. 10.

The Reds statement, attributed to president Dick Wagner, said the contract would cover the 1979 and 1980 National League baseball seasons and was "one of the best in all baseball. . . ."

"I think the key word in the news release is 'the highest salary,'" said Reuven Katz, Cincinnati lawyer and Rose's agent.

"Although it may be true the salary is somewhat higher, the total compensation is not as high as at least one other and maybe what some others have had."

Katz noted that Rose has until 15 days after the World Series to declare himself a free agent to consider bids to play for other teams.

Rose said earlier he was curious to see what his worth would be on the open market but he also wants to remain in Cincinnati, his home town.

"But if we can come to a satisfactory arrangement beforehand, he'll never be a free agent," said Katz.

Katz, in commenting on the contract, said: "It is no where near a million dollars a year."

LEEDS ADVANCES

MANCHESTER, England (Reuter) — Leeds United reached the last 32 of the English League Cup with a 1-0 victory over First Division soccer rivals, West Bromwich Albion, in their second round, second replay Monday night.

England under-21 internationals Laurie Cunningham and Cyrille Regis blasted wide for Albion before Leeds defender Paul Hart forced home the only goal of the match in the 33rd minute.

Bengals Fire Their Tiger

CINCINNATI (AP) — Bill (Tiger) Johnson, who failed to win after inheriting a National Football League playoff contender built by Paul Brown, was fired Monday as head coach of Cincinnati Bengals after an 0-5 season start and was succeeded by Homer Rice.

Rice came to the NFL team this year as quarterback coach from Rice University, where he was head coach and athletic director.

Blues Clip Gulls

Wayne Proceviat fired two goals to spark Esquimalt Legion Blues to a 5-3 victory over Juan de Fuca Gulls in a South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League game Monday at Juan de Fuca Arena.

Esquimalt, which overcame a 2-0, first-period deficit to take a 4-2 lead into the final frame, also received goals from Murray Allen, Mark Eckstrom and Russ Kennedy.

Terry Coughlin, Steve Saunders and Mark Selva replied for Gulls.

Couple's Team Ministry

BOB AND DOROTHY DOBSON

Rev. Bob Dobson and his wife, Dorothy, have discovered what they name as "team ministry."

It has proven a perfect way of reaching people of the United Church, they say, and involves them in "the experience of renewal through the born-again movement that is gaining momentum within the church today."

They don't know if others are using team ministry. In fact, they rather hesitantly tell you, they may be the first.

As regional representatives with the United Church Renewal Fellowship (UCRF) they have been travelling in Canada "to meet with folk (lay people and clergy) in small and large groups."

Some of these people had previously not organized under the UCRF. Others were already in the interdenominational framework. Still others were nearly ready to start UCRF chapters.

The "team ministry" they speak of and used wherever they went placed both of them on platforms and in pulpits, standing together and speaking with equal emphasis.

"I started the ball rolling with a text or biblical lessons and my own thoughts on interpretation of that text or lesson," Dobson explains.

"Dorothy then supplied the objective viewpoint, by adding her own ideas based on practical experiences and offering anecdotes and stories about other places we had visited and people we had met along the way."

Everywhere they went they expounded the "born-again" theme and what that experience means. "We emphasized this as we dialogued as a team."

Mrs. Dobson added "we shared our own commitments as well as stories of what was happening to us and others along the way, interwoven with bits of guidance and prophecy."

In the past year this husband-and-wife team has undertaken four different assignments for the UCRF.

The first took them in their yellow Volkswagen van, on what they term as "a working holiday" to an orientation course during a United Church conference at Orillia, Ont., and from there to Nova Scotia.

Second saw them travelling, again in the van, into central British Columbia, "better known as the Cariboo."

Next came an opportunity to fill in for three weeks in the summer, for the minister at Ucluelet, a pastoral charge that includes Tofino and Ahousat.

Highlight of that visit was an invitation to speak at the Kelthsmit Bible Camp for Indian families on Vargas Island.

"Some 300 to 400 people of all ages were assembled there," Dorothy Dobson says.

"Not all participated in the Bible studies but all enjoyed the friendship and community spirit."

The camp was inter-denominational. A Roman Catholic priest and two Pentecostal pastors were there as well as the Dobsons.

"We all attended the adult Bible study group, under leadership of a young native Indian, a graduate from Bible College in Vancouver."

The most recent trip for this dedicated couple was to attend United Church family camps sponsored by the UCRF, one at Kawkawa Lake near Hope and the other at Rock Lake near Fernie.

"Incredible journeys" the Dobsons call all four assignments.

Why do they use that word "incredible"?

Because they discovered wherever they went "the Spirit of God is moving throughout the United Church (and many other denominations, too) in a remarkable way."

How did the Dobson team get started in this challenging work of the UCRF?

It was in June, 1977.

Dobson, then supply minister for James Bay United Church, was completing a lengthy career in the ministry that included a stint with the United Church mission ship Thomas Crosby and a year or more at New Hazelton.

Just as he was about to retire from the James Bay Church he was asked to become a regional representative for UCRF.

"I didn't know exactly what that entailed," he remembers, "but I told them I wouldn't accept unless Dorothy could be included in the work, too."

As it happened, Mrs. Dobson had just retired as a Grade One teacher at Cloverdale School.

"We were both ready for further service," she says with quiet sincerity.

"The invitation seemed like something we should do . . . or should I say we were meant to do. So we accepted."

Right now the Dobsons are at home in Victoria. But you can be sure when the next call comes, they'll be taking to the road again in the yellow Volkswagen expounding the born-again message to all who are firm in a desire to tune in."

Postscript — The United Church Renewal Fellowship came into being at a low point in the life of the Christian church nearly 13 years ago.

It was a crisis situation. Some church leaders were projecting the trend of statistics and predicting that, in a very few years, the church would be out of business.

At this point small groups across Canada who shared genuine concern for the United Church began meeting and praying for "clear evengelical witness, based on solid scriptural theology."

It was one of these groups, in central Ontario, that became the organizing force that resulted in the UCRF.

Since then the movement has grown in Canada and become world-wide, crossing all denominational lines.

And, as Bob and Dorothy Dobson tell you, "Christians everywhere have experienced an awareness of the power, joy, manifestations and fellowship in a fullness of the Holy Spirit, which is unprecedented in our lifetime."

Common ¢ents

By KATE MacQUEEN

Don't be the next motorist waiting with hood up for a truck to bring a fan belt or water hose for your overheated car. Before you drive today, check the hose for softness, bulges and cracks near the hose clamps. Turn on the engine and look for water leaks. Look for cracks, splitting or glazing on the fan belt — glazing causes the belt to slip. Then, keep a roll of furnace duct tape in the car to stop unexpected hose leaks until you can get to a service station.

Why not something old for the bride who likes antiques? An old sterling silver serving piece might be more of a treasure to her than something you could buy new for the same price. Old sterling costs much less than new silver. Don't worry about her silver pattern, just search for something that will look charming on her table.

Free For the Asking

By HARRIET HART

It's bound to happen. A new father will find himself for the first time alone with his baby.

Don't worry. The little illustrated booklet What Do I Do Now? will enable him to handle any situation.

This booklet offers basic baby-care tips from burping to bathing and bedtime. It starts by explaining how to pick up and hold a baby. It also urges new fathers never to leave the baby alone, not even for a minute to answer the phone, as in that time the baby could fall off a chair or investigate the flavor of anything within reach.

Furthermore, it states that when a baby is hungry, he wants prompt attention and will let you know loud and clear that he is ready for some food. As the baby grows older, you will be able to distinguish between hunger crying and crying for other reasons.

This is a truly helpful booklet which new fathers should keep handy. It is available from Public Relations Department, Chesebrough-Ponds (Canada) Ltd., 150 Bullock Drive, Markham, Ont. L3P 1W3.

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday I had a 2:30 p.m. dental appointment for a routine cleaning and checking. The dentist's office phoned me at noon to ask if I could possibly make it 1:30 p.m. instead, so I broke my neck to get there an hour earlier. Would you believe I sat in the waiting room cooling my heels until 3:30 p.m.! I was fit to be tied.

When I finally got in to see the dentist he didn't even apologize for keeping me waiting, and nobody thanked me for coming early. His nurse mumbled something about an emergency which was supposed to make everything all right.

Today I sent my dentist a bill for $30, explaining that my time was worth at least $15 an hour.

Care to comment?—STEAMED

DEAR STEAMED: Had you been the emergency, you would have been much more understanding. But they did owe you a "thank you" for coming early, as well as a "sorry" for the delay.

DEAR ABBY: I have never seen this subject in your column, but I think it's worth mentioning.

I am constantly baffled as to why so few people, male or female, lower the toilet lid after use. Many men show a shocking lack of consideration for others by failing to lower the SEAT — but failing to lower the lid is equally offensive in my view.

I notice that even women who maintan immaculate homes are as guilty as those who lead a more casual life style. I've never been able to understand this.

It would be difficult to consider a toilet a thing of beauty, but with raised lid or seat, the total esthetics of the room are lost if indeed they ever existed.

DEAR JIM: Personally, I don't care whether the lid is up or down. However, the seat is quite another matter.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please ask your professional consultants how close to a TV set a child can sit without damaging his eyes? My grandmother keeps telling me that my kids will ruin their eyes if they sit too close to the set.

Also, my neighbor says she heard that constant exposure to the radiation rays of television can cause cancer.

Please print your answer. I am sure many others would like to know.—FAN

DEAR FAN: My experts agree that sitting too close (closer than six feet) to the TV set can cause eye strain, headaches, etc. And they recommend that a dim light should be on while watching television. To date there is no evidence that television radiation causes cancer.

CONFIDENTIAL TO LEE: "Chutzpah" is borrowing ice and glasses from a neighbor whom you have not invited to the party.

Now's the time to reinvest in new Canada Savings Bonds

1 Locate and identify your bonds

1969/70 Series (S24) maturing November 1, 1978,

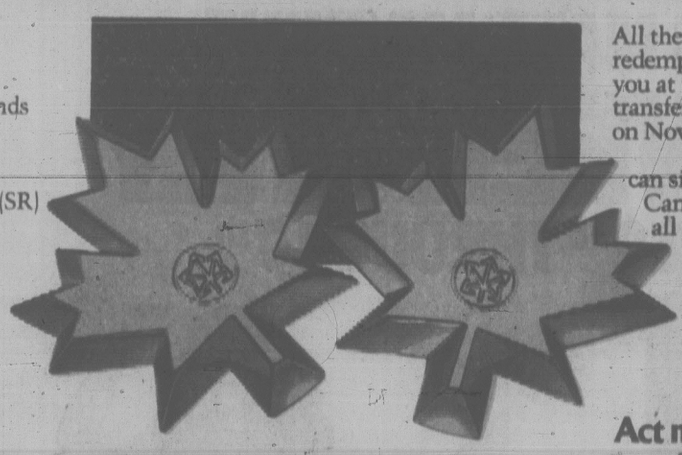
Look for "S24" or "SR" preceding the serial number on the corner of your maturing bonds.

2 Find out the cash value of your bonds

At maturity, every holder of "S24" or "SR" bonds will receive the face value shown on the bond, plus a special cash bonus payment and any interest payable on the bonds.

If you have any questions about the value of your bonds, just ask the people where you bank or invest.



3 Special arrangements make it easy to reinvest

Simply present your "S24" and "SR" Series Canada Savings Bonds to your bank or other authorized redemption agent.

All the paperwork in connection with the redemption of your bonds will be done for you at that time. For "S24" bonds the transfer of funds will take place automatically on November 1.

In the same transaction, you can sign up for the new 1978/79 Series Canada Savings Bonds. You may reinvest all proceeds from your maturing bonds in the new Series. Also, you may buy an additional amount up to $30,000, the purchase limit of the 1978/79 Series. It's a great way to keep your money working for you!

Act now

There are more than 900,000 Canadians who own maturing bonds. If you are one of them, go to your bank, investment dealer, trust company or credit union and make arrangements to reinvest in the new Canada Savings Bonds. Do it now and avoid the rush!

New Canada Savings Bonds offer you a great choice

With the new Series, you have a choice of bonds. There's a Regular Interest Bond that pays interest each year. And a Compound Interest Bond that reinvests your interest automatically, earning interest on your interest.

The Regular Interest Bond

If you want a regular annual income from your investment, you'll like the Regular Interest Bond which pays interest automatically each November 1.

If you're like many bondholders, you'll appreciate the direct deposit feature. With this convenient option, your interest is deposited directly into your chequing or savings account. Simply ask for it when you buy your new bonds. Or, you can receive your interest by cheque through the mail.

The Compound Interest Bond

If you seek savings growth, or an investment for the future, or a retirement fund, you'll choose the Compound Interest Bond which earns interest on your interest, after the first year, at the guaranteed annual rate of 8.90%. For example, a $100 bond will grow to $181.74 at maturity in just 7 years.

Security and instant cash

Whichever type of bond you choose, you will own a safe, secure investment which can be turned into instant cash whenever you need it.

A good return

New Canada Savings Bonds are dated November 1, 1978 and yield an average annual interest of 8.90% when held to maturity in 1985. Each new bond earns interest of 8.50% the first year and 9% for each of the remaining 6 years.

Buying Canada Savings Bonds has been a great Canadian tradition for over 30 years. They're the proven choice.

Red Zinger Draws the Bikers

Bicycles, as most everyone knows, are fun, and the two-wheeled contraptions provide good exercise, too.

In fact, biking's popularity has grown "hand-in-handle-bar" with that of running as more and more folks realize that the human body can't stay healthy if it isn't used every once in a while.

The riders who showed up in the Colorado Rockies July 8-15 for the 1978 Red Zinger Classic, however, weren't there to tighten their tummies. These people came to participate in one of the most prestigious amateur bicycle races in the world.

Over 160 entrants, both men and women, raced for a total of 19 hours over twisting roads that ranged from 6,000 to 12,500 feet above sea level.

One out of every four of these participants (the percentage held true for both sexes), however, found that he or she just wasn't up to the demands made by the course and had to quit before the event was over.

Those who finished the race — which actually was made up of a number of separate competitions — included representatives of the Olympic teams from 10 countries, and a whole slew of talented "privateers."

And when the bikes were set aside and the awards presented, 40,000 spectators saw George Mount of California declared the men's over-all champion and women's class honors given to Holland's Keetie Van Oosten-Hage.

Team trophies went to the Cateyes, a U.S. women's bicycle club, and to the United States national team.

Just four years ago the "Zinger" wasn't much more than an unknown event for local sportsmen. The race has come a long way since then, especially since its "success story" has taken place while a lot of traditional sports have declined in popularity.

But the competition's sponsors — Celestial Seasonings and Red Seal Potato-Chips — aren't satisfied. "Hey", they say, "if you thought this year was something, come see us in 1979!"

Women: Catalysts

HALIFAX (CP) — Women are the catalysts for change in society because they are not locked into outmoded male structures which hamper change in the western world, Dr. E. Margaret Fulton, president of Mount St. Vincent University said Saturday.

Dr. Fulton spoke following her installation as president at a ceremony here. She is the first lay person and the first non-Roman Catholic to become president of the university founded by the Sisters of Charity.

Dr. Fulton was formerly dean of women and an associate professor of education at the University of B.C.

She said universities in the past have been instrumental in creating the world's problems, because they allowed research and study to become so specialized.

Youth Clinic

Young readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel of experts: Marion Powell, medical doctor; Graham Cotter, clergyman; and Bruce Vichert, social worker. Send questions to Youth Clinic, The Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas St., Victoria, B.C., V8W 2N4.

DEAR MR. VICHERT: I am a 16-year-old girl and am having problems overcoming a guilt complex. A few months ago my boyfriend and I broke up on a mutual agreement, but I can't seem to stop wondering if he used me. We went steady for almost a year, a very close relationship, but we fooled around a lot. I really felt I loved him and I think he felt the same about me.

But now I feel resentment toward him and hatred toward myself. Even in my dreams I am haunted. I've gone out with a couple of guys since, but they don't last long because when the guy wants to go too far I draw the line. It's gotten to the point where I am not even interested in guys.

How can I get myself straightened out?

ANSWER: I do not think that you should worry about whether or not your ex-boyfriend used you or not. From your description I doubt that he did. It seemed that you had a relationship which you both enjoyed, and then by mutual agreement terminated.

Naturally you would have feelings about the fact that the relationship has ended for whatever reason. When you have enjoyed a good relationship and it ends, it is natural to wonder if things could have been different and if you should have treated each other better. Along with these feelings there's usually some anger that it had to end. It is especially difficult if you find that you still like your ex-boyfriend a lot.

I would suggest you remember the positive things about that relationship and give yourself some time to adjust to the separation. During this time, try to think about how you can approach your next relationship with more understanding of yourself.

Sometimes we believe we love someone, only to discover when we get to know them better that the relationship doesn't have enough depth to sustain itself. Then it is wise to terminate it.

You do not need to feel guilty about this. If you give yourself a chance you will meet someone that you will like again, and, more important, that you will like yourself again also.

* * *

DEAR DR. COTTER: I am a 15-year-old girl and my problem is my best friend, also 15. She is considered very attractive and popular. Last year she went around with a guy who used her and then dropped her. She was extremely hurt and depressed.

This year we both attending the same high school and she became a cheerleader and was very popular with most of the guys in the school. She also started using drugs and alcohol and acting very sleazy. She now has a reputation for being "easy" and a slut. She seems to enjoy this new life but she is also a bad influence on me.

I have known her for 10 years and I don't want to lose her friendship. Why has she changed like this and how can I help her?

ANSWER: I expect you both have changed considerably since you were both five years old. She has changed in one way because she easily accepts goals and direction in life from her peers — people her own age and of her own inclinations.

If you don't have her inclinations and her goals and are not so easily influenced by the gang, you will be able to go on being yourself. Resist the things you think are wrong when other people try to influence you.

You can best help her by being willing to be her friend. She will be in one kind of trouble sooner or later and if you have been a steady influence she may turn to you. But don't expect too much of yourself.

We can try to bear burdens for other people but if they are not willing to part with their burdens or don't think their behavior is a "burden" of trouble, then we must commend them in our prayers and go about our own business until called upon to do otherwise.

DEAR DR. POWELL: I'm 14 years old and have not begun my menstruation yet. I was wondering if this was abnormal or are there any girls who are like me.

ANSWER: Many girls begin to menstruate before they are 14. A few will begin at 10. Some will have their first period when they are 11. Most girls will have ther periods when they are 12 and 13 but some like you will mature later and will have their first period after they are 14 or 15.

Many factors influence the age at which girls physically mature and begin to menstruate. These include generic factors. If your mother menstruated when she was older, you may be like her.

Nutrition plays a factor, too. Race, and the climate of the country where you live, affect the age at which girls menstruate for the first time. Because young people in your generation are taller and bigger than their parents, they physically mature at an earlier age.

This is a long answer to reasure you that 14 is not too late to begin menstruating. There are other girls who have not begun their periods yet at 14 so you are not the only one.

Bio-dex

HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:

BIO-DEX READOUT:

6-10 Neutral Cycle- If you're unsure of the answer keep your mouth shut. Let somebone else speak up.

11-15 Positive Cycle- Frustration is just a word today: everything will fall into place and life will be great.

We all have bad times - when pressures of work, school and home all attack us at once. Add a low Bio-dex and things can really become desperate. This is a time when you should pull a vanishing act. Get right away from the problems and you may see a solution to them. Always remember that you're not alone - bad times come to most of us sooner or later.

New Method Touted For Removing Scars

Scars of the face that leave a deep, pitted area are now being treated by a new method. Dr. Sheldon K. Gottlieb, a dermatologist at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C., devised a special technique to elevate the scars left by injury, acne, herpes and other infections.

By using the patient's own plasma in conjuction with a special type of gelatin sponge and a chemical, aminocarpoic acid, the results have been extremely good

The procedure is safe and is done with local anesthesia. The preliminary studies are sufficiently encouraging to make other specialists in this field anxious to duplicate it.

Marijuana is again the target of scientific inquiry. Dr. Donal P. Tashkin, at the University of California in Los Angeles, announced at a medical society meeting that "the long-term use of marijuana may be more likely than tobacco smoking to cause obstructive lung disease." He maintains that the resistance to the air flow into the lungs is significantly increased among marijuana users as compared with ciragette smokers.

He says, "The adverse effect of marijuana on pulmonary fuction emerged from a study of 74 young men who smoked an average of five 'joints' a week for five years."

Certainly, this is an interesting finding that deserves consideration by those who insist smoking marijuana is harmless.

Obviously, the whole story about marijuana and its potential hazards is still incomplete

The presence of high amounts of cholesterol and fatty lipids is often seen as a family trait. Dr. John P. Kane and his colleagues at the University of California have been testing a two-pronged attack on this menace to health.

Using a diet low in cholesterol and saturated fats, in conjunction with nicotinic acid and the drug, colestipol, cholesterol levels have been markedly reduced in the blood. The combination of diet and drugs has been very encouraging. It is hoped that families burdened by the disorder of hyper-lipidemia may be significantly helped by this new approach.

PETER POLLEN FORD

Ford FIESTA

In Europe, where they really know their cars, the Ford Fiesta has become the best selling new car in history. It is now Europe's most popular small car. So well has the Fiesta sold, that Ford has become the largest vehicle manufacturer in Europe.

Why is the Ford Fiesta such a success? Because the European demands an efficient, durable, well-designed car. Fiesta, for example, gives 32% better gas mileage than the Volkswagen Rabbit. (Only with the sluggish diesel at an additional $400 can the Volkswagen Rabbit match Fiesta economy.)

The Fiesta also gives superb handling for a small car due to outstanding design and its radial tires. Fiesta has excellent pick-up and is a joy when shifting gears. The gear box is one of the smoothest in the industry.

With its three doors, the Ford Fiesta also offers the versatility of fold-down rear seats for station wagon cargo space.

The frugal European also knows a best buy when it comes to price: the Ford Fiesta sells for hundreds of dollars less than the Volkswagen Rabbit

Come drive a Ford Fiesta at our place. You'll be convinced. Just like so many Europeans. The Fiesta, made in Germany with the mark of excellence.

CHILD'S LIFE JACKET

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — By next summer, boating and water activities for children should be safer with the development of a lifejacket designed especially for them.

The first life vest for children to be approved by the federal government is to be made by a Guelph firm, Buoy-O-Boy Marine Equipment Co., a division of Guelph Elastic Hosiery Co. Ltd.

Jim Black, an official of the federal consumer and corporate affairs department, said the problem of safe jackets for children has long been a concern.

Three years ago the government funded a research program at University of Ottawa to find a functional lifejacket for children.

Last month the researchers came up with specifications for a jacket that will provide the proper buoyancy.

Black said the problem with earlier lifejackets was that they were not designed to compensate for the fact that children's heads are heavy compared with the rest of their bodies.

This causes the centre of gravity of a child's body to be different from an adult's and, as a result, a child may tip over on his face and drown if placed in the water wearing an adult-style lifejacket.

Another problem, he said, is that the large armholes of an adult-style lifejacket may allow a child's head to slip under water.

David Kent, plant manager at Buoy-O-Boy said production will begin in October. The jackets should start appearing in stores in January.

Kent said the firm will manufacture the vests in three sizes for tots up to 90 pounds, selling for between $16 and $20.

Another benefit for the consumer, Kent said, is that the jackets will never wear out or become waterlogged.

Closed-cell foam is used so that punctures won't affect their performance.

Burned to Death In Anti-UN Protest

GENEVA (AP) — A young Australian woman burned herself to death in front of the European headquarters of the United Nations, leaving behind a note criticizing UN delegates for their "luxurious life."

Police confirmed the woman's nationality and said she was 24 years old but refused to make public her identity until her family was informed. Australian Consul Ken Cowland said his government is checking into reports that she was Lynette Sandra Phillips of New South Wales, who was deported from Britain Sept. 26 after Scotland Yard got a tip she was going to burn herself to death outside the home office in London.

One British newspaper said Miss Phillips had given thousands of dollars to the Indian religious sect Ananda Marga, some of whose members have staged attacks on Indian representatives around the world to protest the imprisonment of their leader.

Wearing a white gown, the woman sat down on the lawn in front of the Palace of Nations and set fire to herself Monday night. Two photographers were present, one having been told there would be a demonstration and the other a friend on his way home who stopped to chat.

"We were just about to cross the street along the palace grounds to talk to her when all of a sudden she was burning like a torch," said Yannik Muller. "It was horrible. She never even cried. There was not a sound out of her. The whole thing lasted only a few minutes."

Among several handwritten notes outside the small circle of blackened grass was one saying: "The United Nations holds the lives and hopes of billions in its decisions, but the delegates prefer a luxurious life to their human responsibilities."

The note was headed "Progressive Utilization Theory — PROUT." Prout was also the name of an organization Scotland Yard officials believed the deported woman belonged to.

Murdoch Forges Separate Pact

Times News Services

NEW YORK — Rupert Murdoch, publisher of the New York Post began the 55-day newspaper strike here as the tough-talking point man for the publishers' association, but his fellow publishers discovered Monday that their point man had negotiated a separate peace.

"We are caught in a predicament," an executive of one paper said Monday. "It will be interesting to see what we do."

Murdoch handed The New York Times and Daily News a hot potato when he reached a tentative agreement with striking pressmen in a single, eight-hour bargaining session.

The agreement, according to several sources, is as much a device to pressure the Times and News as it is a contract to get the Post back on the streets.

Murdoch reportedly has agreed that if the pressmen return to work now, they will receive from him most of the contract benefits they eventually negotiate with Murdoch's fellow publishers.

Murdoch, president of the publishers' association and an executive of another paper, declined to discuss the deal.

It remained unclear, however, what would happen on the central issue of the strike — manning. The publishers have insisted that they must reduce the number of pressmen and take control of the scheduling of pressmen away from the union.

Although a Post spokesman said early Monday that the afternoon paper could resume publishing Wednesday, executives later said it would take them longer to settle their other labor contracts.

Neither the Times nor Daily News said Monday how Murdoch's separate peace affects its plans.

Pt. Angeles Oil Port Issue Before Court

OLYMPIA (AP) — The long-standing argument over whether the state has the right to pre-empt local land use ordinances when considering siting of an energy facility finally went before the courts Monday.

The entire concept of Washington's so-called "one-stop" process for obtaining a licence for an energy facility was taken under study by Judge Robert Doran of Thurston County Superior Court following a lengthy hearing.

At issue before Doran were three separate motions filed by Clallam County, the Energy Facility Site Evaluation Council and the Northern Tier Pipeline Co.

Northern Tier argued that amendments to the original 1970 siting act give the siting council the right to pre-empt local zoning ordinances if a specific ordinance might stand in the way of siting an energy facility at a certain location.

"The court's decision will decide whether opposition of a single governmental unit can be allowed to totally frustrate an energy project that has the support of the state and other local units," said Northern Tier attorney Dan Syrdal.

Craig Ritchie, prosecuting attorney for Clallam County, which would be host for Northern Tier's proposed oil port, argued that the legislative history of the siting act indicated to him that the lawmakers have at no time intended to give the state the right of pre-emption.

Bhutto Supporters Riot In Lahore

RAWALPINDI (Reuter) — Demonstrators demanding the release of condemned former Pakistani Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto went on a rampage in Lahore Monday night, fighting with police and setting fire to several vehicles.

Demonstrators threw stones and overturned vehicles, several of which were set on fire, the reports said.

A police statement said security forces fired tear gas shells to break up the crowd, and 43 persons were arrested. The rioting lasted three hours.

Bhutto is in prison awaiting the outcome of an appeal against his sentence of death by hanging for ordering the murder of a political opponent.

The Mafia and Hot Cigarettes

GENEVA (Reuter) — The world's big tobacco companies are running into competition from the Mafia, which has moved heavily into the bootleg cigarette trade in the United States, a United Nations report says.

The report, which gave governments and other institutions, UN files and published articles as sources for its contents, is aimed at explaining the world tobacco market to developing countries. It is not destined for consideration by any UN body.

It said New York's five organized crime families are estimated to have a gross income from bootleg cigarettes of aroand $1.5 billion a year in the United States and might move into the world market.

The report, dealing with world tobacco trade generally, was issued by the UN Conference on Trade and Development. It is the first time the Mafia have ever been mentioned in an UNCTAD document.

Because of differences in local taxes, a carton of 200 cigarettes costing $2.89 in North Carolina sells legally in New York city for $5.25. The bootleg price is about $4.

"This means," the report said, "that a single truckload bought in North Carolina and brought to New York would yield a profit of $60,000."

The report said: "For the U.S. as a whole, bootleg marketing now accounts for around 25 to 30 per cent of total sales.

"For New York City, the proportion is as high as 50 per cent."

It said that seven big tobacco corporations dominate the world market at the expense of the devloping countries which produce more than one-half the world's leaf tobacco.

It also accused big tobacco companies of paying millions of dollars in bribes in the United States and other countries to ensure their profits.

CARTER SLASHES IMMUNITY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three months from now, the vast majority of the 10,341 employees of foreign embassies will no longer have diplomatic immunity from U.S. laws.

President Carter Monday signed legislation that gives total civil and criminal immunity only to the 2,309 foreign diplomats accredited to Washington.

Even accredited diplomats will have to have liability insurance on cars, boats and airplanes under the new legislation.

The diplomats will also be subject to American civil law in three specific areas: Real estate transactions, commercial transactions and when acting as executors or trustees of estates or wills.

Morocco Repluses Attack

RABAT (AP) — Moroccan government officials said today a border attack by Algerian troops and tanks has been repulsed and hinted reprisal raids made be made against bases of the Polisario guerrillas in Algeria.

The officials said the Algerians attacked a supply convoy near the Moroccan desert outpost of Hassi Tilemsi on Friday, returned with reinforcements Saturday and were repulsed after a battle Sunday.

Dead and wounded were reported on both sides but the numbers were not given.

King Hassan II said in a message to Algerian President Houari Boumedienne he might be forced to take decisions "which no conscientious leader takes lightly or with an easy heart." The statement was believed to imply reprisals against Polisario bases in the Algerian oasis of Tindouf, which Morocco claims.

10 Protestants Charged With 19 Ulster Murders

BELFAST (AP) — Ten Protestants arrested in one of the biggest manhunts since sectarian violence erupted in Northern Ireland a decade ago were charged Monday with a total of 19 murders.

All 10 pleaded not guilty.

The 19 murders were alleged to have been committed between November, 1975, and March, 1977.

Other charges against the men included attempted murder, conspiracy to murder, possession of guns and causing an explosion.

Three of those jailed are alleged members of the illegal Ulster Volunteer Force, a terrorist group composed mainly of Protestants that is a foe of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, a predominantly Roman Catholic organization.

One of the accused, William Moore, 29, of Belfast, was charged with 11 murders. Another suspect, Robert Bates, 29, also of Belfast, faces 10 counts of murder.

The victims include six Roman Catholics found with their throats cut and a seventh Catholic killed with a hatchet. Other victims included a bar owner and five customers, all shot to death in an attack at the Chlorame Bar in Belfast's central district in June, 1976.

Another victim was a 10-year-old boy killed by a bomb planted along an IRA parade route in Belfast on Easter Sunday last year.

Two men were killed on a workers' bus. Three other victims were Protestants.

The other men appearing in court Monday with Moore and Bates were Robert McAllister, 23, of Belfast, charged with four murders; Benjamin Edwards, 26, Belfast, charged with three murders; Norman Waugh, 26, Belfast; charged with two murders; Arthur McClay, 25, of Antrim, charged with two murders. William Townsley, 17; Edward Lackey, 34; James Watt, 25, and Daid Bell, 24, all of Belfast, were charged with one murder each.

In a related development, police said a part-time captain in Northern Ireland's militia, the Ulster Defence Regiment, was shot and critically wounded Monday in a suspected IRA attack near Newry, near the border with Ireland.

U.S. Tax Bite 14 Per Cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average U.S. taxpayer spent about 14 per cent of his earnings on government income taxes in 1977, the Internal Revenue Service said Monday.

For the second consecutive year, U.S. taxpayers reported taxable income of more than $1 trillion, the IRS said. They paid about $154.6 billion in income taxes.

Many taxpayers were driven into higher income tax brackets as their incomes rose in 1977. However, married taxpayers received a tax cut while single taxpayers paid higher taxes for the year.

Through May, about 61 million persons received refunds totalling $29.1 billion. The average refund was $476.85.

Ouellet To Head Funeral Delegation

OTTAWA (CP) — Two federal cabinet members, a Quebec cabinet member, an Alberta legislature member and the president of an Italian-Canadian association will attend Wednesday's funeral for Pope John Paul in Rome, the prime minister's office announced Monday.

A brief statement said Andre Ouellet, minister of urban affairs, Norman Cakik, minister for multiculturalism, Camille Laurin, Quebec cultural affairs minister, Alberta MLA Wasyl Diachuck and Laureano Leone, president of the National Congress of Italian-Canadians will attend the Vatican funeral.

The Pope died Thursday of heart attack only 34 days after he was installed as spiritual leader of the world's Roman Catholics.

2nd CESSNA BACK AS CRASH THEORY

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Crash investigators are again considering the theory that a third aircraft might have confused the pilot of a Pacific Southwest Airlines jetliner before his aircraft collided with a single-engined Cessna, causing the worst air disaster in U.S. aviation history.

The investigators say imprecise language between controllers at Lindbergh Field and the pilot of the jetliner also might be a critical factor.

$10M Lawsuit On Army LSD

WASHINGTON (WP) — A former private the Army has admitted dosing with LSD 17 years ago without his knowledge sued the federal government and 31 past and present officials Monday for $10 million in damages.

James Thornwell, now 41, claims that the Army's administration of the drug to him in Orleans, France, in June, 1961, left him "a social and emotional cripple, chronically and painfully isolated and withdrawn from the normal experiences of life in human society."

Thornwell, who now lives in Oakland, Calif., also alleged in his suit that he was "contiously subjected to a battery of brutal and unlawful interrogation techniques" before he was given the drug. The Army last year said that at the time it was conducting an investigation into allegations that.Thornwell had stolen classified documents.

Interrogation techniques included "severe forms of physical and sensory deprivation as well as beating and verbal abuse," he claims.

He was questioned, the suit charged, for periods of up to 70 hours at a time as his face "was slapped and splashed with water to keep him awake."

In addition, Thornwell claims, he was subjected to "racial and sexual" slurs.

Guide to Primrose Lane

The single-flowered primulas, commonly called primroses, and Primula polyanthus with many flowers to a stem, make a wonderful showing in spring either massed in a bed or as an edging to a long border.

These plants are propagated after the spring display of blooms has finished.

Each plant is lifted, divided into single pieces with roots attached, and the divisions planted in semi-shaded rows in a spare piece of ground to grow on over summer.

While the soil is still reasonably dry and has residual summer warmth, the primroses and polyanthuses are returned to the beds or borders after the soil has been dug and compost added.

If the bed or border is well filled with other plants a single row edging is satisfactory, but when the planting is sparse a better effect is obtained by allowing some of the primulas to "drift" casually here and there between the permanent plants.

Another pleasing effect is possible when the primulas are planted in large groups, five or 10 plants as a circle or a triangle, at various points along a border.

There are a lot of points in favor of using small beds, or a portion of a long border, for one kind of spring or summer flowering plants. For example, a bed of daffodils, a bed of tulips, and a bed of primulas.

This method gives a succession of strong focal points to the garden; as one bed goes out of flower another becomes the centre of attraction, and the work needed on the plants after flowering can be done at the correct time without interfering with those coming into bloom.

All narcissi, the genus of spring flowering bulbs which includes the daffodils, should have been planted around Labor Day. Using group plantings of five to a dozen bulbs gives a far greater impact than the same number of bulbs planted in a single row.

Although the flower are already formed within the narcissus bulbs, a long rooting period is needed in warm soil if full size blooms are to be obtained.

It is not unusual for home gardeners to buy bulbs, receive a gift of bulbs, or discover forgotten bulbs in the basement, at this late date.

These bulbs should be planted immediately so as to make as large a root system as possible before the soil is cooled by fall rains. The longer they remain out of the soil the more they deteriorate and the smaller the flowers will be next spring.

Bulbs which feel soft and spongy should be burned in a hot incinerator fire to destroy the grub of the narcissus bulb fly which has already fed on next year's flowers within the bulb.

Yulip bulbs are planted by mid-October. These are better set four to six inches below the soil surface, for depth seems to be an antidote for the tulip fire disease.

When digging tulips the home gardener often finds a new bulb attached to the base of the older bulb by a stem three to six inches in length.

These droppers, as they are called in the trade, appear when the original planting depth was too shallow. It is the plant's endeavor to make the new bulbs at a depth best suited to its growing requirements. The wise gardener notes these droppers and the length of their attached stem, and makes the new plantings accordingly.

308 CARD OF THANKS

We want to express our sincere appreciation to our many friends, for the kindness and sympathy extended us at the loss of our beloved husband and father. Also our deepest thanks for the beautiful floral tributes, cards and donations to the Heart Fund. Mrs. Margaret Falconer, son, David daughter Linda.

309 IN MEMORIAM

JANCOWSKI — In loving memory of a wonderful husband and father, Rick, who was taken from us so suddenly on October 3, 1974, at the age of 28.
We smile with the world,
As you would have wished,
But in our hearts you are
So sadly missed.
Always remembered by his loving wife Gwen and dear son Kevin.

JANCOWSKI — In loving memory of a dear son-in-law and brother-in-law Rick, who was taken from us on October 3, 1974.
Sadly missed and always remembered by his mother and father-in-law, Mark and Corrie Perry and brother-in-laws Dennis and Chris Perry.

309 IN MEMORIAM

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
—WITH GRATITUDE. SANDS

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc. for rent, or property for sale, start your ad with the location.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

RAPPING WITH his audience, singing his own songs and those of others, Tom Waits, recording artist and entertainer, called by some a contemporary Will Rogers, comes to Victoria Wednesday and will appear at the University Centre Auditorium under the auspices of the Alma Mater Society. He will give two shows, at 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. In November he will be seen on movie screens in Sylvester Stallone's new feature, Paradise Alley. Waits' first album, Closing Time, marked the beginning of a career that has seen him travelling and performing over thousands of miles. "I enjoy what I do as an entertainer," he says. "It's certainly better than wages."

Volunteer Fair Slated at UVic

Opportunities for students to volunteer their services in assisting local agencies will be featured at a Volunteer Fair from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Union building of the University of Victoria.

Among the organizations represented at the fair, which is sponsored by the Victoria Volunteer Bureau, will be Glendale Hospital, NEED Crisis Line, the Capital Region Association for the Mentally Handicapped, Citizen Advocacy, B.C. Corrections, the Canadian Mental Health Association, Cornerstone, the Oak Bay Volunteer Services, Juan de Fuca Hospital Society and the G.R. Pearkes Clinic.

Representatives from the Victoria Volunteer Bureau will also be available to discuss other volunteer opportunities.

The bureau is a non-profit agency which links individuals interested in volunteering with groups which need them. More than 130 Victoria organizations are now listing requests with the bureau.

The number to contact for information is 386-2269.

Before The Judge

A 27-year-old Esquimalt man was given a nine-month jail term Monday after pleading guilty to a lesser charge of attempted indecent assault in Victoria provincial court.

Robert Charles Barker, 453 Head, was handed the sentence by Judge Harold Alder after Crown counsel Don Laughton suggested that the protection of the public, rehabilitation of Barker and deterence to others be considered in that order.

Barker was orginally charged with indecent assault and assault with intent to commit rape.

At about 12:45 a.m. Aug. 9, Barker approached a young woman walking along Government Street near Yates and grabbed her buttocks.

He then asked her if she wanted to "make a few bucks" and offered her "$50 for just five minutes of your time."

However, the victim managed to gain the attention of a passing taxi, struggled free and ran to the vehicle.

Victoria city police apprehended Barker sitting in Scott's restaurant, 650 Yates, shortly after the incident.

Laughton said Barker has a criminal history, which included convictions for three counts of breaking and entering on Jan. 9, 1970, for which he received concurrent sentences of four months definite and eight months indeterminate, and for attempted breaking and entering on Jan. 13, 1971, for which he received a suspended sentence and two years' probation.

Alder also placed Barker on one year's probation and ordered him to accept any therapy as directed by his probation officer.

Brian Meredith-Jones, 35, of 36 Tovey Cres., was fined a total of $1,250 by Judge William Ostler after pleading guilty to five counts under the Income Tax Act.

Meredith-Jones pleaded guilty to failing to file income tax forms for the years 1972 to 1976, inclusive, and received fines of $250 on each count. Minimum and maximum fines under that section of the act are $200 and $10,000.

Crown counsel Harold Turnham said Meredith-Jones had a previous history of failing to file returns, drawing a $200 fine June 31, 1971, for failure to file his 1970 income tax return, $50 July 15, 1975, for failure to file his 1971 return and $75 Feb. 9, 1977, again for failure to file his 1971 return.

A 36-year-old man was remanded in custody until today for election of his trial method and bail hearing after being charged with breaking and entering.

A 25-year-old who declined to be represented by legal counsel had his preliminary hearing date set for Oct. 13.

David Lee Shaeffer, 329 Simcoe, was charged with possession of an alleged seven pounds of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking.

When asked by Ostler if he had seen a lawyer, Shaeffer said he had not and did not wish to do so. Shaeffer then elected trial by judge and jury and the issue of his release was not dealt with at the time.

"You know you don't have to steal because you're hungry," Ostler said to a 40-year-old man, "Go see the Salvation Army."

Trevor Haynes Niall, no fixed address, pleaded guilty to a charge of theft under $200.

Crown counsel Richard Law told the court Niall was caught Saturday afternoon shoplifting pepperoni and chicken legs valued at $7.08 from Maverick Market, 880 Esquimalt.

Law said Niall, who had $3.58 in his pockets, told Esquimalt police he had been in town 1½ weeks and was hungry.

Fined for drinking-driving were Bradley David Hoey, 20, of 11 Hampton, $500; Michael Allan Caird, 37, of 1509 Church, $400; and Arthur John MacLeod, 19, of 3185 Cadboro Bay, $400.

HUNT HINDERED

Finding unexploded shells at the bottom of Kalamalka Lake in the Okanagan is going to be difficult, Defence Minister Barney Danson said Monday.

In a telegram to provincial Environment Minister Jim Nielsen, Danson said any search is hampered by the heavy growth of Eurasian milfoil on the lake bottom.

The shells were discovered this summer by crews dragging the lake for milfoil weed.

Centre Ice Set to Go in Duncan

DUNCAN — The arena portion of the new Cowichan Community Centre will open Saturday with ceremonies at 1 p.m.

"To show the centre is for people of all ages, we are inviting a senior citizen, Ivan Dobbyn, and five-year-old Shona Armand to take the first turn on the ice," centre manager Cezare Gianni said.

The ceremonies will be followed by public skating from 2 to 10:15 p.m.

Duncan Blades of the intermediate Big Six Hockey League will play their first game at the Cowichan Centre Sunday at 2 p.m. against Victoria Athletics. There will be more public skating Sunday, Monday and Tuesday nights before the arena goes on its regular schedule.

Multi-purpose rooms will be open for use by school classes Oct. 12 and the activity centre and gymnasium will open soon after that.

Grand opening of the entire centre takes place Dec. 9 with singer-comedian Rolf Harris booked as the first act in the theatre Dec. 10 at 8 p.m. Tickets go on sale at the centre box office Nov. 6 at $8.50 each and if the Dec. 10 show is sold out another will be held Dec. 11.

The theatre also has booked a children's Christmas show from the McPherson Playhouse in Victoria, Gianni said.

Quits Over Casino

MEMPHIS (AP) — The head of Holiday Inns has quit in protest over the hotel chain's recent decision to build a gambling casino in Atlantic City, N.J. L. M. Klymer, 55, was taking early retirement, the company said, because of "personal and religious" disagreement with the casino project.

Right-Wing Trend Looks Bad: Munro

VANCOUVER (CP) — Right-wing fanatics have singled out organized labor as its most effective opponent and wants labor's blood, Jack Munro, regional president of the International Woodworkers of America (IWA), said Monday.

"We have to plant our flag here and now and defend ourselves against all of the elements of this assault," Munro told the IWA's annual regional convention:

"These people want the whole economic and political bundle — and they want it now."

The IWA is faced with "circumstances more like those of our birth than any we have faced since."

Three elements the union ran up against at its founding in 1937 — a devastated economy, an entrenched right-wing and governments that connived with the extreme right — have re-appeared for a rerun of the 1930s, Munro said.

"Most menacing of all is the fact that both provincial and federal governments, lacking the courage and the initiative to find a way out of the Canadian economic chaos, have decided to busy themselves by appeasing . . . these lunatics from the far-right," Munro said.

After successfully separating the labor movement from welfare recipients and the unemployed, the right-wing is now trying to divide it from workers in the public sector, he said.

The right-wing has mounted the so-called tax revolt, Munro said, adding that what tax revolt supporters fail to point out is that their scheme provides only tiny tax savings for workers and huge windfall profits for the wealthy.

The California tax revolt leader, Howard Jarvis, is falsely painted in the press as an ordinary taxpayer, who fed up with his tax bill ventured into politics for the first time, Munro said, whereas Jarvis has been associated with the U.S. far-right, including the John Birch Society, for decades.

In reality, ordinary people pay for a tax revolt with a loss of essential public services, Munro said.

Turning to the forest industry, Munro said the declining dollar has rescued the forest industry from economic doldrums, but that "brings with it ruinious price increases."

Forest industry profits in the second quarter of 1978 are up by 91 per cent compared to the same time last year, Munro noted.

"The IWA is going to make sure that a good share of that money stays in Western Canada," he said.

"We think it's probably going to be a difficult year. For some reason it is more difficult to negotiate when the industry is having a good year."

While Munro would not put a figure on the amount the union is looking for until the wages and contract conference next March, he pointed out that the union received a six-per-cent increase this year, while inflation is running at about 10 per cent.

He said the union will be seeking a substantial increase for loggers, trying to improve pension benefits and attempting to set up a fund to research industrial disease.

Fed Dairy Policy Milks Taxpayers

OTTAWA (CP) — National dairy policy, one of the great sacred cows of agricultural politics, needs a massive overhaul because it hurts farmers and taxpayers, says the new federal agency monitoring wages and prices.

The policy, one of cornerstones of federal agriculture, doesn't make economical sense, says the Centre for the Study of Inflation and Productivity.

Basically the study suggests reducing production of industrial milk, used in making cheese, butter and ice cream, by as much as one-third to eliminate skim milk powder surpluses. They require hefty taxpayer subsidies to be disposed of at fire-sale prices on the world market.

Reducing milk production that much would mean insufficient butter but shortfalls could be filled by imports which now cost about one-third the price of the domestic product. Table milk, produced under provincial control, is not affected.

Besides the saving in subsidies, the farmer would get a higher return for his product and consumers might even get a small price break.

Observers say the analysis makes sense and almost reflects conditions of several years ago. But it has virtually no chance of being adopted by the federal government.

Evidence of the sacredness of the dairy policy can be found in its escape from federal cost-cutting that eliminated more than $60 million from the agriculture budget, one insider suggested.

The catch, the study's authors and agriculture officials quickly admit, is a one-third cut in production, now just under 100 million hundredweight annually, would mean about 15,000 farmers would have to leave dairying.

This could hit hard in Quebec which produces about 50 per cent of the country's industrial milk.

And with surpluses in most agriculture production except horticulture, beef and pork, it seems unlikely that many farmers could be absorbed into new fields — especially as one of the casualties of cost-cutting was a program to help farmers switch to new products.

WHALES BEACHED IN NEWFOUNDLAND

MUSGRAVE HARBOR, NFLD. (CP) — A beach near the northeast Newfoundland port of Musgrave Harbor is littered with the carcasses of 40 pothead whales.

Residents say the mammals are part of a pod of about 70 which swam up on the beach late Friday. Fishermen managed to tow many into deeper water so they could escape.

It is uncertain what made the whales beach themselves. Some residents think they may have been chased ashore by sharks.

Crash Blamed on Tire

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Frayed rubber from a tire on the Air Canada DC-9 that crashed at Toronto International Airport on June 26 activated an emergency switch on the plane's undercarriage and caused a loss of power in the starboard engine of the craft, Crown Attorney Leo McGuigan said Monday.

He said at a coroner's inquest that when the switch was broken, a warning light went on in the cockpit of the plane and the crew decided to abort the takeoff.

Brake systems in the craft apparently failed a number of times as the plane left the runway at a speed of 60 knots, crashing into a ravine, he said.

More than 15 lawyers representing various parties involved asked for standing status at the inquest. Evidence submitted so far includes 35 photographs and a videotape presentation filmed by the federal transport department.

Irwin Theodore Childs, 43, of Toronto and Frank Scrase, 75, of Victoria were killed in the crash and 105 other passengers were injured. The plane was leaving Toronto for Winnipeg.

The inquest continues.

Levesque Attacks Language Policy

LOS ANGELES (CP) — Efforts by the federal government to turn Canada into a bilingual country have made things worse, Premier Rene Levesque of Quebec said Monday.

Levesque said the Official Languages Act has added to the bilingualism problem rather than curing it "because in the rest of Canada they don't want to hear for love or money about bilingualism — they're English, and that's it.

"So they're resisting it, they're fighting it, and it's a sort of cultural supplement that didn't take — in fact it's made things worse."

Levesque told the Los Angeles World Affairs Council that until recently, French-Canadians have been treated as second-class citizens.

"Inside Quebec, there was this sort of ghetto situation of two solitudes — one minority running the other majority. Outside Quebec it was a rather sorry story of unfair treatment. It's been redressed up to a point because now our minorities are more or less going down the drain anyway."

Marxists Kept In Sights?

MONTREAL (CP) — An RCMP spokesman would neither deny nor confirm a claim by a Marxist-Leninist group here which says 50 federal officers armed with rifles kept group members under surveillance in the Eastern Townships last week.

"We are not interested in discussing security operations in public," RCMP Chief Superintendent Guy Marcotte said Monday. "We have no comments to make on this matter. We are not admitting it or denying it."

The group, In Struggle, said in a statement that RCMP officers had surrounded its camp near Sherbrooke, 140 kilometres east of here, last Friday and "armed with rifles, kept up their surveillance and intimidating tactics throughout the day."

The statement said that In Struggle members at the camp were taking part in "study sessions covering different aspects of work in the working class."

Medical File Apathy Alarms Ont. Judge

OTTAWA (CP) - The degree of public apathy about the misuse of private medical information is both surprising and alarming, says Mr. Justice Horace Krever, the head of a provincial commission on the confidentiality of medical records.

"The reason they're not upset is hard to digest," Krever, also of the Ontario Supreme Court, Monday told about 500 members of the Canadian Medical Records Association.

He said Canadians may also feel a sense of frustration and impotence to do anything about invasion of privacy.

"Another reason they may not speak up is that a successful invasion of privacy is not usually known. Only when it's bungled by someone is the invasion found out."

Krever was repeating concerns about public apathy made earlier Monday by Dennis Timbrell, Ontario health minister.

Timbrell said that despite the apparent lack of public concern about the invasion of confidentiality between doctor and patient, the province is preparing measures to protect the patient.

The use of a "unique personal identifier for health" such as a coded number has been approved by the government, he added.

Moreover, the ministry is working to develop procedures for guaranteeing security of information, including clear definition of who is responsible.

The government would not proceed with its plans until it receives final reports of inquiries on the confidentiality of health records.

He said the the public obviously does not realize the amount of information about an individual which can be assembled and evaluated in a computer system.

"If people were more aware of these facts, I believe they would be more concerned," Timbrell added. "The prejudices of an interviewer or a neighbor can deprive you of a job, insurance of a loan."

POLICE SEEK SIEGE PROBE

EDMONTON (CP) — RCMP said Monday they have asked for a full inquiry by the chief medical examiner into a 19-hour siege at a Willingdon-area farmhouse.

After the siege ended, the body of a woman was found on the floor of the house.

RCMP said in a news release they hope that all details of the matter will become public.

RCMP have confirmed that police task force members were involved in an exchange of gunfire during the siege last Friday. A shotgun and a rifle were seized from the house when the incident ended.

The woman — whose identity has not been confirmed — was found dead when police fired tear gas and entered the building.

Fish Trading Agency Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — A federal marketing agency is needed to sell Canadian fish abroad, Ed Broadbent, federal New Democratic Party leader, said Monday.

The agency could do the same job for fishermen on Canada's east and west coasts as the Canadian Wheat Board does for Prairie grain farmers, he told the regional convention of the International Woodworkers of America.

Broadbent said the federal government could cash in on Canada's 85-cent dollar by setting up a marketing board "that goes out aggressively seeking fish markets in the United States, Europe and Asia."

He also urged federal grants for Canadian-owned fish processing plants on both coasts to stop the gradual takeover of the fishing industry by Japanese investors.

Broadbent said the fish marketing agency is part of a broader NDP proposal for federal incentives in fisheries, plastics, communications and other industries in which Canada could become a world leader.

CADETS OPPOSE WOMEN

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The Whig-Standard says alumni of Royal Military College oppose admission of women to the college, at least until the department of national defence decides women should share in combat duty.

The newspaper says 180 members of the Royal Military Club of Canada voted unanimously at their annual meeting during the weekend to seek a meeting with Barney Danson, federal defence minister, to discuss the matter.

Danson said earlier this year that women will be admitted to one or more of Canada's three military colleges by 1980.

BIG SPLASH

HONG KONG — Construction workers got quite a surprise when a nude woman dropped on to their building site Monday. The woman had been living in a makeshift hut perched above the site. As she was taking a bath, the floor collapsed and she fell headfirst among the workmen. She was taken to hospital suffering cuts and bruises.

Settle. . .Or Else!

SAN FRANCISCO — A federal judge has made it very plain to Irish Sweepstakes winner Frank McNulty — he must settle with the Internal Revenue Service before he can be released from prison.

McNulty appeared before U.S. District Judge Alfonso Zirpoli Monday for a contempt hearing because of his refusal to pay taxes on the $128,410 he won in 1973.

McNulty was sentenced to five years in federal prison after rejecting the IRS demand for taxes. He would have been eligible for parole this week without the contempt charge.

However, Zirpoli is going to give the defendant another chance. He ordered him to appear in court again on Nov. 15 to see whether he will have a change of heart about the tax money.

"He has the key to his own liberation," Zirpoli said.

After the horse Bronze Hill won the sweepstakes, the retired handyman borrowed money and travelled to Dublin to pick up his winnings. He deposited them in a bank on Jersey in the Channel islands.

Now, however, he refuses to say what he has done with the money.

Hey, What About Me Then Uncle Jimmy?

SACRAMENTO — President Jimmy Carter's imprisoned nephew says that if his uncle decides to grant clemency to Patricia Hearst he hopes the president will pardon him, too. The nephew, William Carter Spann, is a prisoner at the California Medical Facility at Vacaville. He made his statement in a letter Monday to Sacramento television station KXTV. Miss Hearst, serving a seven-year sentence for her part in the robbery of a San Francisco bank 10 weeks after being kidnapped, has asked the president for clemency. Spann says he has served almost three years of a 10-years-to-life sentence for robbing a San Francisco bar of $360. "Since I didn't rob a bank, but a bar, and since I didn't fire any shots, I hope my Uncle Jimmy will be so kind as to pardon me along with Ms. Hearst," Spann said. He said he has served more time than Miss Hearst, and added, "Fair is fair — or is it?"

NEW YORK — Bianca Jagger went behind the bar at Manhattan's flashy Studio 54 disco and whipped up a drink for Vladimir Horowitz — her "favorite pianist." Horowitz was there celebrating his 75th birthday. Mrs. Jagger, wife of Rolling Stones lead singer Mick Jagger, is a regular at the popular night spot. Horowitz and his wife, Wanda, joined the regulars on the strobe-lit dance floor. Mrs. Horowitz says she normally does not indulge, but "this is his birthday . . . so I'll do anything he wants."

MYSTIC, Conn. — Emmy-award winning actress Meryl Streep has married artist-sculptor Donald Gummer at the home of Miss Streep's parents on Mason's Island. The couple lives in New York City. Miss Streep was named best actress in a limited series for her role as Inga in Holocaust. The NBC mini-series depicted the plight of European Jews under the Nazis.

MARION, Ind. — George (Spanky) McFarland — the plump, beanie-topped urchin of the Little Rascals and Our Gang comedies — celebrated his 50th birthday Monday at a party thrown by several hundred fans. "Life has been good to me," McFarland, now a Texas business executive, said. Cookies and punch were served and film clips of the 1930s comedies were shown.

TOKYO — A 30-year-old Japanese woman has given birth to quadruplets — all of them girls — without the help of fertility drugs, hospital officials said Monday. The officials said Mrs. Ayako Takeda and the babies were in fair condition. Babies' weights ranged from 5.06 pounds to 6.16 pounds.

CLEVELAND — King Khalid of Saudi Arabia cannot complete an exhaustive series of cardiac tests at the Cleveland Clinic until he gets over a cold that he has had since leaving Saudi Arabia last week. Saudi Arabian Ambassador Ali Alireza said Monday that in the meantime, "His majesty is not sitting idly by. He is conducting the business of state. He is too active a man to sit idle."

$1.1B RESERVES SPENT

Dollar Nearing Depression Low

Canadian Press

The Canadian dollar continued to drop against its U.S. counterpart on money markets today following news that the government spent a staggering $1.14 billion U.S. in official reserves in September to support the sagging currency.

It was the largest sum of money ever spent by the central bank to support the value of the dollar.

The government also announced its spending deficit for the first five months of the 1978-79 fiscal year was $6.049 billion, up 57 per cent from the shortfall in the same period of 1977-78.

The dollar, which opened below Monday's closing price of 83.89 U.S. cents, was trading at 83.66 U.S. cents by mid-morning and in New York at noon was at 83.82 cents U.S.

The currency is now only about a cent away from its second all-time low of 82.47 U.S. cents registered in April, 1933. The record low was set in December, 1931, when the dollar was worth 80.08 U.S. cents.

On Monday, traders had blamed pessimism about the reserve figures for the dollar's drop that day of more than half a cent against its U.S. counterpart. It was the biggest one-session decline since February, 1977.

The dollar's continued weakness today comes after the finance department revealed that the Bank of Canada spent $1.14 billion during the month of September to buy unwanted Canadian dollars on world currency markets.

In August, the bank used up more than $700 million of its U.S. reserves to prop up the dollar.

Despite the intervention, the dollar has dropped more four than four cents against the U.S. dollar since the beginning of August.

The dollar hovered around the 85-cent mark last week but suffered a blow Friday as a result of figures revealing a lower-then-expected trade surplus in August.

Guessing about the reserve figures led to a renewed sell-

Record Price Set for Gold

LONDON (Reuter) — The price of gold rose to a record $221.40 U.S. an ounce today amid continued turmoil in world currencies in spite of Switzerland's latest attempt to stabilize the situation.

The battered U.S. dollar weakened further against major currencies today and this sent the value of gold shooting up.

Province Payroll Up: 11,000 Jobs in City

The number of provincial civil service jobs in Greater Victoria totalled 10,987 in May of this year, Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf said Monday.

This is an increase of 426 over the 17 months leading up to May, he said.

The Canada Employment Centre estimates the Victoria labor force at just over 100,000, so the provincial civil service accounts for about 10 per cent of Victoria's employment.

Bawlf said he is tired of the needless hysteria created by those who believe there is a steady loss of government jobs in Victoria.

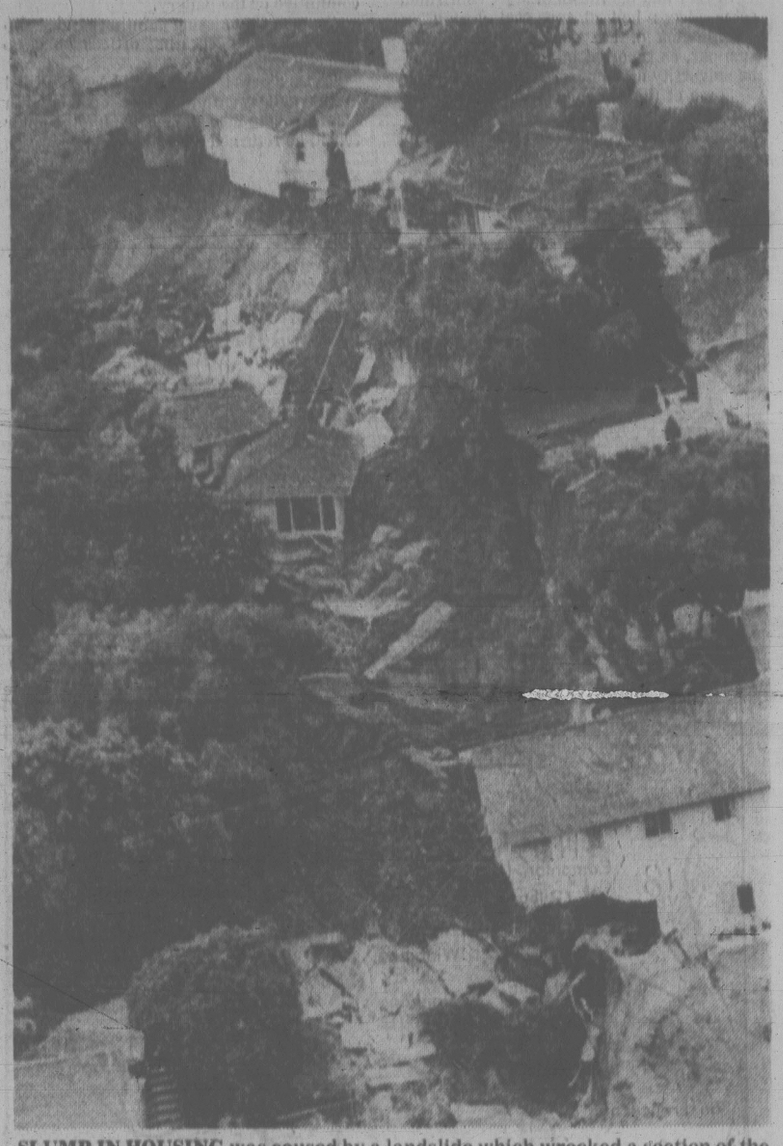
At Bawlf's request, Public Service Commission head A. G. Richardson tallied the number of jobs in the area provided by the provincial government and its Crown corporations.

Bawlf said he simply wants to set the record straight.

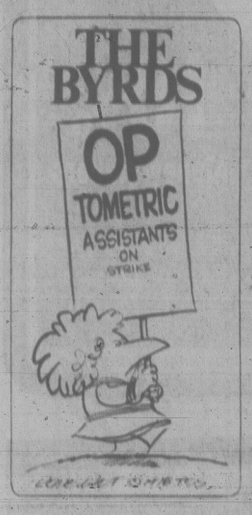
"There has been too much hysteria regarding the so-called loss of government jobs in Victoria. It just isn't true."

Another proof that the city isn't losing jobs is the fact that four Crown corporations are or will be located in Victoria — B.C. Buildings, B.C. Ferries, B.C. Systems and the new Urban Transit Authority.

The minister said every new government job creates two more in the service industry.



SLUMP IN HOUSING was caused by a landslide which wrecked a section of the fashionable resort community of Laguna Beach Monday. In all, 49 homes worth up to $300,000 were destroyed or damaged as the ground crumbled into a cleft which opened in the hillside. Several people were hurt and a number forced to flee in their night clothes, but their were no major injuries as the slide moved very slowly, according to authorities.



Rockets Again Pounding Beirut

BEIRUT (UPI) — Heavy shelling and rocket duels erupted in Beirut today between Syrian and Christian rightist forces. The right-wing Phalangist radio said some Lebanese army units were joining the Christian militias in the battle against the Syrians.

The fierce fighting escalated despite an appeal by President Elias Sarkis Monday night for self-restraint on both sides and a promise that he would form a government of national unity within 10 days in a bid to halt the warfare.

The Phalangist radio broadcast a communique from what it said was the "Revolutionary Command of the Lebanese Army" pledging to "carry arms, struggling forever for the sake of Lebanon."

"We soldiers and officers refuse to see our homeland and nation being torn apart and burning," the communique said.

It was not clear how extensive the alleged move by Lebanese army units to join the militias was.

The action came as heavy bombardments rocked Beirut and its suburbs and as the Syrians and Christians struggled for control of a key bridge controlling the northeast approaches to the city.

The renewed violence shattered an overnight lull and appeared to have been sparked by a battle for the

2nd DEFECTOR MYSTERY DEATH

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard is investigating the second death of a Bulgarian defector in three weeks.

One of the defectors died shortly after reporting that he had been stabbed with a poisoned umbrella and the second after apparently falling down stairs at his home.

A third Bulgarian defector survived a poison-dart attack in Paris in August, and Scotland Yard is evaluating the case of a fourth man claiming to be Bulgarian who flagged down a police car in London Monday and said he was being threatened.

The defectors all had made anti-Communist broadcasts to their homeland. The two who died in London, Georgio Markov and Vladimir Simeonov, were close friends and worked for the Bulgarian language service of the BBC.

Simeonov's pajama-clad body was found in his south London home by another BBC employee sent to check on him after he failed to turn up for work Monday.

Scotland Yard described the death as suspicious and said after an autopsy that 30-year-old Simeonov died from asphyxia caused by inhaling blood from a fractured nose.

Further laboratory and scientific tests will be carried out to try to determine why Mr. Simeonov fell down the stairs," said a police spokesman.

The BBC said that Simeonov was a naturalized British citizen who was a student before he fled from Bulgaria in 1971. His parents still live there.

Markov, a 49-year-old playwright who defected to Britain in 1970, died Sept. 11 from septicemia, a form of blood poisoning, four days after he reported he was stabbed in the thigh with a lethally-tipped umbrella by a man in the street.

Another prominent Bulgarian defector and leading political expert, Vladimir Kostov, alleged that unidentified men fired poison darts at him in Paris in August. Kostov, who has lived in Paris since he defected last year, survived the alleged attack.

Airport Insurance On Way

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal ministry of transport hopes to have a multi-million-dollar insurance package covering 37 municipally-operated airports across the country, including seven in B.C., in place no later than Nov. 1, and perhaps as soon as next week, a ministry spokesman said Monday.

Spokesman Steve Rybak said tenders on the air crash liability package submitted by seven major Canadian insurance companies will be opened in Ottawa today.

The ministry moved to beef up insurance coverage at airports it owns that are managed by municipalities after the Feb. 11 crash of a Pacific Western Airlines jetliner at the Cranbrook airport.

Castlegar city council will now take a second look next week at its decision to cancel its airport lease with the ministry because of a lack of proper safety equipment and inadequate insurance coverage, said Mayor Audrey Moore.

In addition to Cranbrook and Castlegar, municipally-operated ministry airports in B.C. include those at Kelowna, Campbell River, Quesnel, Grand Forks and a seaplane base at Prince Rupert.

Brewery Layoffs Follow

VANCOUVER (CP) — Production is down at British Columbia breweries and some employees have been laid off as the provincial government's liquor distribution branch attempts to clear liquor store shelves of United States beer before increasing orders for domestic suds.

Alan Branston, production manager at Carling-O'Keefe's brewery in Vancouver, said production is about one quarter of normal and about 30 per cent of the bottling and delivery staff has been laid off.

There are still about one million dozen bottles and cans of various U.S. beers, the last of almost nine million dozen imported during the labor dispute at four B.C. breweries.

As a result, the branch ordered only 350,000 dozen bottles of Canadian beer in September, compared to the 3.3 million dozen it ordered a year ago.

At Molson's in Vancouver, production has been shut down for three weeks.

"The liquor board orders weekly and each week we've been selling less than one day's normal production," said brewmaster Walter Hogg.

Only about 10 of a normal complement of 185 workers have been laid off. Others are taking early vacations, using up accumulated time off or doing routine maintenance work, he said.

Both liquor distribution branch and brewery officials estimated that it will be at least three weeks before production is once again back to normal.

Four Die In Blast

DENVER (AP) — A series of explosions ripped through a Continental Oil Co. refinery today, killing at least four persons and injuring at least 11 others, police said.

Billowing fireballs rose over the storage tanks of the refinery and bulk storage plant just northeast of Denver in Commerce City.

Several of the injured were admitted to hospital in serious or critical condition, and a Continental spokesman said damage may run to between $5 million and $10 million.

Robert Alexander, Continental's manager at the refinery and storage plant, said the initial explosion — heard throughout the Denver metropolitan area — was touched off by leaking flammable fumes.

The Denver bomb squad was sent into the refinery area after the Adams County sheriff's department received a call from a man who said he was a Conoco employee and had placed a bomb near a storage tank.

However, police said no bomb was found.

Posties Voting for Pact But CUPW Threatening

MONTREAL (CP) — Members of the Montreal local of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada voted overwhelmingly Monday night to accept the federal government's final contract offer.

And letter carriers in Windsor, Ont., ended the one-day walkout that had disrupted postal service in that area.

But the good news was overshadowed by continued threats from the union which represents the nation's inside postal workers.

As soon as the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) gives union bargainers a strike mandate the post office will be shut down, union president Jean Claude Parrott said Monday in Halifax.

Parrott, claiming his union has 52,000 unresolved grievances against the post office, said CUPW members are ready to dig in their heels and take "a much harder stand."

Although results of the Montreal vote were not released, a spokesman for the 3,000-member union said about 75 per cent of those who voted were in favor of acceptance of the agreement-in-principle reached last week.

The government's offer for an 18-month contract would raise salaries 10.3 percent and would also provide cost-of-living increases.

The result of votes by all locals representing the 19,000 letter carriers across Canada will be released Oct. 10.

In Windsor, many letter carriers said they were still angry about the tentative contract but voted to end their protest aimed at showing dissatisfaction with the union's national executive.

"They felt that they are losing enough money, that it is such a bad contract they can't afford to lose any more," said John David, president of Local 16, Letter Carriers' Union of Canada.

Howie Hits Hub City

Al Howie, the lean Scottish-born marathon man who left Victoria Monday morning in a bid to get to Port Hardy within a week to raise funds for the United Way, got to Duncan around lunchtime and received a steak lunch, courtesy of Mr. Mike's.

UIC Computer's Nailing Islanders

Four people have been jailed and hundreds have been fined this year as the Unemployment Insurance Commission crackdown becomes tougher on Vancouver Island.

"We have developed a fool-proof system for detecting people who cheat by working while collecting benefits," Vancouver Island UIC support centre manager George Milne said today.

"Our computer system catches them all."

Control officers up to Sept.30 had investigated 11,714 cases of suspected UIC cheating on Vancouver Island this year.

The result:

— Four Vancouver Islanders have gone to jail.

— Sixteen others were fined in court.

— Another 1,432 were fined a total of $171,040 under the Unemployment Insurance Act.

— Of the 11,714 suspects, 6,431 were found to have violated the program in some way.

In some cases it was by mistake. But 5,240 of them were found to have received a total of $993,077 too much in UIC benefits. This money must be paid back, including fines where applicable.

Milne said he is releasing the numbers now because there is a tendency for people to fudge on their unemployment insurance benefits at this time of year.

"You would be surprised at the number of people who try to cheat near Christmas or just after Christmas when they need money.

"In many cases they decide to accept benefit cheques for a few extra weeks after they start working in the Christmas season because they feel the money will come in handy.

The method is the record of employment. Employers send a full record to the UIC computer in Ottawa and this is matched to the payout tape. The computer coughs up any overlap and the local UIC office is notified of the violation.

But control officers are not content just to sit back and wait for notification of violators.

"We have set up a pilot program at Nanaimo where employers notify us as soon as they hire anyone. The employers tell the workers they are doing this and we find there are almost no abuses of the insurance program."

He said 300 Nanaimo companies are co-operating in the program and from among hundreds of workers only six UI violations have been detected this year.

Record Sales for U.S. Weapons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Preliminary figures show that U.S. military sales abroad in the fiscal year just ended hit an all-time high of $13.7 billion despite President Carter's pledge to restrain arms trade.

Although the total is about $500 million higher than the administration had estimated last January, the Pentagon figures show Carter will just meet his self-imposed "ceiling" to reduce to $8.55 billion sales of weapons in the Middle East and other regions where specific U.S. arms agreements do not apply.

Overall, when weapons and non-weapons transactions are included, the Middle East remains the biggest U.S. military customer.

Weapons sales under the "ceiling" were the only category that showed a reduction from 1977.

Defense officials acknowledged the administration carefully timed its last 1978 weapons sales and their acceptance by foreign nations to come as close to the limit as possible.

They said that will allow maximum manoeuvring room under whatever ceiling is established for 1979. Carter has promised another ceiling for the new fiscal year to further cut sales in this category, but there has been no indication whether he will attempt to match last year's reduction of 8 percent.

The $13.7 billion total — it is still subject to bookkeeping adjustments although fiscal year 1978 expired Sept. 30 — compares with $11.4 billion in total military sales last year.

Although the $8.55 billion ceiling for last year includes multi-billion dollar transactions in the Middle East, it does not reflect all U.S. military business in that region because "non-weapon" activities such as military construction were exempted from it by the administration.

The Pentagon's estimates showed that non-weapons activities actually more than doubled in the Middle East last year, to $2.8 billion from $1.2 billion the year before. Middle East weapons sales dropped from $7.3 billion to $6.9 billion.

Saudi Arabia was the year's largest customer in all categories, buying more than $4.1 billion worth of weapons, construction and training. Iran was second at $2.6 billion and Israel, which gets a 50 percent break on payments, received $1.5 billion worth.

The NATO allies, Japan, Australia and New Zealand, which are excluded from Carter's restrictions on weapons sales, came close to doubling their purchases in this category.

Seems to Trudeau He Just Can't Win

VANCOUVER (CP) — When he lets others make decisions, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau said Monday, he's accused of lacking leadership. When he takes forthright action, he's called autocratic.

Either way, the prime minister said during a taped television interview on British Columbia Television, he can't win.

Trudeau, interviewed by commentator Jack Webster, said the image of being arrogant is the price he pays for fulfilling a leader's role.

"So I say, 'Okay, let's hear what other people say on this particular hot potato' and then they say I'm not showing leadership," said Trudeau.

The Queen, he said, has visited Canada nine times in the 10 years he has been prime minister, yet he is accused of planning to abolish the monarchy.

"Phony prophets" in the media have been predicting an election announcement all year and when they were proven wrong, "you say I'm wishy-washy," Trudeau said.

Asked if he feels a little guilty about not providing strong leadership, Trudeau said when he announced his series of spending cuts without first consulting his cabinet ministers "people said I was showing too much leadership."

He said his Liberal government has created 2.3 million jobs in the past 10 years, more than double the job-creation rate in the United States and "faster than any (other) Western society."

The drop in value of the Canadian dollar "means the U.S. is able to buy our goods at bargain-basement prices and that means jobs for us."

Canada had a $500-million trade deficit when the Canadian dollar was worth more than the American dollar, Trudeau said, but last year Canada had a $2-billion trade surplus "and this year it's going to be $4 billion."

"The consequence (of the falling dollar) is that foreigners will be buying in Canada and Canadians will be buying in Canada."

Asked if Quebec's threat to separate from Canada is frightening away potential foreign investors, Trudeau said "any speculator worth his salt" can see that separatism will not take place.

Trustee Smith To Run Again

Greater Victoria school trustee Bud Smith announced Monday he will seek a second term in November.

Smith is the only trustee to date to declare candidacy for one of the five seats available on the board this fall.

Smith, in a report on September enrolment to the board, said the district has lost just over 1,000 pupils since last year, equivalent to the enrolment of five schools in the district.

Elementary enrolment is down by 4.2 per cent and secondary enrolment decreased by 3.8 per cent last year.

Kindergarten enrolment dropped 7.3 per cent, indicating the trend will continue for some time to come, Smith said.

Surrounding schools have absorbed the enrolment from Tolmie Elementary, closed due to declining enrolment, with little problem.

But Margaret Jenkins, scheduled to pick up the Bank Street program after that school was closed in June, has lost 23 students this year, the equivalent of one teacher.

Plea Issued For Tsitika

A resolution asking for a further extension of the Tsitika watershed logging moratorium has been unaninously endorsed by a committee fighting to save the wilderness valley.

The committee is supported by the Fishermen and Allied Workers Union and environmental and recreational organizations as well as the Mount Douglas High School Student Committee.

In a statement, the committee said it rejects the Tsitika Watershed Integration Resource plan which calls for large-scale clearcuts up to 600 acres in size.

The watershed has been described as the last unspoiled river valley on the east side of Vancouver Island.

Logging practices would degrade the fisheries resource and wildlife of the Tsitika, the committee said.

The committee also said it rejects the concept of integration of resource management as it has been developed for the watershed.

"This concept has accepted the viewpoint that the forest industry is the prime user of B.C. forest resources. Such a viewpoint means that fisheries, wildlife, environmental and recreational interests in the watershed are reduced to pleading for concessions from the logging companies in order to defend their respective jurisdictions."

"The committee maintains the position that integrated resource management or multiple use of the forests, can only mean participation as equals by forestry, fisheries, wildlife, environmental and recreational interests in resolving the main problems concerning the use of crown (public) forest lands," it added.

An excellent case can be made for completely preserving the watershed, the committee said.

"The Tsitika is a river valley which has remained practically unchanged and virtually unlogged since historic times," it said.

SACRIFICES REQUIRED: NIELSEN

CRANBROOK (CP) — Environment Minister Jim Nielsen said Monday that everyone must make some sacrifices for the good of the province.

Nielsen told members of the East Kootenay regional district that such a philosophy could mean that the region might someday have to sacrifice land to the Kootenay River diversion project.

The minister, however, added that the provincial government, which has the final say on whether the British Columbia Hydro proposal will go ahead, has not yet made a final decision on the project, which would see Kootenay waters diverted to increase water flow and power potential of the Columbia River.

Esquimalt Bid Turned Down

Esquimalt council Monday rejected an application by Gorge Vale Golf Course requesting that property along Colville Road be removed from the Agricultural Land Reserve for use as a townhouse development.

It also endorsed a recommendation that the municipally-owned property known as Highrock Park, as well as two municipally owned properties between Rockcrest Avenue and Highrock Avenue, be designated parkland under a bylaw.

In other business, council refused to endorse a parks and recreation commission request for a $18,000 lighting system for the parking lot at the rear of the Sports Centre.

But council agreed to make it a priority item in next year's budget after Ald. Ken Hill said inadequate parking-lot lighting and subsequent vandalism had been a problem for more than five years.

Lighting would curb incidences of vandalism, he said.

Council's main reason for rejecting the lighting proposal was because the municipality's contingency fund was almost depleted after Yarrows Industries recently won an assessment appeal forcing the municipality to repay $25,000.

Included in the outing will be two Cabinet meetings — one in Quesnel Wednesday, and the other in Fort Nelson Saturday.

Today the mission, which includes Bennett's wife Audrey, whistle-stops through Squamish and Pemberton, meets with children and town officials in Lillooet and attends a function in Williams Lake.

Wednesday the train hits Quesnel, Prince George and detours to Fort St. James for the night.

Thursday the group visits Mackenzie, Chetwynd and Fort St. John before embarking on the 12-hour northern jaunt to Fort Nelson Friday.

TOWN TALK

That's not what those attending a recent meeting of the Willows elementary school PTA - or Home-School Association as they are called these days - found out.

The PTA has been holding a Hot-Dog day once a month and using the revenue from the sales to defray costs.

But selling the "dogs" has met with some opposition from the more nutritious-conscious parents and the recent PTA meeting proved to be an occasion for them to do battle with those who don't really get that excited about it.

The results of a report into the hotdog were read but generally backing the PTA's point that although the hotdogs are not terribly nutritious they probably aren't that harmful.

But then those opposed spoke of the nasty nitrites in the hotdog and the whole thing became slightly comic when it appeared obvious that there were some heated opinions both pro and con, all over a semingly inocuous thing like serving hotdogs at school once a month.

Was life simpler in the days when nobody cared?

The course of true love, 'tis said, rarely runs true.

But it's a bit much when a canine comes between a couple.

Vancouver veterinarian Dr. Alexander Sprachta says while he comes across only a handful of jealous-dog cases a year, he believes the problem is more widespread.

What happens is that dogs are starting to act like jealous lovers. Even to the extent of biting.

If the man pays too much attention to the dog, the pooch tends to behave in a jealous fashion when the man pays attention to his girlfriend or wife. Or vice-versa.

The revelation that canines are cutting in on couples came from a U.S. vet, one Dr. Michael Fox who says he gets dozens of letters seeking his advice.

Remember last month when Premier Bill Bennett was scurrying around hinting an election would be called because there was a lack of investor confidence?

Well, everyone can relax. The moneymen have now apparently regained trust in the future of this province.

Bennett, speaking in Kelowna, told the local chamber of commerce Monday that investor confidence in B.C. has returned. No explanation of why. It's just back.

There are those among us who might say it only came back because the Socreds determined that B.C. voters are too wise to fall for that old ploy about the disastrous effect of an NDP return to power.

Still, it's nice to know we're A-Okay again.

Saanich artist Ted Tilby has finished a portrait of John Diefenbaker and hopes the work will be presented to the former leader of the federal Conservative party towards the end of the month.

Tilby, of 716 Eastridge Pl., was commissioned by the Tories about a year ago to do the portrait and admits he should have had it done sooner.

But he has had other things on his mind as well, like getting production going on a system he invented for deriving lumber, alcohol and animal feed from sugar cane.

But that's another story.

As for the portrait, Tibly is hoping it will be presented to Diefenbaker within the next couple of weeks by current party leader Joe Clark.

Minnie Mtn. Conflict Probe

A bylaw approving a land-use contract for development of the Minnie Mountain property at Ten Mile Point by Broadmead Farms Ltd. was given three readings by Saanich council Monday night.

But the bylaw will remain in limbo until Saanich obtains an independent legal opinion on several questions concerning the validity of the land-use contract itself and of the [illegible] which gave it initial approval.

The municipality will ask the executive of the Law Society of B.C. to recommend a lawyer who will advise council whether, as Ald. John Mika suggests, there was a possible conflict of interest in last week's public hearing where aldermen approved the development proposal by a 5—4 vote.

The eight questions council wants answered all basically centre on two allegations by Mika:

—That the legal firm Pearlman and Lindholm which provides legal services on contract to Saanich and negotiated the land-use contract with Broadmead Farms has also acted for the developers and another company, R. & M. Development Co. Ltd., in which Broadmead general manager Gordon Rolston is a principal;

—That Ald. David Paterson, employed by a management company which provides administrative services to Pearlman and Lindholm, may have been in a conflict-of-interest situation which prejudiced his right to vote last week.

After two hours of debate which included at least two conflicting legal opinions and some procedural confusion, council accepted Mika's motion to seek an independent legal opinion.

But his suggestion that council approach former deputy attorney-general David Vickers was amended to read that the Law Society of B.C. be asked to recommend a solicitor.

Among the questions to be answered by the independent source will be whether Pearlman and Lindholm violated its trust to Saanich by negotiating the contract with a firm it represents; whether Paterson violated his fiduciary status as an alderman and/or his oath of office by voting last week after the question of propriety had been raised and whether a yes answer to such questions nullifies the land-use contract and last week's favorable council decision.

Mika tabled copies of several Land Registry documents which, he said, show clearly [illegible] Pearlman and Lindholm has acted both for R. & M. Development and Broadmead Farms Ltd. in various land transactions.

In such a situation, he argued, the legal firm could be "punished" by Rolston, the Broadmead principal, if Pearlman and Lindholm were to displease him in the way it drafted a land-use contract with Saanich.

Conversely, he said, "They (Pearlman and Lindholm) are also in the position of being rewarded if Rolston is pleased with their efforts."

Mika quoted extracts from a work by Ian Rogers, an expert on Canadian municipal law, defining conflict of interest as extending beyond the mere question of direct or indirect financial gain.

One extract said in part: "It is not essential to find that a vote was affected by personal interest, but the mere possibility that it might be so affected is sufficient to disentitle the member from voting and to incur the penalties if he does so.

"The principle applies, therefore, not only where there is a pecuniary interest but also where there is a reasonable probability that the interested councillor is likely to be biased."

Lawyer and North Saanich Ald. Lawrence Fast, addressing council at the invitation of the Cadboro Bay Residents Association, said he believes there is a strong possibility of a conflict of interest on the two basic points raised by Mika.

If any elected official suspects he might be in a conflict-of-interest situation he should err on the side of caution and not take part in the matter concerned, Fast said.

But a conflicting written opinion was presented by associate municipal solicitor Christopher Nation, who said to have been disqualified from voting Paterson "would have to have some sort of direct or indirect financial interest in Broadmead Farms Ltd."

Paterson himself repeated his statement last week denying that he has any financial involvement with either the project, the developer or any company associated with Broadmead or any of its principals.

Paterson claimed a similarly tenuous line of reasoning could be followed to accuse virtually every member of council of conflict of interest.

He said the current controversy has already seriously affected his integrity as an alderman and even if the independent legal opinion subsequently refutes the charges, his reputation in the community will remain tainted to some degree.

"Win, lose or draw there will be a small black cloud hanging over my head forever," he added.

Under such circumstances he is forced to question whether he could continue in public office.

The bylaw approving the land-use contract must be approved by January, 1979, but council will request that the legal opinion be available well before that date — by Nov. 6, nearly two weeks before the Nov. 18 municipal election.

Layoff Fears Spark Fire Safety Concern

Oak Bay fire department's deputy chief and four assistant chiefs have expressed concern about the level of fire protection in the municipality if they lose four firemen.

The five — deputy chief C.A. Rivers and assistants R.B. Fisher, L.W. Dodd, R.H. Burley and E.D.Knapp — issued the following statement Monday:

"All the senior shift officers and the chief fire prevention officer in Oak Bay are deeply concerned about the loss of manpower in the ranks. We have in the Oak Bay Fire Dept. had the same number of firefighters since 1969.

"There is no way that we as officers can maintain the same level of fire protection that is now in effect if the crew is reduced by 12.9 per cent."

Oak Bay council decided last week to lay off three of the 30 firefighters Dec. 31 and not to fill a vacant position.

The firemen say if the cuts are carried out the initial response to fires will have to be by five-man crews rather than the normal six.

"They are my bosses," he said of the mayor and aldermen. "I do what they tell me."

However, he did say that no fire chief in his right mind would agree to having his staff cut.

Fire Chief Fred Leeke said today he does not want to get embroiled in the issue at this stage because of his position.

He said he hopes to meet with Mayor Brian Smith to discuss the planned layoffs.

VICTORIA POVERTY

It's Invisible But It's There

Unlike many large cities, Victoria has no glaring slums and poverty is virtually invisible to the average citizen.

"But there is poverty in Victoria, much more than meets the eye," says Linda Manthorpe, a social assistance worker with the St. Vincent de Paul Society. The society is one of more than 20 agencies helped by the United Way campaign.

"The problem is that most people, if they think at all about the poor and jobless, believe they are well looked after by government departments, such as the human resources ministry or unemployment insurance," she says.

Manthorpe said the opposite is true.

If Victorians could only look into the case loads of charitable institutions they would be shocked by the number of people who depend on charity for survival.

She cites as an examplepeople who have quit their jobs or have been fired.

"Human resources won't help the former even though there may be a perfectly good reasons why a person has quit his job, such as ill health," she said.

"The ministry ignores the human element.

United Way

The United Way is off to a fast and promising start in its second week of the month-long campaign. The drive to collect funds to help more than a score of agencies devoted to helping people has collected $157,000 of its $926,500 target and officials hope the 17 per cent brought in so far means the drive will go over the top.

★

"Then there are people who are fired. They have to wait six weeks before they are entitled to unemployment insurance. These people, like the former, are referred to us."

She said social assistance granted to single parents also is insufficent to look after their needs and many depend on the society for additional help.

"Do you think a mother with four children can live on $420 a month?" she asked.

"Then there are people who are entitled to social assistance from human resources but there is so much red tape and running around that it may takes weeks before something comes through.

And although human resources regulations say the ministry will help people to get jobs to tide them over until they get paid, it does no such thing and usually refers them to the society.

Apart from providing emergency assistance to anyone in need at any time, Manthorpe said volunteers help in home visiting, a follow-up to people who come to the Social Concern office of the society.

They visit the William Head Prison, assist the local soup kitchen and give help to children of single-parent familes who apply for assistance.

The society also provides clothing, food, home furnishings and milk to needy families.

"This is why we depend on United Way," she said. "We need public support to help the hundreds of people who come to us for assistance."

Marguerite Grievance Launched

The Canadian Merchant Service Guild has initiated a grievance over the 60-day suspension last week of William Frame, a relief captain on the Princess Marquerite.

Frame was suspended following an incident aboard the vessel the previous weekend which resulted in about 1,000 U.S. visitors to Victoria being temporarily stranded.

"We're going all the way on this one," union business agent Leo Gray said today. "We'll go to arbitration if necessary.

"We're confident we'll win."

Gray said the union is going to insist that Frame not only be reinstated but reimbursed for time lost as well.

Frame had been instrumental in resolving the dispute which centered around a firemen's refusal to fire a boiler.

$2,000 Tab For Vandalism

Victoria council's community relations committee today recommended an alarm system be installed at the Victoria West community centre to combat vandalism.

Ald. John Hayes told the committee about $2,000 damage has been done to the centre in recent months by neighborhood juveniles.

"We have had a disturbing amount of hooliganism around there," said Hayes.

The incidents include broken windows, vandalism of furniture, fixtures and equipment, theft of a small amount of money and theft of a public announcement system.

In order to discourage further acts of burglary and vandalism Hayes recommended the installation of a security alarm system. Installation of the system would cost about $600 with a rental of $45 per month.

The committee members agreed to the expenditure.

$31,500 GRANT MAY BE LAST

Economic Development Minister Don Phillips today approved a second $31,500 grant to the Greater Victoria Economic Development Commission but hinted it will be the last.

The commission, established in 1977 to promote the orderly economic development of the Greater Victoria region, received a similar grant last year to cover its first year of operation.

The other half of the $63,000 operating cost is borne by the four core municipalities.

"Although I approved this payment again this year I firmly belive that eventually full financial support must come from the region," Phillips said.

The grant should not be construed as an ongoing process, he said, adding that in such instances provincial support should be considered strictly seed money.

$1.1B RESERVES SPENT

Dollar Nearing Depression Low

Canadian Press

The Canadian dollar continued to drop against its U.S. counterpart on money markets today following news that the government spent a staggering $1.14 billion U.S. in official reserves in September to support the sagging currency.

It was the largest sum of money ever spent by the central bank to support the value of the dollar.

The government also announced its spending deficit for the first five months of the 1978-79 fiscal year was $6.049 billion, up 57 per cent from the shortfall in the same period of 1977-78.

The dollar, which opened below Monday's closing price of 83.89 U.S. cents, was trading at 83.66 U.S. cents by mid-morning, and later took a big jump to 84.37 U.S.

The currency is now only about a cent away from its second all-time low of 82.47 U.S. cents registered in April, 1933. The record low was set in December, 1931, when the dollar was worth 80.08 U.S. cents.

On Monday, traders had blamed pessimism about the reserve figures for the dollar's drop that day of more than half a cent against its U.S. counterpart. It was the biggest one-session decline since February, 1977.

The dollar's continued weakness today comes after the finance department revealed that the Bank of Canada spent $1.14 billion during the month of September to buy unwanted Canadian dollars on world currency markets.

In August, the bank used up more than $700 million of its U.S. reserves to prop up the dollar.

Despite the intervention, the dollar has dropped more than four cents against the U.S. dollar since the beginning of August.

The dollar hovered around the 85-cent mark last week but suffered a blow Friday as a result of figures revealing a lower-then-expected trade surplus in August.

Guessing about the reserve figures led to a renewed sell-

Province Payroll Up: 11,000 Jobs in City

The number of provincial civil service jobs in Greater Victoria totalled 10,987 in May of this year, Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf said Monday.

This is an increase of 426 over the 17 months leading up to May, he said.

The Canada Employment Centre estimates the Victoria labor force at just over 100,000, so the provincial civil service accounts for about 10 per cent of Victoria's employment.

Bawlf said he is tired of the needless hysteria created by those who believe there is a steady loss of government jobs in Victoria.

At Bawlf's request, Public Service Commission head A. G. Richardson tallied the number of jobs in the area provided by the provincial government and its Crown corporations.

Bawlf said he simply wants to set the record straight.

"There has been too much hysteria regarding the so-called loss of government jobs in Victoria. It just isn't true."

Another proof that the city isn't losing jobs is the fact that four Crown corporations are or will be located in Victoria — B.C. Buildings, B.C. Ferries, B.C. Systems and the new Urban Transit Authority.

The minister said every new government job creates two more in the service industry.

BEIRUT (UPI) — Heavy shelling and rocket duels erupted in Beirut today between Syrian and Christian rightist forces. The right-wing Phalangist radio said some Lebanese army units were joining the Christian militias in the battle against the Syrians.

The fierce fighting escalated despite an appeal by President Elias Sarkis Monday night for self-restraint on both sides and a promise that he would form a government of national unity within 10 days in a bid to halt the warfare.

The Phalangist radio broadcast a communique from what it said was the "Revolutionary Command of the Lebanese Army" pledging to "carry arms, struggling forever for the sake of Lebanon."

"We soldiers and officers refuse to see our homeland and nation being torn apart and burning," the communique said.

It was not clear how extensive the alleged move by Lebanese army units to join the militias was.

The action came as heavy bombardments rocked Beirut and its suburbs and as the Syrians and Christians struggled for control of a key bridge controlling the northeast approaches to the city.

The renewed violence shattered an overnight lull and appeared to have been sparked by a battle for the

2nd DEFECTOR MYSTERY DEATH

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard is investigating the second death of a Bulgarian defector in three weeks.

One of the defectors died shortly after reporting that he had been stabbed with a poisoned umbrella and the second after apparently falling down stairs at his home.

A third Bulgarian defector survived a poison-dart attack in Paris in August, and Scotland Yard is evaluating the case of a fourth man claiming to be Bulgarian who flagged down a police car in London Monday and said he was being threatened.

The defectors all had made anti-Communist broadcasts to their homeland. The two who died in London, Georgio Markov and Vladimir Simeonov, were close friends and worked for the Bulgarian language service of the BBC.

Simeonov's pajama-clad body was found in his south London home by another BBC employee sent to check on him after he failed to turn up for work Monday.

Scotland Yard described the death as suspicious and said after an autopsy that 30-year-old Simeonov died from asphyxia caused by inhaling blood from a fractured nose.

Further laboratory and scientific tests will be carried out to try to determine why Mr. Simeonov fell down the stairs," said a police spokesman.

The BBC said that Simeonov was a naturalized British citizen who was a student before he fled from Bulgaria in 1971. His parents still live there.

Markov, a 49-year-old playwright who defected to Britain in 1970, died Sept. 11 from septicemia, a form of blood poisoning, four days after he reported he was stabbed in the thigh with a lethally-tipped umbrella by a man in the street.

Another prominent Bulgarian defector and leading political expert, Vladimir Kostov, alleged that unidentified men fired poison darts at him in Paris in August. Kostov, who has lived in Paris since he defected last year, survived the alleged attack.

Four Die In Blast

DENVER (AP) — A series of explosions ripped through a Continental Oil Co. refinery today, killing at least four persons and injuring at least 11 others, police said.

Billowing fireballs rose over the storage tanks of the refinery and bulk storage plant just northeast of Denver in Commerce City.

Several of the injured were admitted to hospital in serious or critical condition, and a Continental spokesman said damage may run to between $5 million and $10 million.

Robert Alexander, Continental's manager at the refinery and storage plant, said the initial explosion — heard throughout the Denver metropolitan area — was touched off by leaking flammable fumes.

The Denver bomb squad was sent into the refinery area after the Adams County sheriff's department received a call from a man who said he was a Conoco employee and had placed a bomb near a storage tank.

However, police said no bomb was found.

Airport Insurance On Way

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal ministry of transport hopes to have a multi-million-dollar insurance package covering 37 municipally-operated airports across the country, including seven in B.C., in place no later than Nov. 1, and perhaps as soon as next week, a ministry spokesman said Monday.

Spokesman Steve Rybak said tenders on the air crash liability package submitted by seven major Canadian insurance companies will be opened in Ottawa today.

The ministry moved to beef up insurance coverage at airports it owns that are managed by municipalities after the Feb. 11 crash of a Pacific Western Airlines jetliner at the Cranbrook airport.

Castlegar city council will now take a second look next week at its decision to cancel its airport lease with the ministry because of a lack of proper safety equipment and inadequate insurance coverage, said Mayor Audrey Moore.

In addition to Cranbrook and Castlegar, municipally-operated ministry airports in B.C. include those at Kelowna, Campbell River, Quesnel, Grand Forks and a seaplane base at Prince Rupert.

Brewery Lays Off 30%

VANCOUVER (CP) — Production is down at British Columbia breweries and some employees have been laid off as the provincial government's liquor distribution branch attempts to clear liquor store shelves of United States beer before increasing orders for domestic suds.

Alan Branston, production manager at Carling-O'Keefe's brewery in Vancouver, said production is about one quarter of normal and about 30 per cent of the bottling and delivery staff has been laid off.

There are still about one million dozen bottles and cans of various U.S. beers, the last of almost nine million dozen imported during the labor dispute at four B.C. breweries.

As a result, the branch ordered only 350,000 dozen bottles of Canadian beer in September, compared to the 3.3 million dozen it ordered a year ago.

At Molson's in Vancouver, production has been shut down for three weeks.

"The liquor board orders weekly and each week we've been selling less than one day's normal production," said brewmaster Walter Hogg.

Only about 10 of a normal complement of 185 workers have been laid off. Others are taking early vacations, using up accumulated time off or doing routine maintenance work, he said.

Both liquor distribution branch and brewery officials estimated that it will be at least three weeks before production is once again back to normal.

Posties Voting for Pact But CUPW Threatening

MONTREAL (CP) — Members of the Montreal local of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada voted overwhelmingly Monday night to accept the federal government's final contract offer.

And letter carriers in Windsor, Ont., ended the one-day walkout that had disrupted postal service in that area.

But the good news was overshadowed by continued threats from the union which represents the nation's inside postal workers.

As soon as the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) gives union bargainers a strike mandate the post office will be shut down, union president Jean Claude Parrott said Monday in Halifax.

Parrott, claiming his union has 52,000 unresolved grievances against the post office, said CUPW members are ready to dig in their heels and take "a much harder stand."

Although results of the Montreal vote were not released, a spokesman for the 3,000-member union said about 75 per cent of those who voted were in favor of acceptance of the agreement-in-principle reached last week.

The government's offer for an 18-month contract would raise salaries 10.3 percent and would also provide cost-of-living increases.

The result of votes by all locals representing the 19,000 letter carriers across Canada will be released Oct. 10.

In Windsor, many letter carriers said they were still angry about the tentative contract but voted to end their protest aimed at showing dissatisfaction with the union's national executive.

"They felt that they are losing enough money, that it is such a bad contract they can't afford to lose any more," said John David, president of Local 16, Letter Carriers' Union of Canada.

UIC Computer's Nailing Islanders

Four people have been jailed and hundreds have been fined this year as the Unemployment Insurance Commission crackdown becomes tougher on Vancouver Island.

"We have developed a fool-proof system for detecting people who cheat by working while collecting benefits," Vancouver Island UIC support centre manager George Milne said today.

"Our computer system catches them all."

Milne said while policing of unemployment insurance payments is an ongoing program, the increased use of computers is making control much easier.

Control officers up to Sept.30 had investigated 11,714 cases of suspected UIC cheating on Vancouver Island this year.

The result:

— Four Vancouver Islanders have gone to jail.

— Sixteen others were fined in court.

— Another 1,432 were fined a total of $171,040 under the Unemployment Insurance Act.

— Of the 11,714 suspects, 6,431 were found to have violated the program in some way.

In some cases it was by mistake. But 5,240 of them were found to have received a total of $993,077 too much in UIC benefits. This money must be paid back, including fines where applicable.

Milne said he is releasing the numbers now because there is a tendency for people to fudge on their unemployment insurance benefits at this time of year.

"You would be surprised at the number of people who try to cheat near Christmas or just after Christmas when they need money.

"In many cases they decide to accept benefit cheques for a few extra weeks after they start working in the Christmas season because they feel the money will come in handy.

"These people will be caught."

The method is the record of employment. Employers send a full record to the UIC computer in Ottawa and this is matched to the payout tape. The computer coughs up any overlap and the local UIC office is notified of the violation.

But control officers are not content just to sit back and wait for notification of violators.

"We have set up a pilot program at Nanaimo where employers notify us as soon as they hire anyone. The employers tell the workers they are doing this and we find there are almost no abuses of the insurance program."

He said 300 Nanaimo companies are co-operating in the program and from among hundreds of workers only six UI violations have been detected this year.

TOWN TALK

That's not what those attending a recent meeting of the Willows elementary school PTA - or Home-School Association as they are called these days - found out.

The PTA has been holding a Hotdog day once a month and using the revenue from the sales to defray costs.

But selling the "dogs" has met with some opposition from the more nutritious-conscious parents and the recent PTA meeting proved to be an occasion for them to do battle with those who don't really get that excited about it.

The results of a report into the hotdog were read out generally backing the PTA's point that although the hotdogs are not terribly nutritious they probably aren't that harmful.

But then those opposed spoke of the nasty nitrites in the hotdog and the whole thing became slightly comic when it appeared obvious that there were some heated opinions both pro and con, all over a semingly inocuous thing like serving hotdogs at school once a month.

Was life simpler in the days when nobody cared?

The course of true love, 'tis said, rarely runs true.

But it's a bit much when a canine comes between a couple.

Vancouver veterinarian Dr. Alexander Sprachta says while he comes across only a handful of jealous-dog cases a year, he believes the problem is more widespread.

What happens is that dogs are starting to act like jealous lovers. Even to the extent of biting.

If the man pays too much attention to the dog, the pooch tends to behave in a jealous fashion when the man pays attention to his girlfriend or wife. Or vice-versa.

The revelation that canines are cutting in on couples came from a U.S. vet, one Dr. Michael Fox who says he gets dozens of letters seeking his advice.

Well, everyone can relax. The moneymen have now apparently regained trust in the future of this province.

Bennett, speaking in Kelowna, told the local chamber of commerce Monday that investor confidence in B.C. has returned. No explanation of why. It's just back.

There are those among us who might say it only came back because the Socreds determined that B.C. voters are too wise to fall for that old ploy about the disastrous effect of an NDP return to power.

Still, it's nice to know we're A-Okay again.

Minnie Mtn. Conflict Probe

A bylaw approving a land-use contract for development of the Minnie Mountain property at Ten Mile Point by Broadmead Farms Ltd. was given three readings by Saanich council Monday night.

But the bylaw will remain in limbo until Saanich obtains an independent legal opinion on several questions concerning the validity of the land-use contract itself and of the council vote last week which gave it initial approval.

The municipality will ask the executive of the Law Society of B.C. to recommend a lawyer who will advise council whether, as Ald. John Mika suggests, there was a possible conflict of interest in last week's public hearing where aldermen approved the development proposal by a 5—4 vote.

The eight questions council wants answered all basically centre on two allegations by Mika:

—That the legal firm Pearlman and Lindholm which provides legal services on contract to Saanich and negotiated the land-use contract with Broadmead Farms has also acted for the developers and another company, R. & M. Development Co. Ltd., in which Broadmead general manager Gordon Rolston is a principal;

—That Ald. David Paterson, employed by a management company which provides administrative services to Pearlman and Lindholm, may have been in a conflict-of-interest situation which prejudiced his right to vote last week.

After two hours of debate which included at least two conflicting legal opinions and some procedural confusion, council accepted Mika's motion to seek an independent legal opinion.

But his suggestion that council approach former deputy attorney-general David Vickers was amended to read that the Law Society of B.C. be asked to recommend a solicitor.

Among the questions to be answered by the independent source will be whether Pearlman and Lindholm violated its trust to Saanich by negotiating the contract with a firm it represents; whether Paterson violated his fiduciary status as an alderman and/or his oath of office by voting last week after the question of propriety had been raised; and whether a yes answer to such questions nullifies the land-use contract and last week's favorable council decision.

Mika tabled copies of several Land Registry documents which, he said, show clearly that Pearlman and Lindholm has acted both for R. & M. Development and Broadmead Farms Ltd. in various land transactions.

In such a situation, he argued, the legal firm could be "punished" by Rolston, the Broadmead principal, if Pearlman and Lindholm were to displease him in the way it drafted a land-use contract with Saanich.

Conversely, he said, "They (Pearlman and Lindholm) are also in the position of being rewarded if Rolston is pleased with their efforts."

Mika quoted extracts from a work by Ian Rogers, an expert on Canadian municipal law, defining conflict of interest as extending beyond the mere question of direct or indirect financial gain.

One extract said in part: "It is not essential to find that a vote was affected by personal interest, but the mere possibility that it might be so affected is sufficient to disentitle the member from voting and to incur the penalties if he does so.

"The principle applies, therefore, not only where there is a pecuniary interest but also where there is a reasonable probability that the interested councillor is likely to be biased."

Lawyer and North Saanich Ald. Lawrence Fast, addressing council at the invitation of the Cadboro Bay Residents Association, said he believes there is a strong possibility of a conflict of interest on the two basic points raised by Mika.

If any elected official suspects he might be in a conflict-of-interest situation he should err on the side of caution and not take part in the matter concerned, Fast said.

But a conflicting written opinion was presented by associate municipal solicitor Christopher Nation, who said to have been disqualified from voting Paterson "would have to have some sort of direct or indirect financial interest in Broadmead Farms Ltd."

Paterson himself repeated his statement last week denying that he has any financial involvement with either the project, the developer or any company associated with Broadmead or any of its principals.

Paterson claimed a similarly tenuous line of reasoning could be followed to accuse virtually every member of council of conflict of interest.

He said the current controversy has already seriously affected his integrity as an alderman and even if the independent legal opinion subsequently refutes the charges, his reputation in the community will remain tainted to some degree.

"Win, lose or draw there will be a small black cloud hanging over my head forever," he added.

Under such circumstances he is forced to question whether he can continue in public office.

The bylaw approving the land-use contract must be approved by January, 1979, but council will request that the legal opinion be available well before that date — by Nov. 6, nearly two weeks before the Nov. 18 municipal election.

Layoff Fears Spark Fire Safety Concern

Oak Bay fire department's deputy chief and four assistant chiefs have expressed concern about the level of fire protection in the municipality if they lose four firemen.

The five — deputy chief C.A. Rivers and assistants R.B. Fisher, L.W. Dodd, R.H. Burley and E.D.Knapp — issued the following statement Monday:

"All the senior shift officers and the chief fire prevention officer in Oak Bay are deeply concerned about the loss of manpower in the ranks. We have in the Oak Bay Fire Dept. had the same number of firefighters since 1969.

"There is no way that we as officers can maintain the same level of fire protection that is now in effect if the crew is reduced by 12.9 per cent."

Oak Bay council decided last week to lay off three of the 30 firefighters Dec. 31 and not to fill a vacant position.

The firemen say if the cuts are carried out the initial response to fires will have to be by five-man crews rather than the normal six.

"They are my bosses," he said of the mayor and aldermen. "I do what they tell me."

However, he did say that no fire chief in his right mind would agree to having his staff cut.

Fire Chief Fred Leeke said today he does not want to get embroiled in the issue at this stage because of his position.

He said he hopes to meet with Mayor Brian Smith to discuss the planned layoffs.

It's Invisible But It's There

Unlike many large cities, Victoria has no glaring slums and poverty is virtually invisible to the average citizen.

"But there is poverty in Victoria, much more than meets the eye," says Linda Manthorpe, a social assistance worker with the St. Vincent de Paul Society. The society is one of more than 20 agencies helped by the United Way campaign.

"The problem is that most people, if they think at all about the poor and jobless, believe they are well looked after by government departments, such as the human resources ministry or unemployment insurance," she says.

Manthorpe said the opposite is true.

If Victorians could only look into the case loads of charitable institutions they would be shocked by the number of people who depend on charity for survival.

She cites as an example people who have quit their jobs or have been fired.

"Human resources won't help the former even though there may be perfectly good reasons why a person has quit his job, such as ill health," she said.

"The ministry ignores the human element.

United Way

The United Way is off to a fast and promising start in its second week of the month-long campaign. The drive to collect funds to help more than a score of agencies devoted to helping people has collected $157,000 of its $926,500 target and officials hope the 17 per cent brought in so far means the drive will go over the top.

"Then there are people who are fired. They have to wait six weeks before they are entitled to unemployment insurance. These people, like the former, are referred to us."

She said social assistance granted to single parents also is insufficent to look after their needs and many depend on the society for additional help.

"Do you think a mother with four children can live on $420 a month?" she asked.

"Then there are people who are entitled to social assistance from human resources but there is so much red tape and running around that it may take weeks before something comes through.

And although human resources regulations say the ministry will help people to get money to tide them over until they get paid, it does no such thing and usually refers them to the society.

Apart from providing emergency assistance to anyone in need at any time, Manthorpe said volunteers help in home visiting, a follow-up to people who come to the Social Concern office of the society.

They visit the William Head Prison, assist the local soup kitchen and give help to children of single-parent families who apply for assistance.

The society also provides clothing, food, home furnishings and milk to needy families.

"This is why we depend on United Way," she said. "We need public support to help the hundreds of people who come to us for assistance."

Marguerite Grievance Launched

The Canadian Merchant Service Guild has initiated a grievance over the 60-day suspension last week of William Frame, a relief captain on the Princess Marquerite.

Frame was suspended following an incident aboard the vessel the previous weekend which resulted in about 1,000 U.S. visitors to Victoria being temporarily stranded.

"We're going all the way on this one," union business agent Leo Gray said today. "We'll go to arbitration if necessary.

Gray said the union is going to insist that Frame not only be reinstated but reimbursed for time lost as well.

Frame had been instrumental in resolving the dispute which centered around a firemen's refusal to fire a boiler.

Ask the Times

Q. It will be interesting to see how Prime Minister Trudeau makes out in the next election, as compared to the time he first ran in 1968. Could you tell me how many votes he got? D.P.

A. He received 35,437, the largest personal majority for any member of Parliament.

$2,000 Tab For Vandalism

Victoria council's community relations committee today recommended an alarm system be installed at the Victoria West community centre to combat vandalism.

Ald. John Hayes told the committee about $2,000 damage has been done to the centre in recent months by neighborhood juveniles.

"We have had a disturbing amount of hooliganism around there," said Hayes.

The incidents include broken windows, vandalism of furniture, fixtures and equipment, theft of a small amount of money and theft of a public announcement system.

In order to discourage further acts of burglary and vandalism Hayes recommended the installation of a security alarm system. Installation of the system would cost about $600 with a rental of $45 per month.

The committee members agreed to the expenditure.

$31,500 GRANT MAY BE LAST

Economic Development Minister Don Phillips today approved a second $31,500 grant to the Greater Victoria Economic Development Commission but hinted it will be the last.

The commission, established in 1977 to promote the orderly economic development of the Greater Victoria region, received a similar grant last year to cover its first year of operation.

The other half of the $63,000 operating cost is borne by the four core municipalities.

"Although I approved this payment again this year I firmly believe that eventually full financial support must come from the region," Phillips said.

The grant should not be construed as an ongoing process, he said, adding that in such instances provincial support should be considered strictly seed money.
